INFORMATION IN THE COMPLAINT LACKING.

Court Holds Essential Elements of Crime Must be Charged.

Demurrer in Mellen Case Sustained by Judge Tuttle.

BRIDGEPORT Conn March 10—A demurrer setting forth that there was insufficiency of information in the complaint which charged former President Charles S Mellen of the New York New Haven & Hartford railroad with manslaughter in connection with the wreck of two sections of the Springfield express at Westport October 3 1912 and in which wreck nine persons were killed was sustained by Judge Joseph Tuttle in the criminal side of the superior court today

Arguments on the demurrer were made last week after the court had rejected the plea to jurisdiction made by counsel Had the demurrer not been sustained the expectation was that a date for trial of Mr Mellen would have been set With the contention upheld by the court counsel said immediately after the decision had been made that it remained with States Attorney Judson to make the next move

The demurrer set forth that the complaint did not show wherein Mr Mellen was actually responsible for the wreck of the trains that it did not show that he set the fire which caused the death of one Jane Doe or that there was any connection between Mr Mellen and the wreck

In his memorandum the court said the states attorney claimed and intended to try and prove involuntary manslaughter on the part of the accused that is that the accused as president of the company charged with certain lawful duties so negligently performed or omitted to perform those duties as to cause the death of a certain person The information in fact said the court, alleges that the accused as president wilfully and feloniously did make an assault and did then and there wilfully and feloniously choke suffocate and burn Jane Doe by means of a fire in the car in which she was and because of said mortal choking and suffocation and mortal burns, sores and wounds Jane Doe then and there instantly died

The court adds that the language of the charge is that of voluntary manslaughter and there is nothing in the information charging the accused with the neglect or omission of imposed duties in consequence of which Jane Doe lost her life but charges direct acts of violence producing that result although the accused was not within many miles of the scene at the time of the death of Jane Doe

The court touching upon framing of complaints said it was still the law that essential elements of the crime must be charged Analysis of the information before it led the court to hold that the complaint did not apprise the defendant of the specific acts he was alleged to have committed and which caused the death of Jane Doe

The court finds, on conceded facts that Jane Doe met her death in a railroad wreck at which the accused was not present

In the decision the court says also that it found no authority which holds that a person as an officer of a corporation may commit voluntary manslaughter

Mr Mellen was still under arrest this afternoon as the warrant had not been vacated It is thought that the states attorney would file an amended information and to this counsel for Mr Mellen will probably demur

INFORMATION IN THE COMPLAINT LACKING.

Court Holds Essential Elements of Crime Must be Charged.

Demurrer in Mellen Case Sustained by Judge Tuttle.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 10.—A demurrer setting forth that there was insufficiency of information in the complaint which charged former President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad with manslaughter in connection with the wreck of two sections of the Springfield express at Westport October 3, 1912, and in which wreck nine persons were killed, was sustained by Judge Joseph Tuttle in the criminal side of the superior court today.

Arguments on the demurrer were made last week after the court had rejected the plea to jurisdiction made by counsel. Had the demurrer not been sustained the expectation was that a date for trial of Mr. Mellen would have been set. With the contention upheld by the court, counsel said immediately after the decision had been made that it remained with State's Attorney Judson to make the next move.

The demurrer set forth that the complaint did not show wherein Mr. Mellen was actually responsible for the wreck of the trains, that it did not show that he set the fire which caused the death of one "Jane Doe," or that there was any connection between Mr. Mellen and the wreck.

In his memorandum the court said the state's attorney claimed and intended to try and prove "Involuntary manslaughter" on the part of the accused; that is, that the accused, as president of the company, charged with certain lawful duties, so negligently performed or omitted to perform those duties as to cause the death of a certain person. The information, in fact," said the court, "alleges that the accused, as president, 'wilfully and feloniously did make an assault and did then and there wilfully and feloniously choke, suffocate and burn Jane Doe by means of a fire in the car in which she was, and because of said mortal choking and suffocation and mortal burns, sores and wounds, Jane Doe then and there instantly died.'"

The court adds that the language of the charge is that of "voluntary manslaughter" and there is nothing in the information charging the accused with the neglect or omission of imposed duties in consequence of which Jane Doe lost her life but charges direct acts of violence producing that result, although the accused was not within many miles of the scene at the time of the death of Jane Doe.

The court, touching upon framing of complaints, said it was still the law that "essential elements of the crime must be charged." Analysis of the information before it led the court to hold that the complaint did not apprise the defendant of the specific acts he was alleged to have committed and which caused the death of Jane Doe.

The court finds, on conceded facts, that Jane Doe met her death in a railroad wreck at which the accused was not present.

In the decision the court says also that it found no authority which holds that a person, as an officer of a corporation, may commit voluntary manslaughter.

Mr. Mellen was still under arrest this afternoon, as the warrant had not been vacated. It is thought that the state's attorney would file an amended information and to this counsel for Mr. Mellen will probably demur.

CAN BE CHANGED TO CRUISER.

Vanderbilt Boat to be Pierced in Two Places for Mainmast.

BRISTOL, March 10.—A new departure in the construction of cup defenders is being made in the Vanderbilt syndicate boat now being built at the Herreshoff yards here, it was learned today. The aspirant for the honor of defending the America's cup will be pierced in two places for a mainmast, so that if she fails to qualify for the race with the Lipton yacht her rig can be changed to that of a cruiser. This will eliminate the probability of the boat being consigned to the junk pile, like many of her predecessors. The steel mast used in the trials will be stepped in the foreward hole and another hole will be located a little further aft. Whether she wins or loses it is considered probable that the boat will have a career of usefulness as a cruiser.

DENTIFICATION OF AMERICAN RELIABLE.

Vergara's Body Exhumed by Relatives and Mexicans.

Report Sent by Captain of Fourteenth Cavalry to Secretary.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Secretary Garrison received today from Brigadier General Tasker Bliss, commanding the American border forces, the following report on the Vergara case by Captain H. P. Howard of the Fourteenth United States cavalry:

"Investigation shows Vergara's body was taken from the Hidalgo Cemetery Saturday night by relatives of Vergara and hired Mexicans. Captain Sanders stated positively no Texas rangers crossed the border. He met the body at a landing opposite San Enrique with Undertaker Convery Sunday morning. Convery brought the body to Laredo, 7:30 p. m. Sunday. He states there were no signs of burns on the body. Found four bullet holes. Neck chafed, but not broken. Body decomposed, but pants matched coat left at home by Vergara. Identification seems reliable. Recovery of body said to have cost S. T. Hill, brother-in-law of Vergara, $400. Body being held at request of Adjutant General Hutchings. No excitement."

Secretary Bryan, entering the cabinet meeting, said American Consul Garrett reported that relatives of Clemente Vergara recovered his body Sunday and that rangers did not cross the border. Consul Garrett said he had been notified that if he should go to a place on the American side of the Rio Grande, across from Hidalgo, Mexico, at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, he would find the body. He went there in company with Captain Sanders of the Texas rangers and the body was delivered by friends of Vergara. Mr. Garrett added that he was sending a full report by mail. Mr. Bryan said no new representations had been made to the Huerta government.

INQUIRY AT LAREDO BEGUN.

Stories of Torture, Based on Condition of Vergara's Hand.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 10.—No further information on the identity of the party of Texans who recovered Clemente Vergara's body from the Mexican grave was expected today, pending conclusion of the official investigations now in progress by both federal and state authorities. Governor Colquitt is out of the city on a two-day trip to Fort Worth.

Henry Hutchings, state adjutant general has begun at Laredo an investigation ordered by Governor Colquitt. The stories of torture, based on the charred condition of one of Vergara's hands, will receive close attention in this investigation.

The burning of Vergara's hand, which apparently is discredited in General Bliss's report to Washington today, was reported as a fact by Captain Sanders of the Texas rangers, whose official statement read: "One hand was burned to a crisp."

New Suits, Dresses, Coats, Waists and Skirts

Now on display in our garment showroom.

To state that these new SUITS, DRESSES, COATS WAISTS, SKRITS, etc., are entirely novel in design, texture and finish is but to tell the average woman something that every newspaper and magazine has been calling her attention to for months past and this combined description cannot begin to do justice to the kaleidoscope display that these new goods make.

SUITS with the ultra-stylish short fronts, long backs, ruching trimmed collars, peg top skirts, some with over-draped bodice, fantastic styles in buttons and a hundred other of the new features that modern style demands in a maze of colors; in short a selection that you would have to travel far to exceed.

DRESSES with the fashionable low necks, chemisette draped collars, dart fitted sleeves, boleros, draperies, frills, tunics with or without girdles; over 100 different and exeremely pleasing styles in every new shade.

COATS of the latest "Balmacaan" order cut short at the top with a protruding fullness at the waist line, very sporty in effect and gives the average wearer a girlishness not to be denied.

WAISTS of the new taffetas, crepes, meteors, as fanciful as can be imagined. An immense assortment.

SKIRTS in checks, plaids, with over drapery, new Peg top styles, etc. A wondrous variety that this store alone has in stock.

THE EIGHT-YEAR SCHEDULE.

no artificial light is provided. By the use of lamps, darkness was made visible, but in spite of the shade a pleasing program and the usual refreshments were furnished. The program included a presentation of "Little Women."

Lincoln Memorial.

The schools contributed per capita of the average number belonging in the following order: Parish $2, Cranston $5.03, Potter $3.81, Callender $4.09, Calvert $5.25, Thayer $2.50, Coddington $8.19, Coggeshall $6.40, Mumford $5.07, Clarke $2.37 Lenthal $4.16, Carey $3.31, Rogers $3.07 total $55.15; total average, one and one-half cents each.

As the average number belonging is 3,471, it is evident that the total amount is only a cent and a half each. Therefore it is safe to say that no one felt any particular financial strain.

Richmond

The key-note of the national meeting of superintendents of schools was the development of an intelligent producer and consumer," or some preferred "utilizer" in place of "consumer." To secure these results the rural schools are to be revolutionized long the line of applied domestic and manual arts and scientific agriculture. The rural school problems are not particularly applicable to Newport, although in some of the statistics the pupils in the Parish school were evidently considered "rural."

In schools like those of Newport the chief discussions centered about the increased length of the school day and year, the elimination of non-essential topics in some of the subjects, the increase of pre-vocational work, and especially on a re-division of the grades. There was a discouraging difference of opinion in regard to the details, but every one seemed to feel the need of a change. The two principal reasons were these: First, the pupils should have an opportunity to make more definite preparation for their life work as far as they can determine it at their immature age, and, second, they should have more contact with men teachers.

The best proposition (the author called it a prophecy) was this. In an eight-year course (not including the kindergarten) children would enter when six years old and the first six grades would be in small school districts, with women for both regular teachers and for principals. Here the curriculum would be the usual subjects, with especial emphasis on the fundamentals. Note that entrance at the age of six with an unbroken promotion would enable the pupils to reach the age for a working certificate at graduation from the grammar school (grade VIII.)

Grades VII and VIII would be gathered in central buildings under male principals and with other male teachers (perhaps half of the corps), so that every grammar school pupil would be assured of male teaching and influence before he went into the world of work. Although these central buildings would be devoted to grades VII and VIII, they would also receive the over-age pupils from the lower grades. This would be a relief to these grades and it would also permit the pupils to associate with their equals in age, even while they were doing more elementary work.

In these buildings would be concentrated the preparatory work, (1) for the high school, (2) for commercial life, (3) for mechanical work, and (4) for the home. Pupils would complete the fundamentals with history, drawing, music and physical training, and they would elect also other subjects pertaining directly to what they hoped to do later. Those who knew that they would go to the high school and thence to higher institutions would begin a modern language by the conversational method. Those who would go into commercial life would begin commercial arithmetic, geography and typewriting. Those who would go into mechanical work would devote half-time to the shop work. The girls would have the same time for domestic arts. To do this there must be a longer school session and year, especially for shop work, which would be less exhausting than book work. Furthermore, this longer day would enable the work to be done in school instead of in the home.

This is a rough sketch from memory of a plan outlined by Dr. Snedden, commissioner of education of Massachusetts. If it appeals to this board, I feel certain that he would come to Newport and present the details in a very forceful and instructive way.

In connection with this topic, it may be added that in New Britain, Conn., this plan in its general features has, for two or three years, been in operation, and that in Fitchburg in the model school of the normal school a similar plan is being followed.

Mr. Lull also read the report of Truant Officer Topham, which is as follows:

To the Honorable Public School Committee of the City of Newport:

I have the honor to submit the following as my report from February 9, 1914, to March 9, 1914. Number of cases investigated (reported by teachers), 107, number of cases of truancy (public 2, parochial 1), 3, number out for illness and other causes, 104, number of different children truants 3; number found not attending school, 5; number sent to public schools, 2; number of certificates issued (14-15 years), 3.

For the finance committee Mr. Cozzens presented the following report:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

S.

Rev. D. Porter, for the committee on teachers, offered the following report:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

Your committee on teachers makes the following recommendations and moves their adoption:

First, that Miss Florence T. Carr of Coddington III be given an extended leave of absence from February 27 to and including March 6, with one-third pay.

Second, that Miss Margaret F. O'Hanley's resignation, which was submited in January, be accepted to take effect Thursday, April 8, 1914.

Third, that Miss Sadie Bloch, a graduate of the Rogers High School in June, 1912, be elected in place of Miss O'Hanley for the remainder of this school year, at a salary of $340 per year, this election to take effect Monday, April 20, 1914.

Fourth, that Miss Dorothy M. Sayer, Rogers 1910, and Miss Winifred V. Sullivan, Rogers 1911, both graduates of the Rhode Island State Normal School in January, 1914, be elected assistants at $340 per year, these elections to take effect March 16, 1914.

Mr. Lull reported that Miss Carr has resumed her work. The report continues her leave of absence to include the week from the end of her former leave to the time she resumed her duties. The several items in the report were taken up individually and the board voted to do what the committee recommended in each case.

Mr. Cozzens gave a lengthy account of the action of the committee on finance in appearing in support of the recommendations of the committee before the Committee of Twenty-Five, and reported that all the School Committee asked had been granted. At the request of Mr. Titus, who made a personal inspection of the schoolhouses, $3,000 was added to the amount for repairs. After making this statement, he said he would amend by stating that the baths, which Mr. Sullivan favored, and the removal of part of the partition in the schoolrooms, which he favored had not been favorably acted on.

Mr. Lull read a letter from Edwin S. Burdick, executor of the estate of Mrs. J. M. K. Southwick, enclosing $2,000 on account for the Teachers' Retirement Fund, one of the three beneficiaries under the will. He stated that there would be more personal and the fund would then own a one-third interest in the real estate—on Mill street, on Willow street and in the Turner farm. Mr. Congdon said there are applicants for the Turner farm, who desire to lease it at once, and it seemed to the committee that it would be well for the trustees of the Teachers' Retirement Fund to come in touch with the trustees of the hospital in regard to such a lease, before the time is past.

Chairman Peckham suggested that some action might be taken on the matter brought out by Mr. Lull's report, but Mr. Lull thought it early. He wished to see the schools in New Britain before any action is taken. He had hoped to visit them before this, but unforeseen matters had always prevented, but he hoped to go soon. He thought it would be well to have Mr. Snedden come to Newport and explain his plan. It is evident that the nine-year schedule is a thing of the past. Taunton has just dropped it and other places are doing so. In the West there is only an eight-year schedule, except where it is seven years, and in one or two places, under peculiar conditions, it is six years.

Mr. Sullivan said the appointment of members of thenew recreation board would soon be announced and it seemed likely the first meetings of the board would be important and it would be well to have the School Committee represented. It would be well therefore to elect the committee's member of the new board at this meeting. He thought the logical candidate the man who had been chairman of the old committee on playgrounds and had given a great deal of attention to the matter. He therefore nominated Dr. Darrah to be the School Committee member of the new board of recreation. This nomination seemed to suit and Dr. Darrah was unanimously elected.

There being no further business, the board adjourned.

ITALIAN PARDONED AFTER FIFTY-TWO YEARS.

An old warrior who fought under Garibaldi has been granted a royal pardon for a murder he is alleged to have committed and is now free after 52 years of prison life. He is Corporal Vincenzo Romano.

"The cause of my misfortune," he says, "was a Bourbon spy, who passed into the service of Italy after I left Garibaldi in 1861. He denounced me as having evaded my regular conscript service. We had high words and he hit me with his gun, knocking out several teeth. In anger I unluckily exclaimed, 'When my recruiting days are over I'll come back and shoot you.' Somehow or other that man actually was riddled with gunshot shortly after my return from military service in 1863. Twenty days later I was arrested, tried and condemned to death, though the truth is I was an innocent victim of a tantalizing coincidence."

When the president of the assize court asked him if he had anything to say after his trial he said. "Gentlemen of the jury, I've fired thousands of shots on behalf of our country. Forgive me, then, this solitary shot which the prosecution says I fired on my own account."

THE EIGHT-YEAR SCHEDULE.

no artificial light is provided. By the use of lamps, darkness was made visible, but in spite of the shade a pleasing program and the usual refreshments were furnished. The program included a presentation of "Little Women."

Lincoln Memorial.

The schools contributed per capita of the average number belonging in the following order: Parish $2, Cranston $5.03, Potter $3.81, Callender $4.09, Calvert $5.26, Thayer $2.50, Coddington $8.19, Coggeshall $6.40, Mumford $5.07, Clarke $2.57, Lenthal $4.16, Carey $3.31, Rogers $3.07 total $55.15; total average, one and one-half cents each.

As the average number belonging is 3,471, it is evident that the total amount is only a cent and a half each. Therefore it is safe to say that no one felt any particular financial strain.

Richmond

The key-note of the national meeting of superintendents of schools was "the development of an intelligent producer and consumer," or some preferred "utilizer" in place of "consumer." To secure these results the rural schools are to be revolutionized along the line of applied domestic and manual arts and scientific agriculture. The rural school problems are not particularly applicable to Newport, although in some of the statistics the pupils in the Parish school were evidently considered "rural."

In schools like those of Newport the chief discussions centered about the increased length of the school day and year, the elimination of non-essential topics in some of the subjects, the increase of pre-vocational work, and especially on a re-division of the grades. There was a discouraging difference of opinion in regard to the details, but every one seemed to feel the need of a change. The two principal reasons were these: First, the pupils should have an opportunity to make more definite preparation for their life work as far as they can determine it at their immature age; and, second, they should have more contact with men teachers.

The best proposition (the author called it a prophecy) was this: In an eight-year course (not including the kindergarten) children would enter when six years old and the first six grades would be in small school districts, with women for both regular teachers and for principals. Here the curriculum would be the usual subjects, with especial emphasis on the fundamentals. Note that entrance at the age of six with an unbroken promotion would enable the pupils to reach the age for a working certificate at graduation from the grammar school (grade VIII.)

Grades VII and VIII would be gathered in central buildings under male principals and with other male teachers (perhaps half of the corps), so that every grammar school pupil would be assured of male teaching and influence before he went into the world of work. Although these central buildings would be devoted to grades VII and VIII, they would also receive the over-age pupils from the lower grades. This would be a relief to these grades and it would also permit the pupils to associate with their equals in age, even while they were doing more elementary work.

In these buildings would be concentrated the preparatory work, (1) for the high school, (2) for commercial life, (3) for mechanical work, and (4) for the home. Pupils would complete the fundamentals with history, drawing, music and physical training, and they would elect also other subjects pertaining directly to what they hoped to do later. Those who knew that they would go to the high school and thence to higher institutions would begin a modern language by the conversational method. Those who would go into commercial life would begin commercial arithmetic, geography and typewriting. Those who would go into mechanical work would devote half-time to the shop work. The girls would have the same time for domestic arts. To do this there must be a longer school session and year, especially for shop work, which would be less exhausting than book work. Furthermore, this longer day would enable the work to be done in school instead of in the home.

This is a rough sketch from memory of a plan outlined by Dr. Snedden, commissioner of education of Massachusetts. If it appeals to this board, I feel certain that he would come to Newport and present the details in a very forceful and instructive way.

In connection with this topic, it may be added that in New Britain, Conn., this plan in its general features has, for two or three years, been in operation, and that in Fitchburg in the model school of the normal school a similar plan is being followed.

Mr. Lull also read the report of Truant Officer Topham, which is as follows:

To the Honorable Public School Committee of the City of Newport:

I have the honor to submit the following as my report from February 9, 1914, to March 9, 1914: Number of cases investigated (reported by teachers), 107; number of cases of truancy (public 2, parochial 1), 3; number out for illness and other causes, 104; number of different children truants 3; number found not attending school, 5; number sent to public schools, 2; number of certificates issued (14-15 years), 3.

For the finance committee Mr. Cozzens presented the following report:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

Rev. D. Porter, for the committee on teachers, offered the following report:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

Your committee on teachers makes the following recommendations and advises their adoption:

First, that Miss Florence T. Carr of Coddington III be given an extended leave of absence from February 27 to and including March 6, with one-third pay.

Second, that Miss Margaret F. O'Hanley's resignation, which was submited in January, be accepted to take effect Thursday, April 3, 1914.

Third, that Miss Sadie Bloch, a graduate of the Rogers High School in June, 1912, be elected in place of Miss O'Hanley for the remainder of this school year, at a salary of $340 per year, this election to take effect Monday, April 20, 1914.

Fourth, that Miss Dorothy M. Sayer, Rogers 1910, and Miss Winifred V. Sullivan, Rogers 1911, both graduates of the Rhode Island State Normal School in January, 1914, be elected assistants at $340 per year, these elections to take effect March 16, 1914.

Mr. Lull reported that Miss Carr has resumed her work. The report continues her leave of absence to include the week from the end of her former leave to the time she resumed her duties. The several items in the report were taken up individually and the board voted to do what the committee recommended in each case.

Mr. Cozzens gave a lengthy account of the action of the committee on finance in appearing in support of the recommendations of the committee before the Committee of Twenty-Five, and reported that all the School Committee asked had been granted. At the request of Mr. Titus, who made a personal inspection of the schoolhouses, $3,000 was added to the amount for repairs. After making this statement, he said he would amend by stating that the baths, which Mr. Sullivan favored, and the removal of part of the partition in the schoolrooms, which he favored, had not been favorably acted on.

Mr. Lull read a letter from Edwin S. Burdick, executor of the estate of Mrs. J. M. K. Southwick, enclosing $2,000 on account for the Teachers' Retirement Fund, one of the three beneficiaries under the will. He stated that there would be more personal and the fund would then own a one-third interest in the real estate—on Mill street, on Willow street and in the Turner farm. Mr. Congdon said there are applicants for the Turner farm, who desire to lease it at once, and it seemed to the committee that it would be well for the trustees of the Teachers' Retirement Fund to come in touch with the trustees of the hospital in regard to such a lease, before the time is past.

Chairman Peckham suggested that some action might be taken on the matter brought out by Mr. Lull's report, but Mr. Lull thought it early. He wished to see the schools in New Britain before any action is taken. He had hoped to visit them before this, but unforeseen matters had always prevented, but he hoped to go soon. He thought it would be well to have Mr. Snedden come to Newport and explain his plan. It is evident that the nine-year schedule is a thing of the past. Taunton has just dropped it and other places are doing so. In the West there is only an eight-year schedule, except where it is seven years, and in one or two places, under peculiar conditions, it is six years.

Mr. Sullivan said the appointment of members of the new recreation board would soon be announced and it seemed likely the first meetings of the board would be important and it would be well to have the School Committee represented. It would be well therefore to elect the committee's member of the new board at this meeting. He thought the logical candidate the man who had been chairman of the old committee on playgrounds and had given a great deal of attention to the matter. He therefore nominated Dr. Darrah to be the School Committee member of the new board of recreation. This nomination seemed to suit and Dr. Darrah was unanimously elected.

There being no further business, the board adjourned.

ITALIAN PARDONED AFTER FIFTY-TWO YEARS.

An old warrior who fought under Garibaldi has been granted a royal pardon for a murder he is alleged to have committed and is now free after 52 years of prison life. He is Corporal Vincenzo Romano.

"The cause of my misfortune," he says, "was a Bourbon spy, who passed into the service of Italy after I left Garibaldi in 1861. He denounced me as having evaded my regular conscript service. We had high words and he hit me with his gun, knocking out several teeth. In anger I unluckily exclaimed, 'When my recruiting days are over I'll come back and shoot you.' Somehow or other that man actually was riddled with gunshot shortly after my return from military service in 1862. Twenty days later I was arrested, tried and condemned to death, though the truth is I was an innocent victim of a tantalizing coincidence."

When the president of the assize court asked him if he had anything to say after his trial he said: "Gentlemen of the jury, I've fired thousands of shots on behalf of our country. Forgive me, then, this solitary shot which the prosecution says I fired on my own account."

INDOOR HOCKEY IN FAVOR.

Whirlwinds in Little Danger of Being Overtaken in Recreation Contests.

Indoor hockey is the new feature game in the Recreation League at the Young Men's Christian Association, and in its first try-out proved an instant success Monday's events were the most closely contested for some time, while the members of the various teams turned out in large numbers to help their teams win, none of the matches being forfeited Besides the indoor hockey there were relay races and curtain ball contests

The indoor hockey game is played with seven men on a side, all being provided with wands which serve as hockey sticks The ball used is an indoor base ball, and takes the place of the puck in the ice game At the start the line-up is considerably changed, instead of the men scattered all about the hall, all the players on one team mass at one end of the gymnasium, while those of the opposing seven are lined up along the opposite wall At the referee's whistle both teams make a grand rush for the ball, and from then on playing is continuous until one side or the other scores a goal or a foul is called on any of the players for touching the ball with the hands Each game consisted of seven-minute halves

As a result of the events the Whirlwinds are in first place with 279½ points and so far ahead of the second team that there is no danger of being overtaken The Hurricanes are second with 190 points the Monsoons being third with 167½ while the Tornadoes are last with 131½

Keen rivalry and close contests featured both curtain ball games In a desperate rally the leading Whirlwind team won from the tail end Tornadoes by the close score of 21-19 The Monsoon-Hurricane test was nearly as close and fully as interesting the Monsoons winning by but five points 21-16

In the relay races the Hurricanes defeated the Tornadoes while the Whirlwinds wrested a victory from the Monsoons For best attendance the Hurricanes received three points and the Whirlwinds two

The first game of indoor hockey won favor as soon as it began There was not much opportunity for team work but the scrimmages were so lively that the players maintained a speedy pace all the way A feature was the excellent goal tending of the players assigned to those positions

During the first seven minutes in the Hurricane Whirlwind game the Hurricanes scored two points from the floor while the leading Whirlwind team tallied an equal number The Whirlwinds committed four fouls a point being awarded to the Hurricanes in this manner so that when the period ended the Hurricanes were leading by a close score of 3 2 In the second half the playing was even more close and the blocking harder Neither team could secure more than one goal the score for the half being tie at one each while the Hurricanes won 4-3

In the second hockey game the Tornadoes excelled the Monsoons in the first half but the latter came back strong and would have won had not fouls interfered with their score After some lively scrimmaging the Tornadoes managed to lead the first half by a 2 0 score but the Monsoons soon evened this in the second and then went one point ahead The Tornadoes tied the score at 3 all when time was called The referee decided that the Monsoons had lost a point because of fouls committed so that the Tornadoes won, 3-2. In the Seniors Live Discussion Club which is coached by Physical Director Slocum the subject for the evening was Damaged Goods'

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

Both Defendants Liable in Case of Kaiser vs. Andriesse and Mirman.

Judge Barrows presided and the trial of Kaiser vs Andriesse and Mirman was completed in the superior court Monday afternoon Judge Sullivan argued for defendant until 2 36 He claimed that it had not been proved that the words were on the back of the note before Mirman endorsed it Mr Burdick argued for plaintiff that both defendants were liable

The court charged, from 2 49 Counsel on both sides have seen fit to mention that Mr Kaiser is a citizen of Boston We are not concerned where a party comes from, the question of citizenship can be dismissed absolutely

The verdict must be for plaintiff for the full amount of the notes, plus interest $160 57 against Andriesse As to Mirman it is a question of pure fact The law is that an endorser must be notified if the principal fails to pay In this case the contest centers about the words 'waiving demand and notice If these words are on a note when it is endorsed the endorser need not be notified Witnesses swear these words were not there when the endorsement was made Witnesses for plaintiff swear they were Somebody is mistaken or has forgotten The words are there now with Mr Mirman's name If they were there when he signed he must pay The burden of proof is on plaintiff Who is telling the story which is most likely to be true? The jurors have seen the witnesses and must decide The decision of the district court has no bearing here

At 3 o clock Keeper Holmes led out the jury and the court withdrew

At 3 50 the court returned and the jury came back with the verdict for plaintiff against both defendants The court adjourned to 9 30 a m Wednesday

A WONDERFUL JEWESS.

Mary Antin's Life Begun in a Russian Pale Flowers in America.

[Ellery Sedgwick in American Magazine]

Mary Antin was 12 years old when she stepped out of the Old Testament into the new world A Jewish benevolent society made it possible for the family to emigrate to America The record of that journey preserved in letters written to her uncle—letters utterly beyond the precocity of any American child—is as romantic as the log of Columbus Then Boston burst upon her with the marvels of its multitude its Babel of voices and the rocking chairs in its kitchens—all blended in one monstrous incongruity in the child's imagination

The weight of ages fell from the family Liberty to go where they liked to attempt what they chose gave them intoxicating strength Regulations of the school board and tenement House Commissioner replaced the laws of Leviticus The father on peddling journeys through Russia had already lost his completeness of his faith Now as the old superstitions and habits and beliefs fell away altogether he embraced with a passion striking as a spiritual conversion the American religion of education Of this new faith Mary Antin has drawn an unforgettable picture—the immigrant Jew leading the procession of his children into the school room with reverence as though it were the Lord's temple bowing before the teacher as the High Priestess of the one true God and offering his homage in impossible English

The life of the family after those first years was the life which thousands millions indeed of immigrants have led before and after them They scraped and scrimped and scratched for a living the children getting food when they could but an education in any case To an American their most interesting characteristic perhaps besides their zeal for learning is their close organization as a family Of the children it soon became apparent that Mary was the most brilliant and the family submerged by poverty placed her as if by instinct at the apex of the wedge which they were driving steadily up into air and light and knowledge No sacrifice was to great no endurance too prolonged if Mary could be pushed farther toward the flying goal of progress Gradually the little anemic girl under-sized under-fed overworked mercifully delivered from consumption climbed from the foot to the head of her class through the primary grades through the high school and then thanks to the fortunate friendship of an admirable teacher into the companionship of superior and stimulating people

The friendships of those days laid the foundation of all that was to follow The famous Dr Hale lent the ... hand which was always ready and best of all Miss Josephine Lazarus poet and lover of the beautiful and good fed her spirit and shaped her high desires

SPEED AWAY

[Based on the Indian tradition that if a dove is released over the grave of one who has recently died it will carry messages from the living]

Speed away Speed away' on thine errand of light'
There's a young heart awaiting thy coming tonight
She will fondle thee close she will ask for the loved
Who pine upon earth since the 'Day Star' has roved
She will ask if we miss her so long is her stay
Speed away' Speed away' Speed away'

Wilt thou tell her bright songster the old chief is lone
That he sits all the day by his cheerless hearth stone
That his tomahawk lies all unnoted the while
And this thin lips wreathe over in one sunless smile
That the old chieftain mourns her and why will she stay?
Speed away' Speed away' Speed away'

And oh' wilt thou tell her blest bird on the wing
That her mother hath ever a sad song to sing
That she standeth alone in the still quiet night
And her fond heart goes forth for the being of light
Who had slept in her bosom but who would not stay?
Speed away Speed away' Speed away'

Go bird of the silver wing' fetterless now
Stoop not thy bright pinions on yon mountain's brow
But hie thee away o'er rock river and glen
And find our young Day Star ere night close again
Up' Onward! Let nothing thy mission delay
Speed away Speed away' Speed away

Much Valuable Matter Hidden Away in Government Publications

[Seattle Post Intelligencer]

A recent bulletin issued by the federal bureau of education states that there is a matter absolutely invaluable to the teachers of the country hidden away in the government publications which come yearly from the press The bureau has investigated and classified a portion of these publications giving a guide through which the teachers of the country may select those publications bearing pertinently on their work

It is a fact that scattered through the tons of publications printed at enormous expense to the public and carried free through the mails at heavy additional cost there is an immense amount of valuable information Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in collating this information and printing it but so far as the public for whose benefit it has been compiled is concerned it need never have been collated at all Few have the time and patience to select the grains of wheat out of the tons of chaff

A monumental work for example was that done by the monetary commission It gathered together and had printed a complete banking history of the world in many volumes There were studies of every banking system of ancient and modern times There were tomes written by experts It was all collated in order that the members of Congress who were to frame a banking currency bill could have the material with which to work It is doubtful whether there is in either house of Congress a single man who ever used the material either to aid in framing the bill or as a guide to intellectual criticism upon the bill which the House committee submitted

There seem no practical suggestions save that of the bureau of education how the public is to be guided so that any portion of it can make intelligent use of the vast masses of material printed ostensibly for the public benefit

INDOOR HOCKEY IN FAVOR.

Whirlwinds in Little Danger of Being Overtaken in Recreation Contests.

Indoor hockey is the new feature game in the Recreation League at the Young Men's Christian Association, and in its first try-out proved an instant success. Monday's events were the most closely contested for some time, while the members of the various teams turned out in large numbers to help their teams win, none of the matches being forfeited. Besides the indoor hockey there were relay races and curtain ball contests.

The indoor hockey game is played with seven men on a side, all being provided with wands which serve as hockey sticks. The ball used is an indoor base ball, and takes the place of the puck in the ice game. At the start the line-up is considerably changed; instead of the men scattered all about the hall, all the players on one team mass at one end of the gymnasium, while those of the opposing seven are lined up along the opposite wall. At the referee's whistle both teams make a grand rush for the ball, and from then on playing is continuous until one side or the other scores a goal, or a foul is called on any of the players for touching the ball with the hands. Each game consisted of seven-minute halves.

As a result of the events the Whirlwinds are in first place with 279¼ points, and so far ahead of the second team that there is no danger of being overtaken. The Hurricanes are second with 190 points, the Monsoons being third with 167½, while the Tornadoes are last with 131¼.

Keen rivalry and close contests featured both curtain ball games. In a desperate rally the leading Whirlwind team won from the tail-end Tornadoes by the close score of 21-19. The Monsoon-Hurricane test was nearly as close and fully as interesting, the Monsoons winning by but five points, 21-16.

In the relay races the Hurricanes defeated the Tornadoes, while the Whirlwinds wrested a victory from the Monsoons. For best attendance the Hurricanes received three points and the Whirlwinds two.

The first game of indoor hockey won favor as soon as it began. There was not much opportunity for team work, but the scrimmages were so lively that the players maintained a speedy pace all the way. A feature was the excellent goal tending of the players assigned to those positions.

During the first seven minutes in the Hurricane-Whirlwind game the Hurricanes scored two points from the floor, while the leading Whirlwind team tallied an equal number. The Whirlwinds committed four fouls, a point being awarded to the Hurricanes in this manner, so that when the period ended the Hurricanes were leading by a close score of 3-2. In the second half the playing was even more close and the blocking harder. Neither team could secure more than one goal, the score for the half being a tie at one each, while the Hurricanes won, 4-3.

In the second hockey game the Tornadoes excelled the Monsoons in the first half, but the latter came back strong and would have won had not fouls interfered with their score. After some lively scrimmaging the Tornadoes managed to lead the first half by a 2-0 score, but the Monsoons soon evened this in the second, and then went one point ahead. The Tornadoes tied the score at 3-all, when time was called. The referee decided that the Monsoons had lost a point because of fouls committed, so that the Tornadoes won, 3-2. In the Seniors' Live Discussion Club, which is coached by Physical Director Slocum, the subject for the evening was "Damaged Goods."

PASSES TO CORNELIUS.

The Fifth Avenue House Bequeathed to George W. Vanderbilt for Life.

Through the terms of the will of his grandfather, William H. Vanderbilt, who died December 8, 1885, Cornelius Vanderbilt, now that his uncle, George Washington Vanderbilt is dead, will inherit the house at Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street, New York, together with the art collection, which has been loaned to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The house, which is one of the most beautiful on Fifth avenue, was built by William H. Vanderbilt at a cost of $1,500,000, and extensive improvements have been made. The house was bequeathed to George W. Vanderbilt for life, with the stipulation that on his death it should go to his eldest son—if he had one. In the event of his leaving no male heir, the house and the objects of art were to go to the eldest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. He was William H. Vanderbilt, and he died when in his junior year at Yale. His brother, Cornelius, who was born September 5, 1873, now becomes the owner of that which would have gone to William.

Nine years ago the house was leased for 10 years to Henry Clay Frick, who still occupies it. There was a report at the time George Washington Vanderbilt leased the house to Mr. Frick that he had done so because the city insisted upon his tearing down a porte cochere which he was building in front of it. Recently, it is understood, Cornelius Vanderbilt had plans drawn for a house further north in Fifth avenue.

COAST ARTILLERY CHANGES

Assistants to Brigadier General Weaver Assigned to New Stations.

Several changes in assistants to Brigadier General Erasmus M. Weaver, chief of coast artillery, are announced. Major William Chamberlaine has been relieved and goes to the headquarters of the coast defenses of Boston for assignment as fort commander at Fort Andrews. Before going to Washington Major Chamberlaine was director of the department of artillery and land defenses at the Coast Artillery School. Major George Blakely and Major William E. Cole are also to be relieved in Washington April 1. The former will go to the coast defenses of Oahu, in the Hawaiian department, as fort commander at Fort De Russy, while the latter has been assigned to command the coast defenses of the Potomac.

Colonel John W. Ruckman, now on duty in the office of the chief of staff; Captain Archibald H. Sunderland, an instructor in the department of artillery and land defenses at the Coast Artillery School, and Captain Arthur [illegible], artillery engineer in the coast defenses of Portland, Maine, have been appointed assistants to the chief of coast artillery. Captain George P. Hawes, Jr., has been relieved from the Fifty-eighth company, at Fort Monroe, placed on the unassigned list, and will relieve Captain Fuller as an instructor at the Coast Artillery School.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

Both Defendants Liable in Case of Kaiser vs. Andriesse and Mirman.

Judge Barrows presided and the trial of Kaiser vs. Andriesse and Mirman was completed in the superior court Monday afternoon. Judge Sullivan argued for defendant until 2:36. He claimed that it had not been proved that the words were on the back of the note before Mirman endorsed it. Mr. Burdick argued for plaintiff, that both defendants were liable.

The court charged, from 2:49. Counsel on both sides have seen fit to mention that Mr. Kaiser is a citizen of Boston. We are not concerned where a party comes from; the question of citizenship can be dismissed absolutely.

The verdict must be for plaintiff for the full amount of the notes, plus interest, $160.57 against Andriesse. As to Mirman, it is a question of pure fact. The law is that an endorser must be notified if the principal fails to pay. In this case the contest centers about the words "waiving demand and notice." If these words are on a note when it is endorsed, the endorser need not be notified. Witnesses swear these words were not there when the endorsement was made. Witnesses for plaintiff swear they were. Somebody is mistaken, or has forgotten. The words are there now, with Mr. Mirman's name. If they were there when he signed he must pay. The burden of proof is on plaintiff. Who is telling the story which is most likely to be true? The jurors have seen the witnesses and must decide. The decision of the district court has no bearing here.

At 3 o'clock Keeper Homes led out the jury, and the court withdrew.

At 3:50 the court returned and the jury came back, with the verdict for plaintiff against both defendants. The court adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

A WONDERFUL JEWESS.

Mary Antin's Life Begun in a Russian Pale Flowers in America.

[Ellery Sedgwick, in American Magazine.]

Mary Antin was 12 years old when she stepped out of the Old Testament into the new world. A Jewish benevolent society made it possible for the family to emigrate to America. The record of that journey, preserved in letters written to her uncle—letters utterly beyond the precocity of any American child—is as romantic as the log of Columbus. Then Boston burst upon her, with the marvels of its multitude, its Babel of voices and the rocking chairs in its kitchens—all blended in one monstrous incongruity in the child's imagination.

The weight of ages fell from the family. Liberty to go where they liked, to attempt what they chose gave them intoxicating strength. Regulations of the school board and tenement House Commissioner replaced the laws of Leviticus. The father on peddling journeys through Russia had already lost the completeness of his faith. Now as the old superstitions and habits and beliefs fell away altogether, he embraced with a passion, striking as a spiritual conversion, the American religion of education. Of this new faith Mary Antin has drawn an unforgettable picture—the immigrant Jew, leading the procession of his children into the schoolroom with reverence as though it were the Lord's temple bowing before the teacher as the High Priestess of the one true God, and offering his homage in impossible English.

The life of the family after those first years was the life which thousands, millions indeed, of immigrants have led before and after them. They scraped and scrimped and scratched for a living, the children getting food when they could, but an education in any case. To an American their most interesting characteristic, perhaps besides their zeal for learning, is their close organization as a family. Of the children it soon became apparent that Mary was the most brilliant, and the family, submerged by poverty, placed her as if by instinct at the apex of the wedge which they were driving steadily up into air and light and knowledge. No sacrifice was to great, no endurance too prolonged if Mary could be pushed farther toward the flying goal of progress. Gradually the little anemic girl, under-sized, under-fed overworked, mercifully delivered from consumption, climbed from the foot to the head of her class, through the primary grades, through the high school, and then, thanks to the fortunate friendship of an admirable teacher, into the companionship of superior and stimulating people.

The friendships of those days laid the foundation of all that was to follow. The famous Dr. Hale lent her his hand which was always ready, and best of all, Miss Josephine Lazarus poet and lover of the beautiful and good, fed her spirit and shaped her high desires.

FEDERAL PRINTING.

Much Valuable Matter Hidden Away in Government Publications.

[Seattle Post-Intelligencer.]

A recent bulletin issued by the federal bureau of education states that there is a matter absolutely invaluable to the teachers of the country hidden away in the government publications which come yearly from the press. The bureau has investigated and classified a portion of these publications, giving a guide through which the teachers of the country may select those publications bearing pertinently on their work.

It is a fact that, scattered through the tons of publications printed at enormous expense to the public and carried free through the mails at heavy additional cost, there is an immense amount of valuable information. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in collating this information and printing it, but so far as the public, for whose benefit it has been compiled is concerned, it need never have been collated at all few have the time and patience to select the grains of wheat out of the tons of chaff.

A monumental work, for example was that done by the monetary commission. It gathered together and had printed a complete banking history of the world in many volumes There were studies of every banking system of ancient and modern times. There were tomes written by experts. It was all collated in order that the members of Congress, who were to frame a banking currency bill, could have the material with which to work. It is doubtful whether there is in either house of Congress a single man who ever used the material either to aid in framing the bill or as a guide to intellectual criticism upon the bill which the House committee submitted.

There seem no practical suggestions, save that of the bureau of education, how the public is to be guided so that any portion of it can make intelligent use of the vast masses of material printed, ostensibly for the public benefit.

Missouri manufactured more than 28,000,000 corncob pipes last year. A glance at the census of adult males shows that some mere boys must have been smoking—or else some suffragettes.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EXCLUSIVE ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE FOR NEWPORT.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station.

PUBLIC MONEY FOR PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

No question which will come before the Representative Council at its meeting Thursday evening surpasses in vital and far-reaching importance to the future welfare of Newport that which proposes an appropriation to aid in the support and maintenance of the parochial schools of the city. Much has been written for the columns of the News during the past two weeks on this subject, a large part of which has served only to becloud the main point and divert attention from the only issue before the people. For there is but one real question involved, and that is sharply defined. Shall public money be expended for parochial or private schools?

To this question there can be on the part of good American citizens but one answer, an unqualified "No" Such a proposition is subversive of one of the fundamental principles upon which this nation was established and on which its unparalleled prosperity has been based—the entire separation of state and church, not simply in matters of religion but also of education. If such a grant is made in one case, it must of course be made in all. Then we should have an inevitable influx of applications, and a resulting hodge-podge of sectarian education under municipal auspices which it is impossible to contemplate with feelings other than repugnance and derision. The argument along this line might be elaborated at length, and many others added thereto, but after all the whole discussion resolves itself into the one plain statement. The public money cannot rightfully be devoted to other than strictly public purposes.

As to the plea that the appropriation is to be used, not for the payment of teachers who shall give religious instruction, but for fuel, light, text-books and other similar matters, it is of course evident to any one that, once the grant is made, the money will go into one general fund, and all distinctions between payment for teachers and payment for other expenses incident to the schools will evaporate into thin air.

A point not yet raised in this particular local instance is that of the condition of the city's finances to meet any such appropriation. No provision for this expenditure has been made in the current budget and to make this grant will be impossible without either displacing needed improvements or adding materially to the tax rate, for neither of which think the people ready at this time. But that, after all, is only a side issue, and of comparative unimportance.

The Daily News, while early expressing its opposition to this proposition, has opened its columns, as ever, freely to each and every disputant on either side. We do not believe the thing ought to be done. We do not believe a large part of our fellow-citizens think it ought to be done. We are reluctant to believe a majority of the members of the Representative Council will vote that it shall be done, and if it should be done we are convinced that an injunction against the payment of public moneys for any such purpose would easily be secured and sustained in the courts. The proposition ought never to have been made, and the only proper thing to do with it is to vote it down, now, and settle the matter once for all.

UNIFORM MILK LEGISLATION.

That is a good suggestion made by Lieutenant Governor Burchard, that uniform laws regarding the purity, sale and distribution of milk be adopted by the southern New England states. It is wise because these states are closely associated in regard to this matter and should be deeply interested to have the same legislation regulating these points in force throughout this section. In some respects, indeed, it is idle to make milk laws for one of these states unless similar laws are made for adjacent states. Milk from one is carried into and sold in others close at hand, and therefore it is difficult to enforce laws in one state if similar legislation is not on the statute books of the others served by the same producers. It is easy to understand, for instance, how difficult and useless it would be to pass laws in Rhode Island to regulate the purity, sale and distribution of milk if similar laws were not in force in Massachusetts and Connecticut, from which part of the supply of this state is derived.

With uniform laws on this subject, however, it would be comparatively easy to control the character of the milk sold and delivered in any one state, even though much of the supply should be brought in from outside. This is really an interstate matter, because the people of adjacent commonwealths are interested, or ought to be, in the kind of milk sent over the border, and the methods of distribution and sale. It would be a good idea for the legislatures of the southern New England states to formulate some plan for representatives to consider legislation adapted to meet the conditions in this section, and recommend its adoption by the law-making bodies of all the commonwealths interested. In this way better laws would undoubtedly be secured in all the states affected by the arrangement, and they would be much more susceptible of successful and effective enforcement. Here is a good opportunity to obtain adequate milk laws which ought not to be neglected.

CARRANZA'S OPPORTUNITY.

Carranza has a double opportunity. On the one hand, his revolution is marking time. It has stopped its advance. Its further progress depends very largely on the attitude of foreign nations, and it will not receive any help or recognition from them unless it can protect life and property. Carranza has an opportunity to prove that he is at the head of a real government and not merely of armed bands of freebooters. At the same time he has the opportunity of settling the question whether he or Villa is the head of the revolution.

Very likely he would rather not raise that issue if he could help it, but it is in the way of being pressed upon him. Villa has been doing most of the fighting. The victories are his. With all his professed respect for the "first chief," he is not the man to acknowledge obedience to anybody. He is a freebooter who became a revolutionary leader because that gave him an opportunity to fight against the national government, which had tried to punish him for his crimes.

If Carranza is to remain at the head of a real constitutional movement it is time he demonstrated that he is the superior of Villa. For this reason and for its effect upon foreign governments, Carranza is believed to have undertaken a real investigation of the deaths of Bauch and Benton. The commission which he has created frankly expresses its suspicions that Bauch was murdered by the Constitutionalist commander at Juarez and Benton by a staff officer of Villa himself, and it is confidently asserted that if these suspicions shall be confirmed the murderers will be executed.

If Villa refuses to submit to this we shall have the revolution divided, and open war between Carranza and Villa, which will be the opportunity of Huerta. Carranza cannot remain at the head of the insurrection unless he can force the obedience of Villa and Villa's friends, and he can gain no foreign recognition, of which he is in great need, unless he has the power to exercise the functions of a civil government.

EXPERIMENTS IN DIRECT GOVERNMENT.

President Lowell of Harvard University has made a study of direct government in the preparation of his book on "Public Opinion and Popular Government" and some of the facts which he has collected indicate how impracticable it is to expect a large increase of political activity on the part of the generality of men. The objection to direct government is not that the voters are not competent to govern themselves. Colonel Roosevelt is the only person who could have invented that idea. The objection is that it is difficult to induce men to perform their political duties now, and useless to add to the number of these duties.

If voters were faithful and independent at the polls they could secure by representative government everything they could gain by direct government. As they are not particularly faithful and independent, they obtain better results from representative government than they could from direct, because the latter affords unusual opportunities to the faddists, the enthusiasts, the agitators, who would go and vote every month if they had the chance, while the great majority of persons find it something of an effort to go once in a year or two.

One of the votes which Dr. Lowell cites was decided by 17.4 per cent of the electorate against 17.2 per cent, two thirds of the voters taking no part in the contest. In another case the voters were even less numerous. There were 14.35 per cent on one side and 14.22 per cent on the other, and 71.43 per cent did not vote. There is no expression of public opinion in such cases as these and it would be better to have the matters disposed of by a legislature.

Most of the voters are interested enough to vote for candidates, but only a small proportion vote on constitutional changes, bond issues and other impersonal matters. The recall may sometimes serve a useful purpose, but most of our officials hold for short terms and can be replaced before they have done irreparable harm. The recall makes it possible for eight or ten per cent of the people to force the trouble and expense of another election, which many voters will neglect.

THE NEW RECREATION BOARD.

Mayor Boyle has selected a Recreation Board which represents various interests and will be generally commended by the citizens of Newport. Mr. George Gordon King is in especially close touch with the recreation ground movement and his recent gift of the King homestead for a public park makes him peculiarly well fitted for the board. Mr. Gatzenmeier has been in charge of the Boy Scouts since their establishment in Newport and knows better perhaps than any one the needs of the boys. Representative John B. Sullivan introduced in the legislature the act which created the board and Mr. Doherty has always shown a deep interest in the affairs of the city, and as president of the Father Mathew Society has done an excellent work for the young men of the community.

It is well that two women have been put on the board, as the playgrounds are used largely by girls and their interests should be cared for by women. The selecting of Miss Storer and Miss Franklin for places on the board is especially happy. These, with the mayor, Dr. Darrah of the School Committee and a member of the Park Commission yet to be selected will make an excellent body, who can be counted upon to look out for the interests of the city as well as those of the children and others who will use the playgrounds and playfields.

William Sulzer is trying to secure from the courts a decision which will enable him to resume the governorship of New York, or at least to receive the salary of the office. The supreme court having ruled against him, he has appealed to the appellate division. Then he proposes to go to the court of appeals, and finally to the Supreme Court of the United States. He probably will secure little satisfaction.

If public money is to be used for parochial schools, few people will see any difference between paying it in a lump sum or for specified items, such as "fuel, light, books of reference, free books and stationery, supplies, janitor services and incidentals for the schools of St. Mary, St. Joseph and St. Augustin."

President Wilson is confident that an agreement will be reached between the Attorney General's office and the officials of the New York New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company on the basis of the present negotiations and that the railroad company will not be forced to submit to a suit. Let us hope so.

The maple sugar growers are satisfied that the worst of the winter is over and are making preparations for the boiling. A few warm days will set the sap flowing, they say, and they propose to be ready for it. We shall all be ready for the resultant product.

The big meat men say the high prices in the past few years have so stimulated production that lower figures will prevail, for a year at least and possibly longer. Good!

Though the British premier has presented his Irish home rule bill concessions to the House of Commons, the question is not by any means settled.

No political party can derive much satisfaction from the Maine city elections, held Monday. In five cities these resulted in no change in party control.

Because the License Commission has been prodigal in the granting of licenses is no reason why the city should ask the General Assembly for more.

Mayor Boyle's efforts to close the little shops on Sunday meets hearty commendation from the citizens of Newport. It is a step in the right direction.

PORCELAIN HOUSES.

Perfectly Hygienic Buildings Can Be Erected in a Few Hours.

A home of porcelain, that can be erected with a screw driver and wrench in a few hours, is the plan of W. Hales Turner, who calls himself "the pioneer of porcelain," and who has explained to a London Daily Mirror reporter some details of his project.

"In the construction of the porcelain house," he said, "there is a complete absence of all absorbent materials, such as bricks and mortar, plaster, whitewash, concrete, woodwork and paper. The complete porcelain house is constructed as follows. Framework, preferably of light, rust-proof metal. In this framework are fitted the huge porcelain panels, half an inch thick, six feet long and three feet wide, weighing five pounds to the superficial foot, decorated and glazed on both sides to resist wind, storm and weather, with steam-tight joints, made of copper-coated asbestos tape.

"Porcelain is non-absorbent, insect and germ proof, fireproof and washable, and it makes possible for all a perfectly hygienic home. As for warmth—an inch-thick wall of pure porcelain glazed both sides is better able to keep out cold than an 18-inch brick wall. With bricks and mortar it takes months to erect a house, of, say, five rooms; a porcelain house of the same size can be put up in a few hours."

It was voted that Officers Northup Tobin, Palmer and Leary of Newport be given $5 each for their assistance in capturing and committing the hen thieves; also $5 each to Louis J. Corcoran and Borden C. Anthony.

In court of probate the first and final account of Benjamin L. Dennis guardian of the estate of Willard S. Brayton, was allowed and ordered recorded and the guardian was ordered to pay the balance in his hands to the administrators of the estate of Willard S. Brayton, and the surety on his bond was relieved from further liability.

The petition of George L. Greene, administrator of the estate of Charles A. Greene in Rhode Island, for leave to sell certain real estate belonging to the estate, was allowed; if sold at private sale, to be for not less than $1,000 for the first parcel, second parcel $2,000, third parcel $1,000. Bond is required in the sum of $5,000, with the Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland as surety.

The petition of Louisa F. Anthony, with the will of Henry Anthony, in which she is named as executor, asking for letters testamentary thereon was referred to April 13, with an order of notice in the Newport Daily News.

The Young People's Branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Monday afternoon with the president, Miss M. Finis Macomber, and transacted business as follows: It was voted to furnish the program for the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Tuesday evening March 17, at its annual thank offering service, to be held at the home of its president, Mrs. Eunice A. Greene, each member being permitted to invite a friend. The branch will also give an entertainment with speeches May 1. Delegates were chosen to the semi-annual convention in Providence, April 3.

Mr. Benjamin L. Dennis of Providence was guest Monday of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Brayton.

A surprise party was given Mr Andrew J. Durfee of Sprague street recently, the plan originating with his wife, who invited a number of relatives. Vocal and instrumental music furnished entertainment and a collation was served.

WOMEN STUDENTS IN GERMANY.

The number of women students at German universities has been nearly quadrupled during the past six years, according to figures announced; In the winter of 1908, when the doors of German universities were first fully thrown open to women, there were 1,108 women students enrolled; today there are 3,686 women taking regular courses, and as many more who are attending lectures. More than six per cent of the total number of students at the German universities are women. More than half of all the women are studying philosophy, language and history; somewhat more than one fourth are studying medicine, and more than one fifth natural sciences.

Nearly 400 of the women students are foreigners. Russia sends the largest number, and America the next. The women have for three years been going more to the non-Prussian universities. Liepzig and Munich, especially, have had large gains in that time, and the smaller institutions, like Jena, Wurzburg and Freiburg, have also made relatively large gains.

EXCLUSIVE ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE FOR NEWPORT.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.
The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station.

PUBLIC MONEY FOR PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

No question which will come before the Representative Council at its meeting Thursday evening surpasses in vital and far-reaching importance to the future welfare of Newport that which proposes an appropriation to aid in the support and maintenance of the parochial schools of the city. Much has been written for the columns of the News during the past two weeks on this subject, a large part of which has served only to becloud the main point and divert attention from the only issue before the people. For there is but one real question involved, and that is simply defined: Shall public money be expended for parochial or private schools?

To this question there can be on the part of good American citizens but one answer, an unqualified "No." Such a proposition is subversive of one of the fundamental principles upon which this nation was established and on which its unparalleled prosperity has been based—the entire separation of state and church, not simply in matters of religion but also of education. If such a grant is made in one case, it must of course be made in all. Then we should have an inevitable influx of applications, and a resulting hodge-podge of sectarian education under municipal auspices which it is impossible to contemplate with feelings other than repugnance and derision. The argument along this line might be elaborated at length, and many others added thereto, but after all the whole discussion resolves itself into the one plain statement: The public money cannot rightfully be devoted to other than strictly public purposes.

As to the plea that the appropriation is to be used, not for the payment of teachers who shall give religious instruction, but for fuel, light, text-books and other similar matters, it is of course evident to any one that, once the grant is made, the money will go into one general fund, and all distinctions between payment for teachers and payment for other expenses incident to the schools will evaporate into thin air.

A point not yet raised in this particular local instance is that of the condition of the city's finances to meet any such appropriation. No provision for this expenditure has been made in the current budget and to make this grant will be impossible without either displacing needed improvements or adding materially to the tax rate, for neither of which we think the people ready at this time. But that, after all, is only a side issue, and of comparative unimportance.

The Daily News, while early expressing its opposition to this proposition, has opened its columns, however, freely to each and every disputant on either side. We do not believe the thing ought to be done, we do not believe a large part of our fellow-citizens think it ought to be done, we are reluctant to believe a majority of the members of the Representative Council will vote that it shall be done, and if it should be done we are convinced that an injunction against the payment of public moneys for any such purpose would easily be secured and sustained in the courts. The proposition ought never to have been made, and the only proper thing to do with it is to vote it down, now, and settle the matter once for all.

UNIFORM MILK LEGISLATION.

That is a good suggestion made by Lieutenant Governor Burchard, that uniform laws regarding the purity, sale and distribution of milk be adopted by the southern New England states. It is wise because these states are closely associated in regard to this matter and should be deeply interested to have the same legislation regulating these points in force throughout this section. In some respects, indeed, it is idle to make milk laws for one of these states unless similar laws are made for adjacent states. Milk from one is carried into and sold in others close at hand, and therefore it is difficult to enforce laws in one state if similar legislation is not on the statute books of the others served by the same producers. It is easy to understand, for instance, how difficult and useless it would be to pass laws in Rhode Island to regulate the purity, sale and distribution of milk if similar laws were not in force in Massachusetts and Connecticut, from which part of the supply of this state is derived.

With uniform laws on this subject, however, it would be comparatively easy to control the character of the milk sold and delivered in any one state, even though much of the supply should be brought in from outside. This is really an interstate matter, because the people of adjacent commonwealths are interested, or ought to be, in the kind of milk sent over the border, and the methods of distribution and sale. It would be a good idea for the legislatures of the southern New England states to formulate some plan for representatives to consider legislation adapted to meet the conditions in this section, and recommend its adoption by the law-making bodies of all the commonwealths interested. In this way better laws would undoubtedly be secured in all the states affected by the arrangement, and they would be much more susceptible of successful and effective enforcement. Here is a good opportunity to obtain adequate milk laws which ought not to be neglected.

CARRANZA'S OPPORTUNITY.

Carranza has a double opportunity. On the one hand, his revolution is marking time. It has stopped its advance. Its further progress depends very largely on the attitude of foreign nations, and it will not receive any help or recognition from them unless it can protect life and property. Carranza has an opportunity to prove that he is at the head of a real government and not merely of armed bands of freebooters. At the same time he has the opportunity of settling the question whether he or Villa is the head of the revolution.

Very likely he would rather not raise that issue if he could help it, but it is in the way of being pressed upon him. Villa has been doing most of the fighting. The victories are his. With all his professed respect for the "first chief," he is not the man to acknowledge obedience to anybody. He is a freebooter who became a revolutionary leader because that gave him an opportunity to fight against the national government, which had tried to punish him for his crimes.

If Carranza is to remain at the head of a real constitutional movement it is time he demonstrated that he is the superior of Villa. For this reason and for its effect upon foreign governments, Carranza is believed to have undertaken a real investigation of the deaths of Bauch and Benton. The commission which he has created frankly expresses its suspicions that Bauch was murdered by the Constitutionalist commander at Juarez and Benton by a staff officer of Villa himself, and it is confidently asserted that if these suspicions shall be confirmed the murderers will be executed.

If Villa refuses to submit to this we shall have the revolution divided, and open war between Carranza and Villa, which will be the opportunity of Huerta. Carranza cannot remain at the head of the insurrection unless he can force the obedience of Villa and Villa's friends, and he can gain no foreign recognition, of which he is in great need, unless he has the power to exercise the functions of a civil government.

EXPERIMENTS IN DIRECT GOVERNMENT.

President Lowell of Harvard University has made a study of direct government in the preparation of his book on "Public Opinion and Popular Government" and some of the facts which he has collected indicate how impracticable it is to expect a large increase of political activity on the part of the generality of men. The objection to direct government is not that the voters are not competent to govern themselves; Colonel Roosevelt is the only person who could have invented that idea. The objection is that it is difficult to induce men to perform their political duties now, and useless to add to the number of these duties.

If voters were faithful and independent at the polls they could secure by representative government everything they could gain by direct government. As they are not particularly faithful and independent, they obtain better results from representative government than they could from direct, because the latter affords unusual opportunities to the faddists, the enthusiasts, the agitators, who would go and vote every month if they had the chance, while the great majority of persons find it something of an effort to go once in a year or two.

One of the votes which Dr. Lowell cites was decided by 17.4 per cent of the electorate against 17.2 per cent, two thirds of the voters taking no part in the contest. In another case the voters were even less numerous. There were 14.35 per cent on one side and 14.22 per cent on the other, and 71.43 per cent did not vote. There is no expression of public opinion in such cases as these, and it would be better to have the matters disposed of by a legislature.

Most of the voters are interested enough to vote for candidates, but only a small proportion vote on constitutional changes, bond issues and other impersonal matters. The recall may sometimes serve a useful purpose, but most of our officials hold for short terms and can be replaced before they have done irreparable harm. The recall makes it possible for eight or ten per cent of the people to force the trouble and expense of another election, which many voters will neglect.

THE NEW RECREATION BOARD.

Mayor Boyle has selected a Recreation Board which represents various interests and will be generally commended by the citizens of Newport. Mr. George Gordon King is in especially close touch with the recreation ground movement and his recent gift of the King homestead for a public park makes him peculiarly well fitted for the board. Mr. Gatzenmeier has been in charge of the Boy Scouts since their establishment in Newport and knows better perhaps than any one the needs of the boys. Representative John B. Sullivan introduced in the legislature the act which created the board and Mr. Doherty has always shown a deep interest in the affairs of the city, and as president of the Father Mathew Society has done an excellent work for the young men of the community.

It is well that two women have been put on the board, as the playgrounds are used largely by girls and their interests should be cared for by women. The selecting of Miss Storer and Miss Franklin for places on the board is especially happy. These, with the mayor, Dr. Darrah of the School Committee and a member of the Park Commission yet to be selected will make an excellent body, who can be counted upon to look out for the interests of the city as well as those of the children and others who will use the playgrounds and playfields.

William Sulzer is trying to secure from the courts a decision which will enable him to resume the governorship of New York, or at least to receive the salary of the office. The supreme court having ruled against him, he has appealed to the appellate division. Then he proposes to go to the court of appeals, and finally to the Supreme Court of the United States. He probably will secure little satisfaction.

If public money is to be used for parochial schools, few people will see any difference between paying it in a lump sum or for specified items, such as "fuel, light, books of reference, free books and stationery, supplies, janitor services and incidentals for the schools of St. Mary, St. Joseph and St. Augustin."

President Wilson is confident that an agreement will be reached between the Attorney General's office and the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company on the basis of the present negotiations and that the railroad company will not be forced to submit to a suit. Let us hope so.

The maple sugar growers are satisfied that the worst of the winter is over and are making preparations for the boiling. A few warm days will set the sap flowing, they say, and they propose to be ready for it. We shall all be ready for the resultant product.

The big meat men say the high prices in the past few years have so stimulated production that lower figures will prevail, for a year at least and possibly longer. Good!

Though the British premier has presented his Irish home rule bill concessions to the House of Commons, the question is not by any means settled.

No political party can derive much satisfaction from the Maine city elections, held Monday. In five cities these resulted in no change in party control.

Because the License Commission has been prodigal in the granting of licenses is no reason why the city should ask the General Assembly for more.

Mayor Boyle's efforts to close the little shops on Sunday meets hearty commendation from the citizens of Newport. It is a step in the right direction.

PORCELAIN HOUSES.

Perfectly Hygienic Buildings Can Be Erected in a Few Hours.

A home of porcelain, that can be erected with a screw driver and wrench in a few hours, is the plan of W. Hales Turner, who calls himself "the pioneer of porcelain," and who has explained to a London Daily Mirror reporter some details of his project.

"In the construction of the porcelain house," he said, "there is a complete absence of all absorbent materials, such as bricks and mortar, plaster, whitewash, concrete, woodwork and paper. The complete porcelain house is constructed as follows: Framework, preferably of light, rust-proof metal. In this framework are fitted the huge porcelain panels, half an inch thick, six feet long and three feet wide, weighing five pounds to the superficial foot, decorated and glazed on both sides to resist wind, storm and weather, with steam-tight joints, made of copper-coated asbestos tape.

"Porcelain is non-absorbent, insect and germ proof, fireproof and washable, and it makes possible for all a perfectly hygienic home. As for warmth—an inch-thick wall of pure porcelain glazed both sides is better able to keep out cold than an 18-inch brick wall. With bricks and mortar it takes months to erect a house of, say, five rooms; a porcelain house of the same size can be put up in a few hours."

Greene, each member being permitted to invite a friend. The branch will also give an entertainment with speeches May 1. Delegates were chosen to the semi-annual convention in Providence, April 3.

WOMEN STUDENTS IN GERMANY.

The number of women students at German universities has been nearly quadrupled during the past six years, according to figures announced; In the winter of 1908, when the doors of German universities were first fully thrown open to women, there were 1,108 women students enrolled; today there are 3,686 women taking regular courses, and as many more who are attending lectures. More than six per cent of the total number of students at the German universities are women. More than half of all the women are studying philosophy, language and history; somewhat more than one fourth are studying medicine, and more than one fifth natural sciences.

Nearly 400 of the women students are foreigners. Russia sends the largest number, and America the next. The women have for three years been going more to the non-Prussian universities. Liepzig and Munich, especially, have had large gains in that time, and the smaller institutions, like Jena, Wurzburg and Freiburg, have also made relatively large gains.

MIX-UP AT THE BOAT.

Celebrants Set Off Red Fire and Resist Railroad Police at Dock.

There was a mix-up at the New York boat landing Monday night which will probably land some one in court. Some one set off red fire on the dock, and as that is against the rules Dockmaster Jordan warned the celebrants to desist. Some one hit him with a horn and some one hit Mr. Andrews Mr Andrews is only a private citizen, but J. A. Jordan is the railroad police at the dock and is in charge for the company, to see that the company's rules are obeyed. Of course the company is behind him.

Officer Eckhardt and the patrol were sent to the north end of Third street about 5:30 Monday on a report that there was a dead horse there. They found a dead horse, but it was not on the highway and so did not need to have a lantern placed to mark it. According to what could be learned the horse belonged to Mrs. Smith, and came to its death apparently from stepping on a buried wire. There is a pole close by and a pipe shows that wires have been carried down, and it is supposed the horse stepped on a wire and received a shock which caused death. Superintendent Gosling does not think so, but the fact that the horse died suddenly seems to impress other folks.

This morning the police had one man for drunkenness, who was fined $2 and costs and failed to find either the fine or the costs, so it was really a jail sentence. Two girls, or young women, one 16, and the other 21, were picked up this morning, charged with night walking. They were placed on probation.

THREE FUNERALS.

Full Military Honors Accorded the Body of Young Mayer.

The funeral of Ship's Cook Perry H. Mayer was held from St. George's Church this afternoon, with interment in the Island cemetery. Full military honors were accorded the body the Training Station band, bugler, firing party, body bearers and official mourners being sent over to perform this duty. The body was received from the home of his mother on Spring street and many relatives and friends attended the service at the church, which was of the simple Protestant Episcopal form, with the organ as the only music. The News has been requested to state that, as a result of nervous breakdown, the deceased had been in the hospital at Washington since last July.

The funeral of Robert J. Henderson took place this afternoon from the residence of his daughter-in-law, Mrs William H. Henderson, on Butler street, Rev. Joseph Cooper of the First Methodist Episcopal Church officiating. The burial was in the family plot in the Island cemetery. There were no bearers.

A private funeral service for Charles E. Thurston was held this afternoon at his late residence on Tilley avenue, followed by the interment service at the grave in the Old cemetery, Rev. Charles F. Beattie, rector of St. John's Church, officiating. There were no bearers.

A VITAL STORY.

Return Engagements of the Dawn of Plenty Always the Rule.

The Dawn of Plenty, a fascinating story of Bread in moving pictures and colored views, which will be presented in the Young Men's Christian Association hall Monday evening is a vital story of the growth of business in the great Northwest This production has been given in many cities throughout the country during the past few years and return engagements are almost the rule.

The Dawn of Plenty was given by the Emmanuel Church Men's Club a few months ago and some of the committee in charge of that event will assist in promoting this return engagement at the Young Men's Christian Association Mr Arthur B. Commerford says it is the best educational and at the same time the most entertaining picture film on the road today.

These pictures show the evolution of agriculture, which was the first industry, but the last to be developed. City and country folks are equally interested in the Dawn of Plenty The many facts presented show the picturesque side of American life which accompanies the struggle for enough bread to feed the toilers.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. Joseph F. Stone has returned to New York.

—Messrs. John B. F. Smith and Whitman Hall have gone to Washington on a pleasure trip.

—Mrs. O. E. Butler left Monday evening for Philadelphia, where she will join her husband, Gunner Butler.

—After a short lay-off, due to the snow, the boys have resumed marbles This is a sure sign of spring. Also a few have been seen practicing base ball

—Bernie Gilmore of Providence was guest of James J. O'Connell on Channing street Monday, coming here to participate in the send-off for Ralph O'Connell.

—The committee on widening Thames street had a meeting Monday evening and that on widening Bath road will have a meeting Thursday before the Council session.

—The schedule of the base ball team of the Morris Heights School of Providence contains a game with St George's School, to be played April 22 on the school athletic field in Middletown.

—That the snow and ice have not entirely disappeared from every street is a fact some drivers appreciate, and ex-Alderman Shapley is one of them after his experience on Long wharf this morning. Part of the pavement has been clear for some time, but there is still ice in places.

—At the athletic meet in Worcester, Mass., Monday evening under the auspices of the Emmet Guards, Allan Langley of this city, representing Brown University, finished third in the mile run. The Brown runners took one first, one second and two thirds in three events.

—Champion Brothers were the only ones who brought in any fish Monday [illegible] pounds. They are out again today and so are others, some of whom returned early because it was too rough. Some of C. B. Tallman's boats went in Monday and more will go in if the wind lets up a trifle.

NEW RECREATION BOARD NAMED.

Miss Storer, Miss Franklin and Mr. Doherty for One-Year Period.

George Gordon King, John B. Sullivan, A. R. C. Gatzenmeier for Long Term.

Mayor Boyle has appointed the members of the newly created Recreation Board, which is to have charge of the playgrounds and the playfields in accordance with the act recently passed by the General Assembly. The members are to serve two years, but the first appointees are divided into two classes, one half to serve one year and the others for the full term. The three who will fill the one-year term are Miss Agnes C. Storer, Miss Ruth E. Franklin and Daniel E. Doherty. Those who are on the two-year term are George Gordon King, John B. Sullivan and A. R. C. Gatzenmeier.

In addition, the mayor is ex-officio a member, as is one member of the School Committee, Dr. Darrah being elected Monday evening to represent that body, and so will be a member of the Park Commission yet to be selected. This will give a board of nine members, to take charge of the play work carried on for the past few years by the School Committee and the play field work made necessary by the purchase of the two big playgrounds.

POLICE STATION PLANS.

Apparently the Committee and Now Ready for Aldermen.

This noon the committee on the new police station held a meeting at which it approved plans and prepared to report to the Board of Aldermen Wednesday evening, at which time that body is exected to approve the plans, that they may be presented to the Representative Council Thursday evening. Mayor Boyle and Architect Stevens met with the committee and the plans were gone over in detail, though in reality the committee had some time since approved the layout of the floor plans of the new structure and it has been the exterior design which has been troubling them of late

After the meeting Aldermen Kirby and Kelly were out in the bleak air, looking at brick as it appears in buildings which have been exposed to the weather. They have seen and heard some things about the soft brick in the schoolhouses, which chips off every time Jack Frost breathes on them, and they have looked at the Young Men's Christian Association and the Armour building, as two structures which seem to have a hard brick that does not need constant repairs.

A STORY BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

To the Editor of the News:

The letter in yesterday's issue, headed "Intention of Petition," reminds me of the story of the Irish cabby, who invited a friend for a drive, and then claimed a fare. Protest being made, he said: "Sure, I'm charging nothing for the drive, just a little for axle grease to keep the wheels moving." Sorry to relate many of us have never come within sight of the "blarney stone," far less kissed it. It will be hard for us to appreciate such an argument.

Amused.

Newport, March 10, 1914.

RURAL SCENES IN THE CITY.

There was a somewhat rural scene on Broadway this morning, when a cow, part of a shipment coming in town, went into Easterbrook's market and made herself at home. She was going into the old ice box, out was easily persuaded to go out and join the rest of the party. When she came on Thames street she had the same shopping instincts, but finally the outfit reached Ferry wharf.

Then three big loads of hay, passing through Thames street at the noon hour, gave another touch of country to the scene. Also it gave horses a chance which they did not neglect to grab a mouthful as they passed. Three loads give a horse a chance: one load is often past before the horse wakes up to what is passing.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Anthony, who have been spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Boynton, in Arizona, have returned to their home here.

Mrs. H. J. Rhett of Newport and Washington has arrived at her cottage here for the summer.

The flags on steamer Beaver Tail are half-masted on account of the death of Mr. A. H. Peckham, presidnt of the board of directors of the ferry company.

Dr. Thomas G. Coates came to Jamestown Sunday with Mr. William H Jones from Philadelphia, where the latter had been to consult physicians about his eyes. He found no relief and none is promised. Mr. Jones has been steward of the Jamestown club 21 years and was steward for a time of the Miantonomi club, Newport. Dr. Coates returned, by the night boat to Philadelphia.

The members of the Bayside club had an oyster stew at their quarters on Knowles court Monday evening, after which the first round in the fourth series of whists was played, the teams being made up as follows: No. 1, G L. Chandler and J. Schleith, W. H. Brooks and Alton Head, A. A. Boone substitute; No. 2, L. W. Anthony and I. H. Clarke, Alonzo Tefft and J. C. Tefft, W. A. Clarke substitute; No. 3, Frederic Anthony and Peter Blackwell, G. D. Anthony and N. S. Littlefield, J. H. Tefft substitute. The score for the evening was No. 1, 48; No. 2, 59; No. 3, 63.

Mrs. Jane Reynolds, who has been guest of Mr and Mrs Lewis Burdick has returned to her home in Westerly.

C. E. Weeden has rented for the estate of Admiral D. D. Porter the furnished cottage on Walcott avenue, to F. H. Levey of Elizabeth, N. J., for the coming season. Mr. Levey and family are among the most constant summer visitors to the island.

TO PLAY FAST FIVE.

Rogers Must Defend Championship Against the Fall River Tech.

Rogers will be called upon to defend its basket ball championship Wednesday evening against the Fall River Technical High School team, without doubt the fastest five it will meet this season. Fall River Tech has been claiming the championship of Massachusetts for a long time, and has an excellent record of 16 victories with but two defeats. As Rogers postponed the game with Technical earlier in the season, the Fall River outfit is confident of defeating Rogers, and thereby wresting away from them the hard won championship. As most of the Boston papers, recognize Fall River's claims as Massachusetts champions as being as good as that defeat them in order successfully to defend the title.

Fall River Tech defeated Holliston on the latter's own floor last Saturday evening by the score of 24-17, this being one point better than Rogers beat the same team on the Rogers floor. Technical and Turners Falls are even in their series of three games, Turners Falls having won the first contest by the overwhelming score of 51-23, while Technical came back with a 31-21 victory in Fall River.

Rogers' claims are much better than Technical's for the championship of both states, as Rogers defeated Wellesley, winner of the Greater Boston Interscholastic Basket Ball League, while Technical was beaten by Quincy, which finished a poor second to Wellesley, the latter having won eight games and lost none, while Quincy won five and lost three. The Quincy-Technical game resulted in a 24-22 victory for Quincy.

In explation of their defeat it may be said that the Fall River team at the time was playing without the services of Enright, one of their regular guards. O'Neill, who took his place, played a very weak game in Quincy, as his man, Bates, scored every one of Quincy's points, seven goals from the floor and 10 goals from the foul line, beating Tech alone.

In Hibbert and Sweeney the Fall River team has two very fast forwards, Hibbert being a wizard in shooting, while Sweeney is a fine floor man The ability of "Sammy" Markelevitch at centre need not be enlained as he is acknowledged to be one of the fastest in New England and is the life of the Technical five and the heart of their back field. In the back field Tech has dangerous shots in both "Chocky" Markelevitch and "Barney" Enright, brother of the famous Exeter player and former B. M. C. Durfee star.

To oppose this speedy combination Coach Harvey has six players in the pink of condition. Cottrell and Arnold are much faster than Hibbert and Sweeney in the forward line, while Captain Marshall will make "Sammy" Markelevitch know that he has struck his equal, if not his better, for the first time this season. In the back field Connolly is a better shot than either Enright or the younger Markelevitch, while Lee plays the covering game in more finished form than either of these two players

As it will be the last big game of the season in Newport, Manager Sweeney will make arrangements for an extra large crowd. The return game is to be played in Fall River March 20.

NEW COAL TRUCK.

Automobile for Almy Company Powerful and Convenient.

The Abram Almy Coal Company this morning received a new Chase automobile truck for carrying coal. The new apparatus has a capacity of three tons, double the old truck in use for some time, and is a much more pretentious-looking vehicle. It is painted yellow and dark brown and the driver's seat is upholstered and provided with a top and curtains for protection from the wintry blasts. The engine is of 40 horse power and the exhibition given of the power of the car has been satisfactory, while the accommodations for the driver have met with strong commendation from those who know the need there is for protection on long trips.

SERVICE AT MAYFAIR.

Funeral of Frederick Martin Attended by a Large Number.

LONDON, March 10.—A funreal service for the late Frederick Townsend Martin of New York, who died here Sunday, was held today in Christ Church, Mayfair. It was conducted by Reverend Ernest Hilliard, the vicar. There was a large attendance of friends of the deceased and the church was filled with floral pieces. Among those present were the Earl of Craven, the Countess of Craven, who was Cornelia Martin, daughter of the late Bradley Martin; Viscount Uffington, the Earl of Howe, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, Mrs. Bradley Martin and Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, who was Mary Ethel Burns of New York.

BISHOP GREER PRESIDES.

Body of George Vanderbilt Interred at Staten Island.

NEW YORK, March 10.—The body of George W. Vanderbilt was laid at rest today in the family mausoleum in the Moravian Cemetery at New Dorp, Staten Island, near the old Vanderbilt residence, where he was born 52 years ago. Rt. Rev. David H Greer, Episcopal bishop of New York, conducted a brief service at the tomb.

WIRELESS ON THE DOCK.

Local Station to be Established for the New York Boats.

This morning from New York on the boat came a section of wireless outfit and a number of men interested in the Fessenden Wireless Telegraph It was not known on the dock just what they came for, but later it was learned that they were to attach antennae to the top of the big derrick and have a shore end, to which the New York boats could communicate direct, instead of as at present through the naval radio station. The Fessenden is the system at present used on the steamers of the company and there are land stations at Watch Hill, Stonington and Brooklyn. Now there is to be one at this end of the route. At least, that is what it looks like just now.

ADDRESS ON MEXICO REPEATED.

Before the Bradley Chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church Monday evening, Mr. B. F. Thurston repeated the address on the Mexican situation which he gave last week before the Brotherhood of the Second Baptist Church Naturally many of the same facts were stated and the same conclusions reached, the address following in outline that of the week previous. At the close there was a somewhat general discussion of the subject, with questions and answers. A rising vote of thanks was given the speaker and the usual light refreshments were served. The evening, including the business session, was in charge of the president, Mr. T. Fred Kaull.

A VITAL STORY.

Return Engagements of the Dawn of Plenty Always the Rule.

The Dawn of Plenty, a fascinating story of Bread in moving pictures and colored views, which will be presented in the Young Men's Christian Association hall Monday evening is a vital story of the growth of business in the great Northwest This production has been given in many cities throughout the country during the past few years and return engagements are almost the rule.

The Dawn of Plenty was given by the Emmanuel Church Men's Club a few months ago and some of the committee in charge of that event will assist in promoting this return engagement at the Young Men's Christian Association Mr Arthur B. Commerford says it is the best educational and at the same time the most entertaining picture film on the road today.

These pictures show the evolution of agriculture, which was the first industry, but the last to be developed. City and country folks are equally interested in the Dawn of Plenty The many facts presented show the picturesque side of American life which accompanies the struggle for enough bread to feed the toilers.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. Joseph F. Stone has returned to New York.

—Messrs. John B. F. Smith and Whitman Hall have gone to Washington on a pleasure trip.

—Mrs. O. E. Butler left Monday evening for Philadelphia, where she will join her husband, Gunner Butler.

—After a short lay-off, due to the snow, the boys have resumed marbles. This is a sure sign of spring. Also a few have been seen practicing base ball.

—Bernie Gilmore of Providence was guest of James J. O'Connell on Channing street Monday, coming here to participate in the send-off for Ralph O'Connell.

—The committee on widening Thames street had a meeting Monday evening and that on widening Path road will have a meeting Thursday before the Council session.

—The schedule of the base ball team of the Morris Heights School of Providence contains a game with St. George's School, to be played April 22 on the school athletic field in Middletown.

—That the snow and ice have not entirely disappeared from every street is a fact some drivers appreciate, and ex-Alderman Shepley is one of them after his experience on Long wharf this morning. Part of the pavement has been clear for some time, but there is still ice in places.

—At the athletic meet in Worcester, Mass., Monday evening under the auspices of the Emmet Guards, Allan E. Langley of this city, representing Brown University, finished third in the mile run. The Brown runners took one first, one second and two thirds in three events.

—Champion Brothers were the only ones who brought in any fish Monday [illegible] pounds. They are out again today and so are others, some of whom returned early because it was too rough. Some of C. B. Tallman's boats went in Monday and more will go in, if the wind lets up a trifle.

NEW RECREATION BOARD NAMED.

Miss Storer, Miss Franklin and Mr. Doherty for One-Year Period.

George Gordon King, John B. Sullivan, A. R. C. Gatzenmeier for Long Term.

Mayor Boyle has appointed the members of the newly created Recreation Board, which is to have charge of the playgrounds and the playfields in accordance with the act recently passed by the General Assembly. The members are to serve two years, but the first appointees are divided into two classes, one half to serve one year and the others for the full term. The three who will fill the one-year term are Miss Agnes C. Storer, Miss Ruth B. Franklin and Daniel E. Doherty. Those who are on the two-year term are George Gordon King, John B. Sullivan and A. R. C. Gatzenmeier.

In addition, the mayor is ex-officio a member, as is one member of the School Committee, Dr. Darrah being elected Monday evening to represent that body, and so will be a member of the Park Commission yet to be selected. This will give a board of nine members, to take charge of the play work carried on for the past few years by the School Committee and the play field work made necessary by the purchase of the two big playgrounds.

POLICE STATION PLANS.

Apparently the Committee and Now Ready for Aldermen.

This noon the committee on the new police station held a meeting at which it approved plans and prepared to report to the Board of Aldermen Wednesday evening, at which time that body is exected to approve the plans, that they may be presented to the Representative Council Thursday evening. Mayor Boyle and Architect Stevens met with the committee and the plans were gone over in detail, though in reality the committee had some time since approved the layout of the floor plans of the new structure and it has been the exterior design which has been troubling them of late.

After the meeting Aldermen Kirby and Kelly were out in the bleak air, looking at brick as it appears in buildings which have been exposed to the weather. They have seen and heard some things about the soft brick in the schoolhouses, which chips off every time Jack Frost breathes on them, and they have looked at the Young Men's Christian Association and the Armour building, as two structures which seem to have a hard brick that does not need constant repairs.

A STORY BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

To the Editor of the News:

The letter in yesterday's issue, headed "Intention of Petition," reminds me of the story of the Irish cabby, who invited a friend for a drive, and then claimed a fare. Protest being made, he said: "Sure, I'm charging nothing for the drive, just a little for axle grease to keep the wheels moving." Sorry to relate many of us have never come within sight of the "blarney stone," far less kissed it. It will be hard for us to appreciate such an argument.

Amused.

Newport, March 10, 1914.

RURAL SCENES IN THE CITY.

There was a somewhat rural scene on Broadway this morning, when a cow, part of a shipment coming in town, went into Easterbrook's market and made herself at home. She was going into the old ice box, but was easily persuaded to go out and join the rest of the party. When she came on Thames street she had the same shopping instincts, but finally the outfit reached Ferry wharf.

Then three big loads of hay, passing through Thames street at the noon hour, gave another touch of country to the scene. Also it gave horses a chance which they did not neglect to grab a mouthful as they passed. Three loads give a horse a chance; one load is often past before the horse wakes up to what is passing.

TO PLAY FAST FIVE.

Rogers Must Defend Championship Against the Fall River Tech.

Rogers will be called upon to defend its basket ball championship Wednesday evening against the Fall River Technical High School team, without doubt the fastest five it will meet this season. Fall River Tech has been claiming the championship of Massachusetts for a long time, and has an excellent record of 16 victories with but two defeats. As Rogers postponed the game with Technical earlier in the season, the Fall River outfit is confident of defeating Rogers, and thereby wresting away from them the hard won championship. As most of the Boston papers, recognize Fall River's claims as Massachusetts champions as being as good as that defeat them in order successfully to defend the title.

Fall River Tech defeated Holliston on the latter's own floor last Saturday evening by the score of 24-17, this being one point better than Rogers beat the same team on the Rogers floor. Technical and Turners Falls are even in their series of three games, Turners Falls having won the first contest by the overwhelming score of 51-23, while Technical came back with a 31-21 victory in Fall River.

Rogers' claims are much better than Technical's for the championship of both states, as Rogers defeated Wellesley, winner of the Greater Boston Interscholastic Basket Ball League, while Technical was beaten by Quincy, which finished a poor second to Wellesley, the latter having won eight games and lost none, while Quincy won five and lost three. The Quincy-Technical game resulted in a 24-22 victory for Quincy.

In explation of their defeat it may be said that the Fall River team at the time was playing without the services of Enright, one of their regular guards. O'Neill, who took his place, played a very weak game in Quincy, as his man, Bates, scored every one of Quincy's points, seven goals from the floor and 10 goals from the foul line, beating Tech alone.

In Hibbert and Sweeney the Fall River team has two very fast forwards, Hibbert being a wizard in shooting, while Sweeney is a fine floor man The ability of "Sammy" Markelevitch at centre need not be enlained as he is acknowledged to be one of the fastest in New England and is the life of the Technical five and the heart of their back field. In the back field Tech has dangerous shots in both "Chocky" Markelevitch and "Barney" Enright, brother of the famous Exeter player and former B. M. C. Durfee star.

To oppose this speedy combination Coach Harvey has six players in the pink of condition. Cottrell and Arnold are much faster than Hibbert and Sweeney in the forward line, while Captain Marshall will make "Sammy" Markelevitch know that he has struck his equal, if not his better, for the first time this season. In the back field Connolly is a better shot than either Enright or the younger Markelevitch, while Lee plays the covering game in more finished form than either of these two players.

As it will be the last big game of the season in Newport, Manager Sweeney will make arrangements for an extra large crowd. The return game is to be played in Fall River March 20.

NEW COAL TRUCK.

Automobile for Almy Company Powerful and Convenient.

The Abram Almy Coal Company this morning received a new Chase automobile truck for carrying coal. The new apparatus has a capacity of three tons, double the old truck in use for some time, and is a much more pretentious-looking vehicle. It is painted yellow and dark brown and the driver's seat is upholstered and provided with a top and curtains for protection from the wintry blasts. The engine is of 40 horse power and the exhibition given of the power of the car has been satisfactory, while the accommodations for the driver have met with strong commendation from those who know the need there is for protection on long trips.

LONDON, March 10.—A funreal service for the late Frederick Townsend Martin of New York, who died here Sunday, was held today in Christ Church, Mayfair. It was conducted by Reverend Ernest Hilliard, the vicar. There was a large attendance of friends of the deceased and the church was filled with floral pieces. Among those present were the Earl of Craven, the Countess of Craven, who was Cornelia Martin, daughter of the late Bradley Martin; Viscount Uffington, the Earl of Howe, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, Mrs. Bradley Martin and Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, who was Mary Ethel Burns of New York.

BISHOP GREER PRESIDES.

Body of George Vanderbilt Interred at Staten Island.

NEW YORK, March 10.—The body of George W. Vanderbilt was laid at rest today in the family mausoleum in the Moravian Cemetery at New Dorp, Staten Island, near the old Vanderbilt residence, where he was born 52 years ago. Rt. Rev. David H Greer, Episcopal bishop of New York, conducted a brief service at the tomb.

WIRELESS ON THE DOCK.

Local Station to be Established for the New York Boats.

This morning from New York on the boat came a section of wireless outfit and a number of men interested in the Fessenden Wireless Telegraph. It was not known on the dock just what they came for, but later it was learned that they were to attach antennae to the top of the big derrick and have a shore end, to which the New York boats could communicate direct, instead of as at present through the naval radio station. The Fessenden is the system at present used on the steamers of the company and there are land stations at Watch Hill, Stonington and Brooklyn. Now there is to be one at this end of the route. At least, that is what it looks like just now.

ADDRESS ON MEXICO REPEATED.

Before the Bradley Chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church Monday evening, Mr. B. F. Thurston repeated the address on the Mexican situation which he gave last week before the Brotherhood of the Second Baptist Church. Naturally many of the same facts were stated and the same conclusions reached, the address following in outline that of the week previous. At the close there was a somewhat general discussion of the subject, with questions and answers. A rising vote of thanks was given the speaker and the usual light refreshments were served. The evening, including the business session, was in charge of the president, Mr. T. Fred Kaull.

TRUST LEGISLATION.

Postoffice, Army and Other Administrative Bills Occupy Much Time.

Taft Finds Mexican Crisis Still in Evidence—The Postmaster General's Honesty.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Both houses of Congress have shown a disposition to "speed up" a little with the appropriation bills, and it might be possible to get these supply bills through before the middle of June. Such will not be the case, however, if the Senate takes as much time on the other bills as it has taken on the postoffice bill. Such measures as the postoffice, army and other administrative bills take a great deal of time. Any measure that affects conditions throughout the whole country usually requires considerable discussion. On that account the agricultural appropriation bill will occupy Congress for several days.

President Wilson no doubt thought it was a troublesome period of his administration when he put through the tariff and currency bills. But that period of his administration was a summer vacation compared to the enactment of the trust legislation. The President has found more real difficulty in getting workable trust bills than anything he has yet attempted.

It was Vice President Marshall who recommended that "the patient be given a rest for a time" and that the trust legislation be postponed to the future, but President Wilson is not the kind that postpones legislation that he wants to have passed.

There has been some speculation as to what ex-President Taft was thinking about while he was lunching with President Wilson less than a year from the time he left the White House. One thing that must have occurred to him was the fact that the legacy known as the Mexican situation, which Taft had left to Wilson, was still in evidence. President Taft told somebody how relieved he was to lay down the responsibility of the Presidential office. He was certainly relieved to get rid of the Mexican situation.

During discussion of the parcel post provision in the postoffice bill the Senators who were trying to restrict the actions of the Postmaster General were charged with determination to "cripple the parcel post." Frequently they would be asked by other Senators if the Postmaster General was not honest. This went along for some time until Senator Bryan of Florida became somewhat nettled at the pointed remarks of Senator Reed of Missouri. "The Senator from Missouri asks if the Postmaster General is not honest," said Bryan. "I hope he is, because I don't want the Senator from Missouri to get lonesome."

Senator Thompson of Kansas is one of the men in the Senate who has been a judge for many years and his colleagues say that he has "the judicial mind." That also means that he is hard to convince at times and when he makes up his mind it is almost impossible to change it. At different times Senator Thompson has had an [illegible] from the Democratic control, and it takes the strongest kind of effort to restrain him.

Army officers were raked over the coals during consideration of the army appropriation bill. But they have become somewhat accustomed to it, as there are many severe critics of the army and the entire military system in Congress. Particular objection is made to the "pampered pets" and "tessellated satraps" as men in the service are often designated. There were strong efforts made to reduce the cost of the army, particularly in small things, but the same efforts are made every year and usually without much avail.

During discussion of the woman suffrage resolution in the Senate Senator Ashurst in talking on the constitution had something to say about "willy nilly," also nolens volens." And as if the Senate did not get the full import of these remarks he repeated them. Ike Hill who was for many years the Democratic sergeant-at-arms on the Democratic side of the House, used to speak of men who would not vote, saying that the next time he would "grab them by the nape of the neck and throw them in the nolens volens."

In some of the contests that are going on in different states for nominations in the primaries we hear the old familiar words "We will win if they don't count us out." It has been the custom of political observers at once to put in the losing column any set of politicians and candidates who begin talking that way. Generally it is an excuse in advance for probable defeat.

NEW RAILWAY FINISHED.

Economic Future of the Belgian Kongo and of Central Africa Affected.

[illegible] semi-officially announced that [illegible] railway across German East Africa, Dar-es-Salam to Lake Tanganyika, was completed when the rails [illegible] laid down at the western terminus, Kigoma, which is a few miles [illegible] of Ujiji. The railway is [illegible] long, and is likely to have an important influence not only upon the development of the German protectorate, but upon the economic future of the Belgian Kongo and of Central Africa generally. Express trains will now be able to reach the coast from the lake in two days, as compared with the 42-day journey of the caravans, and a large proportion of Central African trade is bound to gravitate toward Dar-es-Salam.

The project was initiated 10 years ago when a concession was granted to the East African Railway Company to build a short railway from Dar-es-Salam to Monogoro. The German empire guaranteed a three per cent interest to the investors, and the section was finished in 1907. The railway was pushed on to Tabora during the term of Herr Dernburg's control of the colonial office, and the reichstag in 1908 passed a bill transferring the shares in that section from the East African Railway Company to the German East African administration. Funds were voted for the construction of the last section in 1911, and it has been finished 14 months before the date specified in that contract.

PLANS FOR DOG SHOW.

Event Proposed for August 6 in Convention Hall at the Beach.

The committee in charge of the annual Newport bench show of the Rhode Island Kennel Club is considering the advisability of holding the event the coming summer in the convention hall at the beach. Within the past few days the committee has looked over the possibilities of the hall, taking measurements and making other examinations. Although they have not yet decided as they wish to consult those who will have charge of the benching, it is understood that they will finally determine to have the show at the beach.

For the past three years they have been held at the Casino. Last year two days were devoted to the exhibit, but this time it is proposed to change to one day, August 6, in order not to conflict with the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club and the trial races of the cup defenders off Newport.

FIRST MONDAY SALES.

Trades Day Happiest of All the Month in Towns Down in Texas.

[Z. E. Black, in Farm and Fireside.]

Down in Texas the first Monday in each month is trades day, and is the brightest, happiest, busiest day of the month for many a town. As early as 8 o'clock every road is crowded with farm wagons, buggies and automobiles. The entire family comes, including the hired hand and "the little dog under the wagon."

Business and pleasure are combined. The men trade live stock, farm machinery and land; exchange experiences concerning crops, cultural methods and animals, and some swap lies. Men are here from a distance with fine stock for sale. Spirited auctions are going on all the time. Usually the commercial club offers prizes for the best colts, etc., a premium for the farmer who comes the longest distance, and many other competitions. The merchants all put on special First Monday sales, and these are real reductions in prices. For the small-town merchant is now having to compete with the mail-order house in earnest. These trade days keep many a dollar at home.

The big brass band plays almost continuously. The ladies of the town serve monstrous chicken-pie dinners. There are handy rest rooms for the farmers wives. Free tickets to matinees at the movies are given to every visitor in town by the various merchants. Usually the town boys and the country boys play base ball. There are horse races on at the park. Lectures on various farm subjects, or rather illustrated talks, are rendered by state or government experts.

It is a great occasion. The townspeople and those from the rural districts mingle. Mrs. Jones, from the Happy Hollow community, exchanges recipes with the wife of the leading banker of the town. The women of the farm swap settings of eggs, gossip, and otherwise enjoy themselves. The children, the hired men and the "little dog under the wagon" have a good time.

Far more important than financial benefits of these First Mondays is the fact that they break the monotony of farm life—a necessity for the happiness of men, women and children [illegible] farms.

—Sunday wrecking tug Tasco of the Scott Wrecking Company raised the fishing steamer H. E. Hamlin, of the Newport Fisheries Company, which had sunk in the angle at the Portsmouth end of the Stone Bridge. It was found necessary to lift the steamer with the wrecker's derrick before the pumps could be effective. The trouble was with the sea cock and repairs were made so that the Hamlin was towed to New London for repairs, after being raised.

Sec. 2—The appropriations heretofore made by ordinance passed January 5, 1914, are included in the above appropriations, and so much of said appropriations as has already been paid out by virtue of said ordinance is to be deducted from the appropriations made by section 1 hereof.

Sec. 3—All boards, commissions or officers who have approved bills which have been paid from the appropriations made by ordinance passed January 5, 1914, shall immediately, upon the passage of this ordinance, notify the city treasurer to which specific appropriation said bills should be charged and enter such charge on their books accordingly.

Sec. 4—No city officer nor committee shall incur any liability against the city, or make or cause any expenditure or payment out of the funds of the city, beyond or in excess of any appropriation hereinbefore ordered, unless such liability, expenditure or payment shall be occasioned by the laws of the state, or be specially authorized by vote of the Representative Council, in conformity to the provisions of the ordinance relating to annual appropriations.

Sec. 5—No sum appropriated for a specific purpose, as specified in detail in the report of the Committee of Twenty-Five, shall be expended for any other purpose, unless specifically authorized by vote of the Representative Council. No expenditure shall be made nor liability incurred by or in behalf of the city until an appropriation has been duly voted by the Representative Council sufficient to meet such expenditure or liability, together with all unpaid liabilities which are payable out of such appropriation.

Sec. 6—This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage.

There will be some additions to this. Two seem certain, $500 for the committee to look into the matter of re-organization of the fire department and the purchase and location of new apparatus, and $1,700 recommended by the Board of Aldermen for the highway appropriation on account of damage by the storm. There may be other additions, and some may be cut off. That remains to be seen.

BANANA CULTIVATION.

Greatest Source of Wealth in the Lowlands of Costa Rica.

[Christian Herald.]

A good many Americans have just discovered Costa Rica and its pretty little capital of San Jose, which lies in the bowl of the mountains. Since people began going down to Panama they have found that it is quite easy to learn something about Panama's neighbors, and Costa Rica is the nearest of these. It is one night's voyage by steamer from Colon to Port Limon, and then a few hours up over a wonderful mountain railway through luxuriant tropical vegetation. So Americans are coming up as a side trip to their visits to the Canal. I note in visits at intervals of several years apart, how the cultivation of the banana is growing and spreading. It is not likely that Costa Rica will become solely a great banana plantation as some one has said, because the banana lands are mostly in the lowlands. Though irrigation is resorted to the low coast lands are nevertheless, bound to be the most important section for banana production. The banana is planted to help protect young coffee trees, and this sometimes causes the idea of banana plantations in the highlands. But coffee is the crop for the big lands and Costa Rican coffee has a flavor of its own that causes it to command a high price in the markets of the world. There are some beautiful coffee plantations in the country surrounding San Jose. Still, the banana is the greatest source of wealth, and the export tax on bananas is an important source of revenue to the government. One of the officials of the big fruit company which has done so much to develop Costa Rica told me that in the forest region along the rivers primitive Indians were still to be met with and, occasionally, can be hired to work in clearing lands. But as banana cultivation advances, they retreat farther and farther into the wilds.

TRUST LEGISLATION.

Postoffice, Army and Other Administrative Bills Occupy Much Time.

Taft Finds Mexican Crisis Still in Evidence—The Postmaster General's Honesty.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Both houses of Congress have shown a disposition to "speed up" a little with the appropriation bills, and it might be possible to get these supply bills through before the middle of June. Such will not be the case, however, if the Senate takes as much time on the other bills as it has taken on the postoffice bill. Such measures as the postoffice, army and other administrative bills take a great deal of time. Any measure that affects conditions throughout the whole country usually requires considerable discussion. On that account the agricultural appropriation bill will occupy Congress for several days.

President Wilson no doubt thought it was a troublesome period of his administration when he put through the tariff and currency bills. But that period of his administration was a summer vacation compared to the enactment of the trust legislation. The President has found more real difficulty in getting workable trust bills than anything he has yet attempted.

It was Vice President Marshall who recommended that "the patient be given a rest for a time" and that the trust legislation be postponed to the future, but President Wilson is not the kind that postpones legislation that he wants to have passed.

There has been some speculation as to what ex-President Taft was thinking about while he was lunching with President Wilson less than a year from the time he left the White House. One thing that must have occurred to him was the fact that the legacy known as the Mexican situation, which Taft had left to Wilson, was still in evidence. President Taft told somebody how relieved he was to lay down the responsibility of the Presidential office. He was certainly relieved to get rid of the Mexican situation.

During discussion of the parcel post provision in the postoffice bill the Senators who were trying to restrict the actions of the Postmaster General were charged with determination to "cripple the parcel post." Frequently they would be asked by other Senators if the Postmaster General was not honest. This went along for some time until Senator Bryan of Florida became somewhat nettled at the pointed remarks of Senator Reed of Missouri. "The Senator from Missouri asks if the Postmaster General is not honest," said Bryan. "I hope he is, because I don't want the Senator from Missouri to get lonesome."

Senator Thompson of Kansas is one of the men in the Senate who has been a judge for many years, and his colleagues say that he has "the judicial mind." That also means that he is hard to convince at times, and, when he makes up his mind it is almost impossible to change it. At different times Senator Thompson has had an [illegible] from the Democratic control, and it takes the strongest kind of effort to restrain him.

Army officers were raked over the coals during consideration of the army appropriation bill. But they have become somewhat accustomed to it, as there are many severe critics of the army and the entire military system in Congress. Particular objection is made to the "pampered pets" and "tessellated satraps," as men in the service are often designated. There were strong efforts made to reduce the cost of the army, particularly in small things, but the same efforts are made every year and usually without much avail.

During discussion of the woman suffrage resolution in the Senate Senator Ashurst in talking on the constitution had something to say about "willy nilly," also "nolens volens." And as if the Senate did not get the full import of these remarks he repeated them. Ike Hill who was for many years the sergeant-at-arms on the Democratic side of the House, used to speak of men who would not vote, saying that the next time he would "grab them by the nape of the neck and throw them in the nolens volens."

In some of the contests that are going on in different states for nominations in the primaries we hear the old familiar words, "We will win if they don't count us out." It has been the custom of political observers at once to put in the losing column any set of politicians and candidates who begin talking that way. Generally it is an excuse in advance for probable defeat.

NEW RAILWAY FINISHED.

omic Future of the Belgian Kongo and of Central Africa Affected.

[illegible] s semi-officially announced that [illegible] ilway across German East Africa, Dar-es-Salam to Lake Tanganyika was completed when the rails [illegible] e laid down at the western terminus, Kigoma, which is a few miles [illegible] th of Ujiji. The railway is 776¾ [illegible] les long, and is likely to have an important influence not only upon the development of the German protectorate, but upon the economic future of the Belgian Kongo and of Central Africa generally. Express trains will now be able to reach the coast from the lake in two days, as compared with the 42-day journey of the caravans, and a large proportion of Central African trade is bound to gravitate toward Dar-es-Salam.

The project was initiated 10 years ago, when a concession was granted to the East African Railway Company to build a short railway from Dar-es-Salam to Monogoro. The German empire guaranteed a three per cent interest to the investors, and the section was finished in 1907. The railway was pushed on to Tabora during the term of Herr Dernburg's control of the colonial office, and the reichstag in 1908 passed a bill transferring the shares in that section from the East African Railway Company to the German East African administration. Funds were voted for the construction of the last section in 1911, and it has been finished 14 months before the date specified in that contract.

PLANS FOR DOG SHOW.

Event Proposed for August 6 in Convention Hall at the Beach.

The committee in charge of the annual Newport bench show of the Rhode Island Kennel Club is considering the advisability of holding the event the coming summer in the convention hall at the beach. Within the past few days the committee has looked over the possibilities of the hall, taking measurements and making other examinations. Although they have not yet decided, as they wish to consult those who will have charge of the benching, it is understood that they will finally determine to have the show at the beach.

For the past three years they have been held at the Casino. Last year two days were devoted to the exhibit, but this time it is proposed to change to one day, August 6, in order not to conflict with the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club and the trial races of the cup defenders off Newport.

FIRST MONDAY SALES.

Trades Day Happiest of All the Month in Towns Down in Texas.

[Z. E. Black, in Farm and Fireside.]

Down in Texas the first Monday in each month is trades day, and is the brightest, happiest, busiest day of the month for many a town. As early as 8 o'clock every road is crowded with farm wagons, buggies and automobiles. The entire family comes, including the hired hand and "the little dog under the wagon."

Business and pleasure are combined. The men trade live stock, farm machinery and land; exchange experiences concerning crops, cultural methods and animals; and some swap lies. Men are here from a distance with fine stock for sale. Spirited auctions are going on all the time. Usually the commercial club offers prizes for the best colts, etc.; a premium for the farmer who comes the longest distance, and many other competitions. The merchants all put on special First Monday sales, and these are real reductions in prices. For the small-town merchant is now having to compete with the mail-order house in earnest. These trade days keep many a dollar at home.

The big brass band plays almost continuously. The ladies of the town serve monstrous chicken-pie dinners. There are handy rest rooms for the farmers' wives. Free tickets to matinees at the movies are given to every visitor in town by the various merchants. Usually the town boys and the country boys play base ball. There are horse races on at the park. Lectures on various farm subjects, or rather illustrated talks, are rendered by state or government experts.

It is a great occasion. The townspeople and those from the rural districts mingle. Mrs. Jones, from the Happy Hollow community, exchanges recipes with the wife of the leading banker of the town. The women of the farm swap settings of eggs, gossip, and otherwise enjoy themselves. The children, the hired men and the "little dog under the wagon" have a good time.

Far more important than financial benefits of these First Mondays is the fact that they break the monotony of farm life—a necessity for the happiness of men, women and children [illegible] farms.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Sunday wrecking tug Tasco of the Scott Wrecking Company raised the fishing steamer H. E. Hamlin, of the Newport Fisheries Company, which had sunk in the angle at the Portsmouth end of the Stone Bridge. It was found necessary to lift the steamer with the wrecker's derrick before the pumps could be effective. The trouble was with the sea cock and repairs were made so that the Hamlin was towed to New London for repairs, after being raised.

BANANA CULTIVATION.

Greatest Source of Wealth in the Lowlands of Costa Rica.

[Christian Herald.]

A good many Americans have just discovered Costa Rica and its pretty little capital of San Jose, which lies in the bowl of the mountains. Since people began going down to Panama they have found that it is quite easy to learn something about Panama's neighbors, and Costa Rica is the nearest of these. It is one night's voyage by steamer from Colon to Port Limon, and then a few hours up over a wonderful mountain railway through luxuriant tropical vegetation. So Americans are coming up as a side trip to their visits to the Canal. I note in visits at intervals of several years apart, how the cultivation of the banana is growing and spreading. It is not likely that Costa Rica will become solely a great banana plantation as some one has said, because the banana lands are mostly in the lowlands. Though irrigation is resorted to the low coast lands are, nevertheless, bound to be the most important section for banana production. The banana is planted to help protect young coffee trees, and this sometimes causes the idea of banana plantations in the highlands. But coffee is the crop for the high lands, and Costa Rican coffee has a flavor of its own that causes it to command a high price in the markets of the world. There are some beautiful coffee plantations in the country surrounding San Jose. Still, the banana is the greatest source of wealth, and the export tax on bananas is an important source of revenue to the government. One of the officials of the big fruit company which has done so much to develop Costa Rica told me that in the forest region along the rivers primitive Indians were still to be met with, and, occasionally, can be hired to work in clearing lands. But as banana cultivation advances, they retreat farther and farther into the wilds.

ARMY RECRUITS ARRIVE.

Excellent Material for Coast Artillery Service at the Forts.

The expected army recruits from Columbus, Ohio, arrived Sunday night. There were 85 of them and they were not lost on the road, as supposed, or they did not start until Saturday noon. They were hung up in Framingham seven hours Sunday, through an error in routing, as all trains which operate on week-days do not run on Sundays. Because of the long wait the men were given freedom from the cars and allowed to wander about that city, where their behaviour speaks well for the class of men in the detail.

It is considered that the men are excellent material for the coast artillery service, and like the detail arriving Saturday they were taken to Fort Adams first, where they were assigned some to that fort and some to Greble. The two details gave the forts an increase of 165 men, but many more must come before the companies have anything like a full complement.

STOCK FOR EMPLOYES.

Profit and Ownership Sharing Plan for Big Pittsburgh Stores.

Shares in the profits and ownership of the business for the employes who contribute to its success are provided for in the program of a big Pittsburgh, Pa., department store firm —the Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc.—which has announced a most comprehensive plan for allowing its employes to get a larger percentage of the benefits of the business. A fund of $1,000,000—to be known as the Kaufmann Foundation—will make the working out of the plan possible, and its provisions will apply to every employe of the stores, from the cash-boys and cash girls to the highest-salaried managers. The donors of the fund, who have made a new advance in the movement for co-operation between capital and labor which is making itself felt in all parts of the world asserts that they are actuated by the belief that the time has arrived when all employes engaged in large industrial enterprises should be made part owners of the establishment and should participate largely in the profits, since the succes of the enterprise depends largely upon their labor.

The plan was devised by Edgar J. Kaufmann, who presented it to the board of directors and personally assumed responsibility for the fund of $1,000,000 of the common stock at least to start the plan in successful operation. The feature of the plan which distinguishes it from other plans of profit sharing, which have been announced recently, is that it provides, in addition to the division of proceeds, for the distribution of stock of the company, wholly without cost to the employes. The Kaufmann Foundation will denote the stock in annual instalments.

Provision for beneficiaries or for employes in case of illness or accident is made to render the plan complete. Each employe is entitled to designate a beneficiary who shall receive, in case of the employe's death, a minimum of 40 per cent and a maximum of 100 per cent of the stock and profits which the employe would have received had he lived. A similar protection is afforded for disabled employes, who are not, however, shut out by temporay disability from full participation in the benefits of the plan. The normal and usual increase of salaries of efficient employes also will not be affected by the new plan, it is declared; and these increases will continue to be granted according to merit without regard to advantages derived from the Kaufmann Foundation.

The donors of the fund are actively in charge of the business of the corporation, which owns and operates "Kaufmann's—The Big Store" in Pittsburgh, one of the largest department stores in the United States, and which has been in continuous existence since 1871.

BUOY AT NO MAN'S LAND.

Danger Signal to be Established When Possible.

The Department of Commerce has notified Congressman O'Shaunessy that as soon as funds are available the government will establish a gas and bell buoy off No Man's Land, in the vicinity of the place where Fabre Line steamer Roma recently went ashore. Following the accident, Mr. O'Shaunessy called the department's attention to the lack of proper danger signals at that point. He will make an effort to have a sufficient appropriation for aids to navigation made by Congress at this session to include the proposed buoy at No Man's Land.

HOUSE MAY USE VOTING MACHINE.

[Washington Star.]

With the approval of Speaker Clark and Democratic Leader Underwood the rules committee of the House is about to make a favorable report on the scheme of Representative Allan B. Walsh, New Jersey, to overturn the established practice of roll-call votes in the House of Representatives and install an electrical voting machine, whereby the 435 members of the House can register their yeas and nays simultaneously in the time it will take to flash an electric lamp.

Aside from the novel mechanical features of the scheme, the old weapon of the filibustering minorities will be dulled. The 45-minute roll call on "viva voce" votes will be done away with. The presence of a quorum will be ascertained automatically and flashed on a score board. The rules of the House may have to be altered somewhat, and certainly the long-standing habits and customs and traditions which cling to the old method of answering the clerk as he drones out the names of members twice over will suffer a rude shock.

EARTHQUAKES IN PANAMA.

[Youth's Companion.]

In view of the recent occurrence of two earthquakes on the isthmus of Panama it is interesting to learn that D. F. MacDonald, geologist to the Isthmian Canal commission, believes that the canal is in slight danger from such disturbances. Numerous small "faults" do, indeed, show that re-adjustments of the earth's crust have taken place in times past, but the region has no high mountains or other evidences of recent displacement. Although many tremors are recorded every month by the seismograph at Ancon, the isthmus is entirely free from serious earthquakes. The seismic record of the isthmus dates from the Spanish conquest, and during more than three centuries there have been only two earthquakes of any consequence. One in 1621 destroyed many buildings in Panama, and in 1882 another damaged several buildings and bridges, and in places threw the railway track out of alignment. But neither of these shocks, it is probable, would have seriously damaged even the most delicate parts of the canal.

A FINE DISTINCTION.

"Civitas" Protests Against State Aid for the Parochial Schools.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

Dear Sir: Father Meenan's letter of yesterday affords us a bit of that kind of casuistry which can make a distinction without a difference. The money asked for is not, he says, for parochial schools, but only for the upkeep of schools which are parochial. It is not asked for teachers, but only for janitors. Here we have a fine distinction—so fine, indeed, that it is not difficult to see through it, and find a parochial school with all its sectarian bias, planted over against our public schools, and using the state's money for its upkeep.

Does Father Meenan think for a moment that we conceive of the Roman Catholic Church as being so altruistic in motive as to build and equip its present schools for the accommodation of 1,160 children of the city, and to the end that the city may be relieved of that care? Scarcely so. These schools are built for one purpose only—to teach sectarianism. Our quarrel with them is not, either, that they are to teach the Douay Bible. While the St. James edition is immeasurably superior from the standpoint of literature and scholarship, its content for the most part is good. But they are not going to be taught this in Newport any more than they have been in Spain or Mexico. It is sectarianism these schools stand for, first and last and all the time.

From the standpoint of efficiency, the public schools are superior to the parochial. Any one who knows the two knows this. "By their fruits ye shall know them." If the parochial school is so desirable, why do we find the teacher of the church school of Quebec unfit to teach in the public school across the line in Ontario? Why is another examination required before he may teach there? If the parochial school can do so much for the city and state, why has it not done something commensurate with the public school? Why is Quebec half a century behind Ontario? Why has not this system done something worth while for Mexico and South America, which are today notorious centres of illiteracy after occupancy and development—rather stagnation—under this system for centuries? If you answer that the parochial school has not been in operation in these and other countries like Spain and Portugal, why, we ask, if they are so indispensable, has not the church given these poor ignorant peoples the advantages of them?

Why should there be so much more asked by Romanists than they are willing to grant? Is not "justice" an applicable principle in Spain and South America as well as in the United States? Why are the minorities not only not helped educate their children from the public funds in these countries, but obliged to send their children to schools where Rome's catechism is taught, and against their conscientious scruples obliged to study it? Why should those who refuse a Protestant church to be erected on any main street of a city, and who will not suffer the services of that church to be advertised, or a sign to be placed on the building to show what it is—as in Spain—want privileges that are not asked by the majority in this land of freedom and light?

The freedom we enjoy, Catholic and Protestant, has been dearly bought, and the public schools of America have had a large part to play in preserving it. They shall not be superseded by denominational schools, which would in time be legion in number and ineffective in their operation. The best thing about the church school today is what it has taken from the public school; indeed, it is the only thing worth while it possesses.

Another thing: Why should our Roman Catholic friends make so many advances toward the public treasury for the promulgation of their distinctive propaganda? Why, when they want to educate and lift up the Indian, for example, do they not do as the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, and other Protestant religionists—pay the bill of their beneficence out of their funds rather than seek money from the public chest? Why want government aid here and there and everywhere? Is a church to be a political institution? Do our churches exist for what they can get or for what they may give? Here only a few weeks ago we were asked to take over an old school in a poor site for a large sum. Now the city is asked to spend out of the public funds a large sum for a purpose that is not public, though so claimed. What else is to be asked? Where and when is the end to be?

Underneath this whole matter lies a principle very dear to the heart of every true American—the integrity and supremacy of the state. The question of the separation of church and state is here involved and no playing with words should obscure the situation. Our fathers fought and died, many of them, for this. This it is that has made this splendid land the refuge of the oppressed and persecuted of all lands. We have gotten, thank God, away from mediaevalism and the Dark Ages, nor shall we ever return. Americans are a long-suffering people, but there are some things they will not stand for. The mixing of church and state is one.

PORTO SAILS FOR ENGLAND.

Pilot for Wanamaker's Flyer Makes Suggestions as to Design.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Lieutenant John C. Porto, retired British naval officer who is to pilot the Rodman Wanamaker trans-Atlantic flyer, sailed today for England on the Lusitania. He has spent more than a week with Glenn H. Curtiss at Hammondsport, looking over the machine and making various suggestions as to its design and equipment. Lieutenant Porto plans to return to this country in about a month and remain until the flight takes place. He will bring with him several instruments, some of them of his own devising, which he hopes will be of value in the ocean flight.

"The hardest problem ahead of us," Lieutenant Porto said, "is to tell at just what height we should fly in order to get the most advantage of the steady air currents above the earth. If tests had been made by captive balloons on a fairly extensive scale, we would know for a certainty what we must now guess at. Such work on the part of the Weather Bureau will soon be a regular part of its duty. I expect the trip to Europe will be made at an elevation of 5,000 feet or thereabouts. That is unless we get more definite data than we now have before we start."

dead from the effects of a self-administered gunshot wound Monday, at the latter place. The discovery was made by his son-in-law, D. Frank Gifford, when the latter went to the garage.

The deceased was born in Little Compton December 13, 1845, and always lived in that town. He early affiliated with the Republican party, and was one of the local leaders of the party from his first vote to the time of his death. He was a member of the Stone Bridge Commission in 1870. For many years he carried passengers and mail between the towns of Tiverton and Little Compton, and was well known to all travelers of that section. He was a member of the General Assembly for three years, twice as a member of the lower house in 1885-6, and as a senator in 1887.

Mr. Church was married to Mary E., daughter of Alfred C. and Elvira Briggs, and they had one daughter, who married D. Frank Gifford some years since. She died about a year ago. Mr. Church is survived by a widow and two grandchildren. He was the nephew of the late Colonel John Church. Business troubles are said to be the cause of his death.

FINE WORK ON PIANOLA.

Beautiful Melodies Illustrate Mr. Geer's Lecture on Musical Form.

Mr. Geer's lecture on musical form, Monday evening, brought out information as to the structure of some compositions, and also was illustrated by fine work by means of the pianola. The rondo is from the French "rondeau," which means a return, and is characterized by the constant return of the refrain or principal subject. It is the rule to end in the same key as that of the beginning.

The music played included the Staccato etude of Rubinstein, and the slow movement of the Sonata Patetique of Beethoven, on the pianola, and a "cute" little thing, "The Harvesters," by Couperin, on the piano: also, on the pianola, the Mozart Rondo, No. 20, in A minor, and the favorite "Rondo Capricioso" of Mendelssohn. Of this last the lecturer said that it was somewhat irregular, and contains matter foreign to the themes; but it is a perfect example of the composer's style. It is dainty and fairy-like. Nobody but Joseph Hoffman can play it so that one may say he has heard it played. It was composed when Mendelssohn was but 14 years old. It was a fine piece of playing by the pianola.

The next lecture took up the sonata form, which is derived from the earliest style of music for instruments only. It consisted of a little theme, a modulation, a strong cadence, a theme in a near key, a strong cadence, a return of the first theme. Modulation, in general, is more satisfying if it comes down the scale, rather than going up. The suite, and two and three-part inventions, were the only other forms except the fugue which was different, being heavy and bound by prescribed rules. Mr. Geer played a sarabande of Bach (No. 2 of the English Suite) which was singularly beautiful in its chaste melodies and harmonies.

Next week will be played Beethoven's sonata in G, op. 49, No. 2; the Mozart sonata, No. 18, in C minor, and the first movement of the Fifth symphony.

MILK PLENTIFUL.

Local Creamery to Make Reduction on Price Paid to Producers.

Milk has been unusually plentiful this winter and notice has been sent out from a local creamery that it will soon reduce the price it pays. What this creamery says usually goes, for neither the producers nor the dealers seem willing to offend the management, though there are two other local creameries. The announcement of the coming reduction has caused some of the farmers to become exercised and has again caused talk of starting their own plant, but it is not expected that this will amount to any more than it has before. The producers have been shown how the business of milk distribution can be conducted cheaper and the public served better, and that the surplus milk will net them a profit rather than a loss, but there seem to be few who are willing to consider seriously the modern way of distribution.

MIDDLETOWN.

New Residence for Professor John T. Huntington Burned to the Ground.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The large new two-and-a-half-story house with a big ell, which was being erected along the southeast shore on Indian avenue by Professor John T. Huntington of Hartford, Conn., during the winter, was burned to the ground this morning between 9:30 and 11 o'clock. The first notice of the fire was the crackling of wood in the upper story, the blaze being evidently caused by sparks from the fireplace, where carpenters had set fire to some rubbish. Two men were laying floors downstairs. No water being available on the grounds, the structure was soon entirely consumed, burning quickly, like tinder. The big stone chimney is all that now remains.

The two carpenters, who came from Hartford, Conn., have been working here all winter, whenever the weather permitted, boarding themselves at Professor Huntington's summer cottage, nearby. The house had not yet been plastered and the interior was very dry. Neighbors reached the scene as quickly as possible, but nothing could be done without water and one of the carpenters was badly burned in trying to beat out the flames. It is not known whether the building was insured.

Mr. William J. Peckham has been confined to his home on Mitchell's road the past week by a severe felon at the base of the thumb on his right hand. He has been a great sufferer and is still under the care of a physician.

The windmill arm, broken at the Wyatt grist mill during the heavy gale of a week ago Sunday, has been repaired and grinding has been resumed.

Miss Mary L. Hart is very ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Hart, on Wapping road.

The teachers in the Peabody and Paradise districts, who have been sick the past week, have returned to their respective schools, which reopened Monday.

THE BOLL WEEVIL PEST.

Conservation of the Birds Aids in Checking Ravages of the Insect.

Conservation of the birds, especially the insectivorous variety, is a momentous question in the cotton-growing states of the South. Upon the energy of the insect-eating birds depends the checking of the ravages of the boll weevil, which has created such havoc already, and bids fair to extend its devastation of this important crop. Startling figures compiled at Washington demonstrate graphically what enormous inroads have been made upon the cotton crop by this boll pest. The hope of safeguarding the states not already infected is said to lie in the preservation of the birds which exist upon such pests.

Recently the Department of Commerce at Washington estimated a total loss of 10,000,000 bales due to the boll weevil. At only $50 a bale a monetary loss of $500,000,000, is therefore involved. And this does not represent all, as some farmers have failed to plant cotton for fear of the boll weevil and its ravages. The pest first appeared in Texas in 1892, since when it has spread constantly until now it causes uneasiness in the South Atlantic states of the cotton belt, particularly Georgia.

Such damage from the boll weevil as already has been done in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Alabama is apt to be extended as early as next season into Georgia. The one remedy, it is averred, lies in the protection of birds. Texas laid itself open to the ravages of the weevil by allowing the wholesale slaughter of its birds. The birds are nature's check upon the spread of insects. Yet the number of birds throughout the country is estimated to be about one fifth now of what it was 30 years ago.

These facts have been set before the growers of cotton by the National Association of Audubon Societies, through its field agent in the South, James Henry Rice, Jr., with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. The weevil already is within 25 miles of the Georgia line, and can cross into the state at any time after emerging from winter quarters. Strong efforts are being made to meet the invasion. The Georgia Chamber of Commerce is organizing branches in every town of the state for disseminating information as to fighting the pest.

These statements tend to show the gravity with which the outlook is regarded. Government men and agricultural college experts are giving close attention to the matter. As Georgia is a leading cotton-producing state, it has much at stake and the population there is fully aware of its danger. United States farm demonstrators can make only about half a crop under boll weevil conditions, provided their directions are strictly followed, this entailing unusual expense. A loss of above $50,000,000 would be sustained, with the best of results under present methods.

Mr. Rice says that, "with rigid protection of birds, the damage from the weevil will be materially lessened in three years' time; in five years it will cease to be a menace and be no more than an annoyance. Such protection is possible only by educating the people to the value of birds. It is perfectly proper and right to employ every available means to fight the weevil. Cultural methods are to be commended; but it is just as well to bear in mind that cultural methods have a limit. Rigid bird protection in no way interferes with any cultural method or any other means which farmers care to employ in the fight against the weevil."

Government entomologists are somewhat divided as to when the boll weevil will enter the state of South Carolina. No one, however, places it later than two years hence. The state may calculate on a loss of at least $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 from the pest. It is warned, however, in plenty of time to ward off the weevil. In certain counties of Louisiana and Mississippi, where drastic bird protection has been tried by the forbidding of hunting, results already have been seen. The boll weevil has lost ground considerably in some sections—as much as 20 to 60 per cent.

BIG GUN EXPLODES.

Fragments Hurled Far from Sandy Hook Grounds.

Unable to withstand the energy of a new powder, a 12-inch gun at the Sandy Hook proving grounds exploded Monday, sending its 2000-pound breech block through a thick concrete wall, while part of the barrel was hurled half a mile out to sea.

Lieutenant Charles Pendleton, who with 18 men had taken cover in a shelter trench of which the concrete wall was a part, received slight cuts about the leg by a fragment of steel. Several of the men were thrown from a wooden platform on which they were standing, but escaped injury. Small fragments of steel went inland, one of them landing a mile away, near a wireless station.

BASE BALL EVERYWHERE.

Great National Game May Conquer Every Civilized Nation.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

Products of American farms and of American manufacturers are found in every corner of the world. Is this country going to achieve another conquest of the same sort in regard to sport? Are we going to make our great national game universal and establish base ball as a permanent institution in every civilized nation and in some that can scarcely claim to be civilized?

The recent triumph of base ball in England suggests the question. Two of our best professional teams have been touring the British Isles and their journey has been a triumphal progress. At one game in London, according to press reports, the attendance reached the astonishing total of 30,000; and everywhere the crowds which have witnessed the contests have been worked up into a state of excitement quite foreign to the average British throng of spectators at a sporting event. It is said that of recent years no such enthusiasm has characterized the emotions of the spectators at even the most important of the cricket matches; and this fact, it seems, ought to convince even the most conservative of Britons that, as a sport for the delectation of onlookers, base ball is superior to the game which more than any other has assumed the character of the British national sport.

It is gratifying to know that Americans can make better goods of various sorts than any other people in the world and can sell them at a profit in foreign lands, outdoing all competitors. It will be almost equally gratifying, perhaps, if Americans have invented a game which is so much better than any other game that foreign countries throw their own games into the scrap heap and adopt the American game instead. That would be a unique triumph for the genius of the American people. That we may actually witness it before very long seems at least possible in view of the success of base ball in England following upon the almost equally striking success attained by it in Japan.

A HEARTLESS TRICK.

[New York Tribune.]

It was quite like the Industrial Workers of the World leaders to tell a hundred or so homeless men that they could sleep in the basement of the Second Avenue Baptist Church, remaining prudently out of sight themselves when the inevitable argument with the police was due.

A church basement is as suitable a place as any other for emergency lodgings if it is sufficiently ventilated and provided with cots and plumbing. When not designed and fitted for the purpose it cannot be so used. The trouble makers of the I. W. W. can hardly allege any necessity for increasing the provision for shelter for the unemployed at considerable expense when at the very time the foolish raids were ordered there were more than 1,000 unused beds at the city's free lodging places.

Of course the I. W. W. leaders quite understood this. Their purpose was to stir up "social unrest." In that endeavor they are as heartless toward the sufferings of needy men, as ready to exploit them, as inconsiderate of their welfare, as the inhuman "capitalist" whom they evolve from their rhetorical imaginations. To them the unemployed are not suffering men to be relieved, but pawns in the game of "class war" politics.

MELLEN GETTING MAD.

Ex-President Mellen of the New Haven road is getting mad. When called by telephone by a newspaper man he is reported to have said "I have no books or memoranda at the present time in regard to any transactions with the Morgans or in relation to the Millbrook company, but anything that I did was by the express authority of the New Haven's board of directors. I did what I was ordered to do. You can say that the road is all right or that it is all wrong, or print anything that you please about it, and if that isn't enough you can go to hades."

Face a Mass. Ashamed to Show Himself. Scratched Them Raw. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Less Than a Week.
131 Mystic St., Arlington, Mass.—"There were pimples on my face the size of bird shot. They were dark red with a white head in the center. My face was such a mass of pimples I was ashamed to show myself in society. The pimples itched so much that I scratched them raw. For two months they had caused me much pain and many sleepless nights. My face was very badly disfigured. I used ——, ——, ——, and other remedies too numerous to mention, but without sucess. I had about given up when by chance I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I immediately sent for a sample. I bathed my face with hot water and washed it thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. ARMY RECRUITS ARRIVE.

Excellent Material for Coast Artillery Service at the Forts.

The expected army recruits from Columbus, Ohio, arrived Sunday night. There were 85 of them and they were not lost on the road, as supposed, or they did not start until Saturday noon. They were hung up in Framingham seven hours Sunday, through an error in routing, as all trains which operate on week-days do not run on Sundays. Because of the long wait the men were given freedom from the cars and allowed to wander about that city, where their behaviour speaks well for the class of men in the detail.

It is considered that the men are excellent material for the coast artillery service, and like the detail arriving Saturday they were taken to Fort Adams first, where they were assigned some to that fort and some to Greble. The two details gave the forts an increase of 165 men, but many more must come before the companies have anything like a full complement.

STOCK FOR EMPLOYES.

Profit and Ownership Sharing Plan for Big Pittsburgh Stores.

Shares in the profits and ownership of the business for the employes who contribute to its success are provided for in the program of a big Pittsburgh, Pa., department store firm—the Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc.—which has announced a most comprehensive plan for allowing its employes to get a larger percentage of the benefits of the business. A fund of $1,000,000—to be known as the Kaufmann Foundation—will make the working out of the plan possible, and its provisions will apply to every employe of the stores, from the cashboys and cash girls to the highest-salaried managers. The donors of the fund, who have made a new advance in the movement for co-operation between capital and labor, which is making itself felt in all parts of the world asserts that they are actuated by the belief that the time has arrived when all employes engaged in large industrial enterprises should be made part owners of the establishment and should participate largely in the profits, since the succes of the enterprise depends largely upon their labor.

The plan was devised by Edgar J. Kaufmann, who presented it to the board of directors and personally assumed responsibility for the fund of $1,000,000 of the common stock at least to start the plan in successful operation. The feature of the plan which distinguishes it from other plans of profit sharing, which have been announced recently, is that it provides, in addition to the division of proceeds, for the distribution of stock of the company, wholly without cost to the employes. The Kaufmann Foundation will denote the stock in annual instalments.

Provision for beneficiaries or for employes in case of illness or accident is made to render the plan complete. Each employe is entitled to designate a beneficiary who shall receive, in case of the employe's death, a minimum of 40 per cent and a maximum of 100 per cent of the stock and profits which the employe would have received had he lived. A similar protection is afforded for disabled employes, who are not, however, shut out by temporay disability from full participation in the benefits of the plan. The normal and usual increase of salaries of efficient employes also will not be affected by the new plan, it is declared; and these increases will continue to be granted according to merit without regard to advantages derived from the Kaufmann Foundation.

The donors of the fund are actively in charge of the business of the corporation, which owns and operates "Kaufmann's—The Big Store" in Pittsburgh, one of the largest department stores in the United States, and which has been in continuous existence since 1871.

BUOY AT NO MAN'S LAND.

Danger Signal to be Established When Possible.

The Department of Commerce has notified Congressman O'Shaunessy that as soon as funds are available the government will establish a gas and bell buoy off No Man.s Land, in the vicinity of the place where Fabre Line steamer Roma recently went ashore. Following the accident, Mr. O'Shaunessy called the department's attention to the lack of proper danger signals at that point. He will make an effort to have a sufficient appropriation for aids to navigation made by Congress at this session to include the proposed buoy at No Man's Land.

HOUSE MAY USE VOTING MACHINE.

[Washington Star.]

With the approval of Speaker Clark and Democratic Leader Underwood the rules committee of the House is about to make a favorable report on the scheme of Representative Allan B. Walsh, New Jersey, to overturn the established practice of roll-call votes in the House of Representatives and install an electrical voting machine, whereby the 435 members of the House can register their yeas and nays simultaneously in the time it will take to flash an electric lamp.

Aside from the novel mechanical features of the scheme, the old weapon of the filibustering minorities will be dulled, The 45-minute roll call on "viva voce" votes will be done away with. The presence of a quorum will be ascertained automatically and flashed on a score board. The rules of the House may have to be altered somewhat, and certainly the long-standing habits and customs and traditions which cling to the old method of answering the clerk as he drones out the names of members twice over will suffer a rude shock.

EARTHQUAKES IN PANAMA.

[Youth's Companion.]

In view of the recent occurrence of two earthquakes on the isthmus of Panama it is interesting to learn that D. F. MacDonald, geologist to the Isthmian Canal commission, believes that the canal is in slight danger from such disturbances. Numerous small "faults" do, indeed, show that readjustments of the earth's crust have taken place in times past, but the region has no high mountains or other evidences of recent displacement. Although many tremors are recorded every month by the seismograph at Ancon, the isthmus is entirely free from serious earthquakes. The seismic record of the isthmus dates from the Spanish conquest, and during more than three centuries there have been only two earthquakes of any consequence. One in 1631 destroyed many buildings in Panama, and in 1882 another damaged several buildings and bridges, and in places threw the railway track out of alignment. But neither of these shocks, it is probable, would have seriously damaged even the most delicate parts of the canal.

A FINE DISTINCTION.

"Civitas" Protests Against State Aid for the Parochial Schools.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

Dear Sir: Father Meenan's letter of yesterday affords us a bit of that kind of casuistry which can make a distinction without a difference. The money asked for is not, he says, for parochial schools, but only for the upkeep of schools which are parochial. It is not asked for teachers, but only for janitors. Here we have a fine distinction—so fine, indeed, that it is not difficult to see through it, and find a parochial school with all its sectarian bias, planted over against our public schools, and using the state's money for its upkeep.

Does Father Meenan think for a moment that we conceive of the Roman Catholic Church as being so altruistic in motive as to build and equip its present schools for the accommodation of 1,160 children of the city, and to the end that the city may be relieved of that care? Scarcely so. These schools are built for one purpose only—to teach sectarianism. Our quarrel with them is not, either, that they are to teach the Douay Bible. While the St. James edition is immeasurably superior from the standpoint of literature and scholarship, its content for the most part is good. But they are not going to be taught this in Newport any more than they have been in Spain or Mexico. It is sectarianism these schools stand for, first and last and all the time.

From the standpoint of efficiency, the public schools are superior to the parochial. Any one who knows the two knows this. "By their fruits ye shall know them." If the parochial school is so desirable, why do we find the teacher of the church school of Quebec unfit to teach in the public school across the line in Ontario? Why is another examination required before he may teach there? If the parochial school can do so much for the city and state, why has it not done something commensurate with the public school? Why is Quebec half a century behind Ontario? Why has not this system done something worth while for Mexico and South America, which are today notorious centres of illiteracy after occupancy and development—rather stagnation—under this system for centuries? If you answer that the parochial school has not been in operation in these and other countries like Spain and Portugal, why, we ask, if they are so indispensable, has not the church given these poor ignorant peoples the advantages of them?

Why should there be so much more asked by Romanists than they are willing to grant? Is not "justice" an applicable principle in Spain and South America as well as in the United States? Why are the minorities not only not helped educate their children from the public funds in these countries, but obliged to send their children to schools where Rome's catechism is taught, and against their conscientious scruples obliged to study it? Why should those who refuse a Protestant church to be erected on any main street of a city, and who will not suffer the services of that church to be advertised, or a sign to be placed on the building to show what it is—as in Spain—want privileges that are not asked by the majority in this land of freedom and light?

The freedom we enjoy, Catholic and Protestant, has been dearly bought, and the public schools of America have had a large part to play in preserving it. They shall not be superseded by denominational schools which would in time be legion in number and ineffective in their operation. The best thing about the church school today is what it has taken from the public school; indeed, it is the only thing worth while it possesses.

Another thing: Why should our Roman Catholic friends make so many advances toward the public treasury for the promulgation of their distinctive propaganda? Why, when they want to educate and lift up the Indian, for example, do they not do as the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, and other Protestant religionists—pay the bill of their beneficence out of their funds rather than seek money from the public chest? Why want government aid here and there and everywhere? Is a church to be a political institution? Do our churches exist for what they can get or for what they may give? Here only a few weeks ago we were asked to take over an old school in a poor site for a large sum. Now the city is asked to spend out of the public funds a large sum for a purpose that is not public, though so claimed. What else is to be asked? Where and when is the end to be?

Underneath this whole matter lies a principle very dear to the heart of every true American—the integrity and supremacy of the state. The question of the separation of church and state is here involved and no playing with words should obscure the situation. Our fathers fought and died, many of them, for this. This it is that has made this splendid land the refuge of the oppressed and persecuted of all lands. We have gotten, thank God, away from mediaevalism and the Dark Ages, nor shall we ever return. Americans are a long-suffering people, but there are some things they will not stand for. The mixing of church and state is one.

PORTO SAILS FOR ENGLAND.

Pilot for Wanamaker's Flyer Makes Suggestions as to Design.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Lieutenant John C. Porto, retired British naval officer who is to pilot the Rodman Wanamaker trans-Atlantic flyer, sailed today for England on the Lusitania. He has spent more than a week with Glenn H. Curtiss at Hammondsport, looking over the machine and making various suggestions as to its design and equipment. Lieutenant Porto plans to return to this country in about a month and remain until the flight takes place. He will bring with him several instruments, some of them of his own devising, which he hopes will be of value in the ocean flight.

"The hardest problem ahead of us," Lieutenant Porto said, "is to tell at just what height we should fly in order to get the most advantage of the steady air currents above the earth. If tests had been made by captive balloons on a fairly extensive scale, we would know for a certainty what we must now guess at. Such work on the part of the Weather Bureau will soon be a regular part of its duty. I expect the trip to Europe will be made at an elevation of 5,000 feet or thereabouts. That is unless we get more definite data than we now have before we start."

dead from the effects of a self-administered gunshot wound Monday, at the latter place. The discovery was made by his son-in-law, D. Frank Gifford, when the latter went to the garage.

The deceased was born in Little Compton December 13, 1845, and always lived in that town. He early affiliated with the Republican party, and was one of the local leaders of the party from his first vote to the time of his death. He was a member of the Stone Bridge Commission in 1810. For many years he carried passengers and mail between the towns of Tiverton and Little Compton, and was well known to all travelers of that section. He was a member of the General Assembly for three years, twice as a member of the lower house in 1885-6, and as a senator in 1887.

Mr. Church was married to Mary E., daughter of Alfred C. and Elvira Briggs, and they had one daughter, who married D. Frank Gifford some years since. She died about a year ago. Mr. Church is survived by a widow and two grandchildren. He was the nephew of the late Colonel John Church. Business troubles are said to be the cause of his death.

FINE WORK ON PIANOLA.

Beautiful Melodies Illustrate Mr. Geer's Lecture on Musical Form.

Mr. Geer's lecture on musical form, Monday evening, brought out information as to the structure of some compositions, and also was illustrated by fine work by means of the pianola. The rondo is from the French "rondeau," which means a return, and is characterized by the constant return of the refrain or principal subject. It is the rule to end in the same key as that of the beginning.

The music played included the Staccato etude of Rubinstein, and the slow movement of the Sonata Patetique of Beethoven, on the pianola and a "cute" little thing, "The Harvesters," by Couperin, on the piano; also, on the pianola, the Mozart Rondo, No. 26, in A minor, and the favorite "Rondo Capricioso" of Mendelssohn Of this last the lecturer said that it was somewhat irregular and contains matter foreign to the themes; but it is a perfect example of the composer's style. It is dainty and fairy-like. Nobody but Joseph Hoffman can play it so that one may say he has heard it played. It was composed when Mendelssohn was but 14 years old. It was a fine piece of playing by the pianola.

The next lecture took up the sonata form, which is derived from the earliest style of music for instruments only. It consisted of a little theme, a modulation, a strong cadence, a theme in a near key, a strong cadence, a return of the first theme. Modulation, in general, is more satisfying if it comes down the scale, rather than going up. The suite, and two and three-part inventions, were the only other forms except the fugue which was different, being heavy and bound by prescribed rules. Mr. Geer played a sarabande of Bach (No. 2 of the English Suite) which was singularly beautiful in its chaste melodies and harmonies.

Next week will be played Beethoven's sonata in G, op. 49, No. 2; the Mozart sonata, No. 18, in C minor, and the first movement of the Fifth symphony.

MILK PLENTIFUL.

Local Creamery to Make Reduction on Price Paid to Producers.

Milk has been unusually plentiful this winter and notice has been sent out from a local creamery that it will soon reduce the price it pays. What this creamery says usually goes, for neither the producers nor the dealers seem willing to offend the management, though there are two other local creameries. The announcement of the coming reduction has caused some of the farmers to become exercised and has again caused talk of starting their own plant, but it is not expected that this will amount to any more than it has before. The producers have been shown how the business of milk distribution can be conducted cheaper and the public served better, and that the surplus milk will net them a profit rather than a loss, but there seem to be few who are willing to consider seriously the modern way of distribution.

MIDDLETOWN.

New Residence for Professor John T. Huntington Burned to the Ground.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The large new two-and-a-half-story house with a big ell, which was being erected along the southeast shore on Indian avenue by Professor John T. Huntington of Harford, Conn., during the winter, was burned to the ground this morning between 9:30 and 11 o'clock. The first notice of the fire was the crackling of wood in the upper story, the blaze being evidently caused by sparks from the fireplace, where carpenters had set fire to some rubbish. Two men were laying floors downstairs. No water being available on the grounds, the structure was soon entirely consumed, burning quickly, like tinder. The big stone chimney is all that now remains.

The two carpenters, who came from Hartford, Conn., have been working here all winter, whenever the weather permitted, boarding themselves at Professor Huntington's summer cottage nearby. The house had not yet been plastered and the interior was very dry. Neighbors reached the scene as quickly as possible, but nothing could be done without water and one of the carpenters was badly burned in trying to beat out the flames. It is not known whether the building was insured.

Mr. William J. Peckham has been confined to his home on Mitchell's road the past week by a severe felon at the base of the thumb on his right hand. He has been a great sufferer and is still under the care of a physician.

The windmill arm, broken at the Wyatt grist mill during the heavy gale of a week ago Sunday, has been repaired and grinding has been resumed.

Miss Mary L. Hart is very ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Hart, on Wapping road.

The teachers in the Peabody and Paradise districts, who have been sick the past week, have returned to their respective schools, which reopened Monday.

THE BOLL WEEVIL PEST.

Conservation of the Birds Aids in Checking Ravages of the Insect.

Conservation of the birds, especially the insectivorous variety, is a momentous question in the cotton-growing states of the South. Upon the energy of the insect-eating birds depends the checking of the ravages of the boll weevil, which has created such havoc already, and bids fair to extend its devastation of this important crop. Startling figures compiled at Washington demonstrate graphically what enormous inroads have been made upon the cotton crop by this boll pest. The hope of safeguarding the states not already infected is said to lie in the preservation of the birds which exist upon such pests.

Recently the Department of Commerce at Washington estimated a total loss of 10,000,000 bales due to the boll weevil. At only $50 a bale a monetary loss of $500,000,000, is therefore involved. And this does not represent all, as some farmers have failed to plant cotton for fear of the boll weevil and its ravages. The pest first appeared in Texas in 1892, since when it has spread constantly until now it causes uneasiness in the South Atlantic states of the cotton belt, particularly Georgia.

Such damage from the boll weevil as already has been done in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Alabama is apt to be extended as early as next season into Georgia. The one remedy, it is averred, lies in the protection of birds. Texas laid itself open to the ravages of the weevil by allowing the wholesale slaughter of its birds. The birds are nature's check upon the spread of insects. Yet the number of birds throughout the country is estimated to be about one fifth now of what it was 30 years ago.

These facts have been set before the growers of cotton by the National Association of Audubon Societies, through its field agent in the South, James Henry Rice, Jr., with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. The weevil already is within 25 miles of the Georgia line, and can cross into the state at any time after emerging from winter quarters. Strong efforts are being made to meet the invasion. The Georgia Chamber of Commerce is organizing branches in every town of the state for disseminating information as to fighting the pest.

These statements tend to show the gravity with which the outlook is regarded. Government men and agricultural college experts are giving close attention to the matter. As Georgia is a leading cotton-producing state, it has much at stake and the population there is fully aware of its danger. United States farm demonstrators can make only about half a crop under boll weevil conditions, provided their directions are strictly followed, this entailing unusual expense. A loss of above $50,000,000 would be sustained, with the best of results under present methods.

Mr. Rice says that, "with rigid protection of birds, the damage from the weevil will be materially lessened in three years' time; in five years it will cease to be a menace and be no more than an annoyance. Such protection is possible only by educating the people to the value of birds. It is perfectly proper and right to employ every available means to fight the weevil. Cultural methods are to be commended; but it is just as well to bear in mind that cultural methods have a limit. Rigid bird protection in no way interferes with any cultural method or any other means which farmers care to employ in the fight against the weevil."

Government entomologists are somewhat divided as to when the boll weevil will enter the state of South Carolina. No one, however, places it later than two years hence. The state may calculate on a loss of at least $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 from the pest. It is warned, however, in plenty of time to ward off the weevil. In certain counties of Louisiana and Mississippi, where drastic bird protection has been tried by the forbidding of hunting, results already have been seen. The boll weevil has lost ground considerably in some sections—as much as 20 to 80 per cent.

BIG GUN EXPLODES.

Fragments Hurled Far from Sandy Hook Grounds.

Unable to withstand the energy of a new powder, a 12-inch gun at the Sandy Hook proving grounds exploded Monday, sending its 2000-pound breech block through a thick concrete wall, while part of the barrel was hurled half a mile out to sea.

Lieutenant Charles Pendleton, who with 18 men had taken cover in a shelter trench of which the concrete wall was a part, received slight cuts about the leg by a fragment of steel. Several of the men were thrown from a wooden platform on which they were standing, but escaped injury. Small fragments of steel went inland, one of them landing a mile away, near a wireless station.

BASE BALL EVERYWHERE.

Great National Game May Conquer Every Civilized Nation.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

Products of American farms and of American manufacturers are found in every corner of the world. Is this country going to achieve another conquest of the same sort in regard to sport? Are we going to make our great national game universal and establish base ball as a permanent institution in every civilized nation and in some that can scarcely claim to be civilized?

The recent triumph of base ball in England suggests the question. Two of our best professional teams have been touring the British Isles and their journey has been a triumphal progress. At one game in London, according to press reports, the attendance reached the astonishing total of 30,000; and everywhere the crowds which have witnessed the contests have been worked up into a state of excitement quite foreign to the average British throng of spectators at a sporting event. It is said that of recent years no such enthusiasm has characterized the emotions of the spectators at even the most important of the cricket matches; and this fact, it seems, ought to convince even the most conservative of Britons that, as a sport for the delectation of onlookers, base ball is superior to the game which more than any other has assumed the character of the British national sport.

It is gratifying to know that Americans can make better goods of various sorts than any other people in the world and can sell them at a profit in foreign lands, outdoing all competitors. It will be almost equally gratifying, perhaps, if Americans have invented a game which is so much better than any other game that foreign countries throw their own games into the scrap heap and adopt the American game instead. That would be a unique triumph for the genius of the American people. That we may actually witness it before very long seems at least possible in view of the success of base ball in England following upon the almost equally striking success attained by it in Japan.

A HEARTLESS TRICK.

[New York Tribune.]

It was quite like the Industrial Workers of the World leaders to tell a hundred or so homeless men that they could sleep in the basement of the Second Avenue Baptist Church, remaining prudently out of sight themselves when the inevitable argument with the police was due.

A church basement is as suitable a place as any other for emergency lodgings if it is sufficiently ventilated and provided with cots and plumbing. When not designed and fitted for the purpose it cannot be so used. The trouble makers of the I. W. W. can hardly allege any necessity for increasing the provision for shelter for the unemployed at considerable expense when at the very time the foolish raids were ordered there were more than 1,650 unused beds at the city's free lodging places.

Of course the I. W. W. leaders quite understood this. Their purpose was to stir up "social unrest." In that endeavor they are as heartless toward the sufferings of needy men, as ready to exploit them, as inconsiderate of their welfare, as the inhuman "capitalist" whom they evolve from their rhetorical imaginations. To them the unemployed are not suffering men to be relieved, but pawns in the game of "class war" politics.

MELLEN GETTING MAD.

Ex-President Mellen of the New Haven road is getting mad. When called by telephone by a newspaper man he is reported to have said: "I have no books or memoranda at the present time in regard to any transactions with the Morgans or in relation to the Millbrook company, but anything that I did was by the express authority of the New Haven's board of directors. I did what I was ordered to do. You can say that the road is all right or that it is all wrong, or print anything that you please about it, and if that isn't enough you can go to hades."

BADLY DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES
Face a Mass. Ashamed to Show Himself. Scratched Them Raw. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Less Than a Week.
131 Mystic St., Arlington, Mass.—"There were pimples on my face the size of bird shot. They were dark red with a white head in the center. My face was such a mass of pimples I was ashamed to show myself in society. The pimples itched so much that I scratched them raw. For two months they had caused me much pain and many sleepless nights. My face was very badly disfigured. I used ———, ———, and other remedies too numerous to mention, but without success. I had about given up when by chance I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I immediately sent for a sample. I bathed my face with hot water and washed it thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. After the first application I felt relief, so I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in less than a week I was completely cured." (Signed) Wm. N. Gamester, Dec. 11, 1912.
Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. SULGRAVE MANOR.

Ancestral Home of Family of George Washington to be a Museum.

Documents, Pictures and Records of British-American History to be in Historic House.

[Arthur J Brenton]

Sulgrave manor Northamptonshire England the ancestral home of the family of George Washington has passed into the hands of the British committee for the centenary of peace between Great Britain and the United States The deeds were signed at a meeting of the committee in London The price paid was $42 000 A letter was read from Viscount Bryce conveying the gift of a copy of the only authentic portrait of Mary Ball Washington mother of George Washington from W Lanier Washington of New York The committee ordered that the picture be placed in the old manor house

An international committee of management of the Sulgrave property was appointed Of this committee Ambassador Page accepted the chairmanship for himself and his successors Other members are Earl Grey Earl Spencer Viscount Bryce Lord Shaw Lord Cowdray Lord Weardale Robert Donald Harry Brittain Andrew Carnegie John A Stewart and W J Howland

Sulgrave manor is to be maintained in perpetuity as a museum of documents pictures and other records of the main events of British American history since the signing of the treaty of Ghent in 1814 This historic house was built by Laurence Washington who was the son [illegible] of Gray's Inn who was the son of John Washington of Wilton in Lancashire who was the head of the branch of the family to which George Washington belonged

The Washingtons emanated from a Norman family of rank and although George Washington wrote that the [illegible] as to his ancestors was in his opinion of very little moment and a subject to which I confess I have paid very little attention few American families can boast a better pedigree Their progenitor was one William de Hertburn of Durham The surname De Hertburn was taken from a village in the Palatinate Later the name of the village of Hertburn was exchanged for that of Wessyngton and the name of the family was thus changed to De Wessyngton which in the course of years was gradually changed to the well known Washington

The Laurence Washington who built Sulgrave manor was for some years mayor of Northampton and on the dissolution of the priories by Henry VIII he received in 1539 a grant of the manor of Sulgrave in Northamptonshire which was confiscated property that had formerly belonged to the monastery of St Andrew's Sulgrave This property remained in the Washington family until 1610 and was commonly known as the Washington manor

As it stands today the house is far from being in its original condition but the most interesting and perhaps the oldest parts of the structure have been preserved

Practically all of the southern part of the building is in the original condition and over a door in this part of the house can still be seen the arms of the Washington family, which consist of a white shield crossed horizontally by two red bars with three five-pointed stars across the top It is said that in the red and white bars and the stars of this coat of arms the idea for the first American flag was found

In the gable above the little window that looks out of what must have been Laurence Washington's bedchamber are also the royal arms with a lion and a griffin as supporters

The main floor or hall of the house is entered through an old Tudor porch The hall is now divided into two small rooms While this alteration was being made a fine old screen separating the hall from the lobby was removed but the great beams in the ceiling prove beyond all doubt its location

The original door leading into the court has also disappeared but another one dating from before the American Revolution is there The windows of the hall had stone mullions at one time but these have been replaced by wooden ones In this room until a few years ago there was an immense open fireplace which is now replaced by a modern stove This old fireplace will undoubtedly be recovered when the building is finally restored

The earliest known Washington coat of arms had blazoned upon it "3 cinquefoils" which was the heralds' way of saying that the bearer was a landholder or an agriculturist and when Washington had a bookplate made for himself he added to the conventional design of the arms sprays of [illegible] and other plants as an indication of his favorite labor and his cherished desire was to live and die a private citizen on his own farm

EUGENICS WOOING.

Young Men May Find Themselves at a Loss Between Law and Lady

[New York Tribune]

A new complication has arisen under the Wisconsin [illegible] law Suppose [illegible] himself to marry [illegible] and then finds that he cannot [illegible] in the necessary examination [illegible] Will he be liable for breach of promise? That is a question which is being seriously asked in the [illegible] not so much concerning [illegible] [illegible] the law [illegible] [illegible] some thou[illegible] that not more than [illegible] [illegible] quired [illegible] [illegible] the lawyers

If nothing else is to be assumed all wooings will be initiated and conducted upon strictly eugenic principles The man who will make sure that the law will permit him to marry before he becomes engaged Indeed he will make sure of it before he permits himself to become specially interested in any fair maiden The eligibles will [illegible] be merely men of presentable appearance and solvent bank accounts but those who have passed or are able to pass the tests required by the eugenics law

[illegible] it might to be sure when he will that a man's education should begin with his grandparents The [illegible] preparation not only for his marriage but even for his courtship must be in his infancy if indeed it does not largely depend upon the fitness of his parents or grandparents After a generation or two of eugenic marriages all will be smooth sailing Until then many a would-be wooer may find himself at a hopeless loss between the law and the lady.

THE CHILD'S HEALTH:

Physical and Mental Development in the Home and School.

Two problems concerning the health and physical and mental development of a child confront thoughtful parents today, in consideration of the child outside of school and attention to its environment within the school

Whether in country or in city, the home influence on its health is most important A constant and controllable factor is its food Herein lies the home responsibility of the mother She must learn that the food of the growing child is next only in importance to its feeding as an infant, and that the greatest good comes to it from plain, nutritious, well-cooked and easily digested food that it needs certain foods for body structure and other foods to supply heat and energy A child should frolic and romp and play because there is a natural relation between such muscular activity and the proper performance of such food material in carrying on their functions The mother must also realize that rest is as important for the child as play, and that sufficient quiet, restful sleep does its equal part in storing energy and bringing about perfect development Children need sunshine and fresh air and at night should sleep in a well-ventilated room with the windows well down from the top They should be bathed regularly and properly clothed

But no matter how well fed and clothed how clean and well nourished previous to its admission to school the parents interest must follow the child to the schoolroom and see that such environment does not undermine its health Herein lies the responsibility of the father, as a citizen and taxpayer It is his money that maintains the school and it is his duty to see that his child is not forced into an over crowded poorly ventilated over-heated classroom compelled to breathe for five hours a day the expirations from 40 or 50 pairs of lungs and its condition so weak [illegible] is to render it vulnerable to the attacks of infectious disease Any one on reflection will be impressed with the futility of expecting a maximum progression physical and mental where children are housed in over crowded classrooms with little or no moisture in the air, compelled to breathe dry vitiated air and to attempt mental tasks with suffocated brain cells deprived of nature's generous supply of oxygen This is the condition in a large number of schoolrooms throughout the land today

FOR INJURED WORKMEN.

Steel Association of Berlin to Care for Victims of Factory Accidents.

The Northeastern Iron and Steel Co-operative Association, embracing all the metal working factories of Berlin has bought a 210-acre farm near the city and will equip it for taking care of the victims of factory accidents A hospital for badly injured men is to be provided and for less seriously injured workmen and convalescents special quarters will be built Particular benefit is expected from light gardening in cases of traumatic neurosis a common sequel of injuries in this line of work All patients will be cured for free of cost and convalescents capable of working at gardening fruit culture or other light farm work will receive wages

The association plans eventually to establish a farm colony where those victims of accidents who require a long period for convalescence can settle with their families It is planned to build small houses on a quarter to a half acre according to the size of the house and the number of persons occupying it and to charge for all this less rent than the family would have to pay in the city for its restricted apartments Opportunity will be given to raise poultry rabbits and goats and trained gardeners will be at the service of the tenants

O'CONNELL'S SEND-OFF.

nell Day in Providence, (Loud cheers) The speaker also said it was well known that the third base position on the Trojan team was a hard one and the players who had held it down safely are now enjoying big honors in being allowed to make good on top-notch teams Cooney has gone for his try-out with the Boston Red Sox, and while O'Connell was going with the Providence Grays the speaker said Cooney went for good, but Ralph would eventually go for better In closing Mr Egan said that O'Connell was like a man on his honeymoon—he had to make good for himself

Ralph O'Connell then rose, and in a brief speech said he thanked all for the send-off and would try his best to make good

Clarence Potter then sang a song which he had composed about O'Connell

The band then began playing various tunes fireworks of all kinds were set off the crowd raised a roar of noise, and in the meantime Ralph was carried forward on their shoulders to the boat Cheer followed cheer, and as the Plymouth drew away from the dock the band played "Auld Lang Syne," the crowd singing in accompaniment

On the committee were "Jack" Byrnes Bernard McGinn, "Jack" Sullivan and James J O'Connell "Mush" Horgan of the Tubs "Bony" Devlin and "Jack" Welch were the young men who were dressed up as clowns, and were conspicuous in their outfits

SPONGE FISHING.

Greek Diver Discovers Valuable Districts Off Coast of Honduras.

Where do all the sponges come from? From the sea of course, but few people know just how or where they are gathered and that their habitat is restricted to a few profitable fishing districts Like oysters, sponges don't travel about of their own accord and they must be caught where they grow As the demand constantly increase and the older fishing grounds are being depleted newly discovered grounds are of great importance and are eagerly sought

A news item in the current number of the Monthly Bulletin of the Pan American Union Washington D C states that recently a shipment of 3 000 sponges of a fine grade arrived at Mobile Alabama from the coast of Honduras The fact that this coast has extensive sponge fishing possibilities had been either practically unknown or ignored until a Greek sponge fisher from the Mediterranean sea happened along during the latter part of last year With about three weeks fishing he gathered enough for the shipment alluded to and now Honduras is going to add another product to its other numerous industries

Sponge fishing is a rather unique occupation and the term 'fishing' is not much of a misnomer Most of them are still caught with hooks notwithstanding the fact that the improvement in diving apparatus has made their gathering easier They thrive only in the salt water of the sea and the best known districts are in the Mediterranean sea the Caribbean sea the gulf of Mexico and waters contiguous to these Those of the Mediterranean are the oldest and produce about half in value though not in quantity, of the world's supply

To persons who know sponges only as they appear ready for sale and use the animal as it comes from the sea would be unrecognizable It is a solid looking rather slimy fleshy body varying in color from light greyish yellow through a range of browns to black and in form either cup-shaped spheroidal or cake shaped according to the species, its age or the environment in which it grew In general in appearance and consistency and the manner in which it cuts with a knife a living sheepswool sponge is not unlike a piece of beef liver perforated with holes and canals The sponge of the markets is merely the skeleton the supporting framework which gives strength and form to the soft gelatinous tissues of the living animal

Concerning the life histories of commercial sponges but little is known In some species at least, the sexes are separate the females greatly preponderating and the young are produced mainly if not solely from eggs The young are for a time minute free swimming organisms which may be carried considerable distances by the currents before they at last settle down for a permanent attachment usually on natural rocky bars near the coast

THE WILSON IDEA.

Philosophy May Not be Adapted to America's New Industrial Era.

[Peter Grosscup in North American Review]

We are now far enough into the Wilson administration to see that Mr Wilson is not merely the titular leader of his party (as Mr Taft was accustomed to call himself) but the actual leader that his leadership, though employing patronage and especially the withholding of patronage as one of its auxiliaries does not rest chiefly on the power of patronage but is an intellectual leadership and that through this leadership there has been imposed on the old Democratic party a political philosophy from which it cannot now step aside and upon which it must stand or fall in the elections to come that there is beginning to develop throughout the country a distinctive feel that from an economic standpoint the philosophy may not be sound philosophy—fear from what is already happening to our industrial activity and what is likely to happen is equally felt The initiative of the country is already stirred with the fear that it may not be adapted to America or to the new industrial era in which we live And out of intuition, if the fruit borne is what is feared will quickly come an opposition to the Wilson idea potential enough to succeed if wisely utilized Can common ground be found on which to mobilize that potential opposition into a united and effective fighting opposition?

But reaction is on the road Already some of the states that adopted the initiative referendum and recall are devising means of limiting the exercise of that power to the real occasions upon which it should be exercised by the people directly and to that end are providing that the requisite petitions be signed by the petitioners in person in the clerk's office of the respective communities, after the petitioner has shown his qualifications as an elector Experience has been at work here And if an industrial reaction comes experience will teach another lesson the lesson that the foundations of prosperity are an industrial policy founded on stability and common sense.

SULGRAVE MANOR.

Ancestral Home of Family of George Washington to be a Museum.

Documents, Pictures and Records of British-American History to be in Historic House.

[Arthur J. Brenton.]

Sulgrave manor, Northamptonshire, England, the ancestral home of the family of George Washington, has passed into the hands of the British committee for the centenary of peace between Great Britain and the United States. The deeds were signed at a meeting of the committee in London. The price paid was $42,000. A letter was read from Viscount Bryce conveying the gift of a copy of the only authentic portrait of Mary Ball Washington, mother of George Washington, from W. Lanier Washington of New York. The committee ordered that the picture be placed in the old manor house.

An international committee of management of the Sulgrave property was appointed. Of this committee Ambassador Page accepted the chairmanship for himself and his successors. Other members are Earl Grey, Earl Spencer, Viscount Bryce, Lord Shaw, Lord Cowdray, Lord Weardale, Robert Donald, Harry Brittain, Andrew Carnegie, John A. Stewart and W. B. Howland.

Sulgrave manor is to be maintained in perpetuity as a museum of documents, pictures and other records of the main events of British-American history since the signing of the treaty of Ghent in 1814. This historic house was built by Laurence Washington, Esq., of Grey's Inn, who was the son of John Washington of Walton, in Lancashire, who was the head of the branch of the family to which George Washington belonged.

The Washingtons emanated from a Norman family of rank, and, although George Washington wrote that the history of his ancestors was, in his opinion, "of very little moment" and "a subject to which I confess I have paid very little attention," few Americans can boast a better pedigree. Their progenitor was one William de Hertburn of Durham. The surname De Hertburn was taken from a village in the Palatinate. Later the name of the village of Hertburn was exchanged for that of Wessyngton, and the name of the family was thus changed to De Wessyngton, which, in the course of years, was gradually changed to the well known Washington.

The Laurence Washington who built Sulgrave manor was for some years mayor of Northampton, and on the dissolution of the priories by Henry VIII he received, in 1538, a grant of the manor of Sulgrave in Northamptonshire, which was confiscated property that had formerly belonged to the monastery of St. Andrew's, Sulgrave. This property remained in the Washington family until 1620 and was commonly known as the Washington manor.

As it stands today the house is far from being in its original condition, but the most interesting and perhaps the oldest parts of the structure have been preserved.

Practically all of the southern part of the building is in the original condition, and over a door in this part of the house can still be seen the arms of the Washington family, which consist of a white shield crossed horizontally by two red bars, with three five pointed stars across the top. It is said that in the red and white bars and the stars of this coat of arms the idea for the first American flag was found.

In the gable above the little window that looks out of what must have been Laurence Washington's bedchamber are also the royal arms, with a lion and a griffin as supporters.

The main floor or hall of the house is entered through an old Tudor porch. The hall is now divided into two small rooms. While this alteration was being made a fine old screen separating the hall from the lobby was removed, but the great beams in the ceiling prove beyond all doubt its location.

The original door leading into the court has also disappeared, but another one dating from before the American Revolution is there. The windows of the hall had stone mullions at one time, but these have been replaced by wooden ones. In this room until a few years ago there was an immense open fireplace which is now replaced by a modern stove. This old fireplace will undoubtedly be recovered when the building is finally restored.

The earliest known Washington coat of arms had blazoned upon it "3 Cinque foiles" which was the herald's way of saying that the bearer was a landholder and cultivator, and when Washington had a bookplate made for himself he added to the conventional design of the arms spears of wheat and other plants, as an indication of his favorite labor, and his cherished desire was to "live and die a private citizen on his own farm."

EUGENICS WOOING.

Young Men May Find Themselves at a Loss Between Law and Lady.

[New York Tribune.]

A new complication has arisen under the Wisconsin eugenics law. Suppose that a man engages himself to marry a girl and then finds that he cannot "make good" in the necessary examination. Will he be liable for breach of promise? That is a question which is being seriously asked in the Badger state, not so much concerning future engagements as concerning those which were made before the law was enacted, but which have not yet been fulfilled in marriage. There are said to be some thousands in the state, and doctors say that not more than ten men in a hundred can pass the required examination. A prospect of 90 per cent of involuntarily broken engagements is distressing save to the lawyers.

Henceforth, it is to be assumed, all weddings will be initiated and conducted on strictly eugenic principles. The young man will make sure that the law will permit him to marry before he becomes engaged. Indeed, he will make sure of it before he permits himself to become specially interested in any fair Dulcinea. The "eligibles" will not be merely men of presentable appearance and solvent bank accounts, but those who have passed or are able to pass the tests required by the eugenics law.

Holmes was right, to be sure, when he said that a man's education should begin with his grandparents. The would-be bridegroom's preparation not only for his marriage, but even for his courtship, must begin in his infancy, if, indeed, it does not largely depend upon the fitness of his parents or grandparents. After a generation or two of eugenic marriages all will be smooth sailing. Until then many a would-be wooer may find himself at a hopeless loss between the law and the lady.

THE CHILD'S HEALTH.

Physical and Mental Development in the Home and School.

Two problems concerning the health and physical and mental development of a child confront thoughtful parents today, in consideration of the child outside of school and attention to its environment within the school.

Whether in country or in city, the home influence on its health is most important. A constant and controllable factor is its food. Herein lies the home responsibility of the mother. She must learn that the food of the growing child is next only in importance to its feeding as an infant; and that the greatest good comes to it from plain, nutritious, well-cooked and easily digested food; that it needs certain foods for body structure and other foods to supply heat and energy. A child should frolic and romp and play because there is a natural relation between such muscular activity and the proper performance of such food material in carrying on their functions. The mother must also realize that rest is as important for the child as play, and that sufficient quiet, restful sleep does its equal part in storing energy and bringing about perfect development. Children need sunshine and fresh air, and at night should sleep in a well-ventilated room with the windows well down from the top. They should be bathed regularly and properly clothed.

But no matter how well fed and clothed, how clean and well nourished previous to its admission to school, the parents' interest must follow the child to the schoolroom and see that such environment does not undermine its health. Herein lies the responsibility of the father, as a citizen and taxpayer. It is his money that maintains the school and it is his duty to see that his child is not forced into an over-crowded, poorly ventilated, over-heated classroom, compelled to breathe for five hours a day the expirations from 40 or 50 pairs of lungs, and its condition so weakened as to render it vulnerable to the attacks of infectious disease. Any one, on reflection, will be impressed with the futility of expecting a maximum progression, physical and mental, where children are housed in over-crowded classrooms with little or no moisture in the air, compelled to breathe dry, vitiated air and to attempt mental tasks with suffocated brain cells deprived of nature's generous supply of oxygen. This is the condition in a large number of schoolrooms throughout the land today.

FOR INJURED WORKMEN.

Steel Association of Berlin to Care for Victims of Factory Accidents.

The Northeastern Iron and Steel Co-operative Association, embracing all the metal-working factories of Berlin, has bought a 210-acre farm near the city, and will equip it for taking care of the victims of factory accidents. A hospital for badly injured men is to be provided, and for less seriously injured workmen and convalescents special quarters will be built. Particular benefit is expected from light gardening in cases of traumatic neurosis, a common sequel of injuries in this line of work. All patients will be cared for free of cost and convalescents capable of working at gardening, fruit culture or other light farm work will receive wages.

The association plans eventually to establish a farm colony where those victims of accidents who require a long period for convalescence can settle with their families. It is planned to build small houses, on a quarter to a half acre, according to the size of the house and the number of persons occupying it, and to charge for all this less rent than the family would have to pay in the city for its restricted apartments. Opportunity will be given to raise poultry, rabbits and goats, and trained gardeners will be at the service of the tenants.

O'CONNELL'S SEND-OFF.

nell Day in Providence. (Loud cheers). The speaker also said it was well known that the third base position on the Trojan team was a hard one, and the players who had held it down safely are now enjoying big honors in being allowed to make good on top-notch teams. Cooney has gone for his try-out with the Boston Red Sox, and while O'Connell was going with the Providence Grays the speaker said Cooney went for good, but Ralph would eventually go for better. In closing Mr. Egan said that O'Connell was like a man on his honeymoon—he had to make good for himself.

Ralph O'Connell then rose, and in a brief speech said he thanked all for the send-off and would try his best to make good.

Clarence Potter then sang a song which he had composed about O'Connell.

The band then began playing various tunes, fireworks of all kinds were set off, the crowd raised a roar of noise, and in the meantime Ralph was carried forward on their shoulders to the boat. Cheer followed cheer, and as the Plymouth drew away from the dock the band played "Auld Lang Syne," the crowd singing in accompaniment.

On the committee were "Jack" Byrnes, Bernard McGinn, "Jack" Sullivan and James J. O'Connell. "Mush" Horgan of the Tabs, "Bony" Devlin and "Jack" Welch were the young men who were dressed up as clowns, and were conspicuous in their outfits.

SPONGE FISHING.

Greek Diver Discovers Valuable Districts Off Coast of Honduras.

Where do all the sponges come from? From the sea, of course, but few people know just how or where they are gathered, and that their habitat is restricted to a few profitable fishing districts. Like oysters, sponges don't travel about of their own accord, and they must be caught where they grow. As the demand constantly increase and the older fishing areas are being depleted newly discovered grounds are of great importance and are eagerly sought.

A news item in the current number of the Monthly Bulletin of the Pan American Union, Washington, D. C., states that recently a shipment of 3,000 sponges of a fine grade arrived at Mobile, Alabama, from the coast of Honduras. The fact that this coast has extensive sponge-fishing possibilities had been either practically unknown or ignored until a Greek sponge fisher from the Mediterranean sea happened along during the latter part of last year. With about three weeks' fishing he gathered enough for the shipment alluded to, and now Honduras is going to add another product to its other numerous industries.

Sponge fishing is a rather unique occupation, and the term "fishing" is not much of a misnomer. Most of them are still caught with hooks notwithstanding the fact that the improvement in diving apparatus has made their gathering easier. They thrive only in the salt water of the sea, and the best known districts are in the Mediterranean sea, the Caribbean sea, the gulf of Mexico, and waters contiguous to these. Those of the Mediterranean are the oldest and produce about half in value, though not in quantity, of the world's supply.

To persons who know sponges only as they appear ready for sale and use, the animal as it comes from the sea would be unrecognizable. It is a solid looking, rather slimy, fleshy body, varying in color from light greyish yellow through a range of browns to black and in form either cup-shaped, spheroidal, or cake shaped, according to the species, its age, or the environment in which it grew. In general, in appearance and consistency and the manner in which it cuts with a knife, a living sheepswool sponge is not unlike a piece of beef liver, perforated with holes and canals. The sponge of the markets is merely the skeleton, the supporting framework which gives strength and form to the soft gelatinous tissues of the living animal.

Concerning the life histories of commercial sponges but little is known. In some species, at least, the sexes are separate, the females greatly preponderating, and the young are produced mainly if not solely from eggs. The young are for a time, minute free-swimming organisms which may be carried considerable distances by the currents before they at last settle down for a permanent attachment, usually on natural rocky bars near the coast.

THE WILSON IDEA.

Philosophy May Not be Adapted to America's New Industrial Era.

[Peter Grosscup, in North American Review.]

We are now far enough into the Wilson administration to see that Mr. Wilson is not merely the titular leader of his party (as Mr. Taft was accustomed to call himself), but the actual leader; that his leadership, though employing patronage and especially the withholding of patronage as one of its auxiliaries, does not rest chiefly on the power of patronage, but is an intellectual leadership; and that through this leadership there has been imposed on the old Democratic party a political philosophy from which it cannot now step aside, and upon which it must stand or fall in the elections to come. That there is beginning to develop throughout the country a distinctive fear that from an economic standpoint the philosophy may not be sound philosophy—fear from what is already happening to our industrial activity, and what is likely to happen—is equally clear. The intuition of the country is already stirred with the fear that it may not be adapted to America or to the new industrial era in which we live. And out of intuition, if the fruit borne is what is feared, will quickly come an opposition to the Wilson idea, potential enough to succeed if wisely utilized. Can common ground be found on which to mobilize that potential opposition into a united and effective fighting opposition?

But reaction is on the road. Already some of the states that adopted the initiative, referendum and recall are devising means of limiting the exercise of that power to the real occasions upon which it should be exercised by the people directly, and to that end are providing that the requisite petitions be signed by the petitioners in person in the clerk's office of the respective communities, after the petitioner has shown his qualifications as an elector. Experience has been at work here. And, if an industrial reaction comes, experience will teach another lesson, the lesson that the foundations of prosperity are an industrial policy founded on stability and common sense.

REGARDING THE UNEMPLOYED.

Mayor of San Francisco to Pursue Policy of "Watchful Waiting."

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Mayor James Rolph, Jr., said today, regarding the plan to return 1,700 unemployed men from Sacramento, that he would pursue a policy of "watchful waiting." The mayor called attention to the California statute of 1901 under which it is a misdemeanor for any person, firm or corporation to bring into a city or county any person who might become an indigent.

DESPITE PREMIER'S PROTEST.

Recommendation Reducing Japan's Naval Estimates Carried.

TOKIO, Japan, March 9.—A recommendation to reduce the Japanese naval estimates by $20,000,000 was carried by the budget committee in the upper house of the Japanese Parliament today. This was done in spite of the protest of the premier, who expressed the opinion that such a diminution would seriously hamper the national forces. Today's proposed reduction was in addition to the curtailment of the naval estimates by $15,000,000 already passed by the lower house.

DISCHARGING MOLASSES IN COLD WEATHER.

Steamer Ixia, a tanker equipped to discharge a full cargo of molasses in two days, arrived in Boston two weeks ago with 500,000 gallons of the sweet.

The cold wave thickened the molasses. Pipes were clogged, pumps made of little use and the Ixia's crew has worked two weeks instead of two days to discharge the freight. The steamer was not ready to leave at last accounts.

BOARDS TRAIN FOR LONDON.

Mrs. Pankhurst, Arrested in the Night, May Go to Holloway Jail.

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 10.—Bands of determined militant suffragettes waited at all the railway stations in Glasgow today in readiness to fight for the rescue of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. The militant leader, however, who was arrested last night under dramatic circumstances while speaking in St. Andrew's hall, was removed from the station house to a suburban railway station early in the morning, in order to avoid the attention of her supporters. Mrs. Pankhurst was carried from the cell to a waiting automobile on a stretcher, and the motor car then dashed off at high speed to a station on the main line of the railway, where she was carried on board the express train for London. It is assumed that the militant leader will be placed in Holloway jail.

Many of the policemen who assisted in Mrs. Pankhurst's arrest last night suffered severe scratches from the barbed wire, which had been stretched across the platform from which she was speaking.

AN EARLY ADJOURNMENT.

Congress Disposing of Appropriation Measures Rapidly.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The rapidity with which Congress is disposing of the annual appropriation measures was cited today by smiling members as an indication of early adjournment. The agricultural supply measure was debated in the House today and probably will be disposed of this week. The rivers and harbor and the naval bills are to follow and leave only four of the supply measures to be considered. These are the $4,000,000 diplomatic and consular bill, which is now prepared and awaiting consideration; the legislative, executive and judicial bill carrying approximately $40,000,000; the sundry civil bill, estimated at $116,000,000, and the $100,000,000 pension bill.

FOR SPRING TRAINING.

St. Louis Federal League Team to Leave for Monroe, La.

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—Twenty-one members of the St. Louis Federal League base ball team in charge of Mordecai Brown, their manager, will depart tonight for Monroe, La., the club's training camp. Nine players reported last night and a dozen others are due to arrive today. Brown, who had made his home at the Missouri Athletic Club, left the building a few hours before the fire, which destroyed it, and cost so many lives. All his personal effects were burned.

GOOD MAPLE SUGAR SEASON.

Farmers Begin Tapping Bushes on Hills in Berkshire County.

TYRINGHAM, Mass., March 10.—Farmers owning sugar bushes on the south side of hills in Berkshire county began tapping the maple trees today and the first run of maple sap was reported to be unusually heavy. Considerable snow still rests in the woods, but in the warm spots the sap has started briskly and one of the best maple sugar seasons in many years is anticipated.

OPPORTUNITY OFFERED FOR CONCILIATION.

Submission of Concessions to Ulster Unionists Planned.

Recognition of Principle of Exclusion an Advance from Last Year.

LONDON, March 10.—The possibility of a settlement of the Irish home rule controversy was again today in the foreground of popular interest. The opinions of the various parties as to the effect of the concessions offered in the House of Commons yesterday by Premier Asquith differed widely. The Unionists, as a rule, expressed themselves unsatisfied with the suggested methods of voting by counties on the exclusion of Ulster, or portions of it, from the operation of the home rule bill. Nationalists on the other hand declared that the cabinet had gone to the limit toward conciliation.

The independent opinion of the country seems inclined to the feeling that the concessions really offer an opportunity for conciliation, and this feeling is strengthened by Sir Edward Carson's counter offer on behalf of the Ulster Unionists to submit the suggested concessions to an Ulster conference, providing the limitation on the exclusion of the northern counties to a period of six years be struck out.

It is pointed out here in parliamentary circles that the recognition by the cabinet and Nationalists of the principle of the exclusion of the Ulster, if they vote in favor of it, even if the exclusion be only temporary, is a great step in advance from last year's policy of "full steam ahead." This attitude of the cabinet and the Irish Nationalists, it is argued, allows for negotiations during the three weeks for which the debate on the home rule bill has been adjourned.

King George is believed to have had a hand in inducing Premier Asquith to make the proffered concessions, and it is contended that if His Majesty continues his activity in this respect the two parties may be enabled to bridge over the differences separating them.

The stumbling blocks in the way of a settlement of the Irish question are the "die hard" Unionists, who want a general election at any cost in the hope of defeating the government, and there are also the Nationalists who follow William O'Brien, who are opposed to any kind of exclusion bill granted to Ulster. It is doubtful whether John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, can carry the members of his party any farther in the way of placating the Ulster Unionists.

Lord MacDonnell, a Liberal peer, who was permanent under-secretary for Ireland from 1902 to 1908, said today that the government proposals seemed to furnish a basis for a settlement, while Lord Dunraven, Conservative Irish peer, expressed doubt whether Premier Asquith's offer would bring about a satisfactory solution.

A MILITANT OUTRAGE.

Severe Damage Inflicted on Painting at the National Gallery.

LONDON, March 10.—A militant suffragette inflicted severe damage today on the famous Velasquez picture known as the "Rockby Venus," which is hung in the National Gallery. The picture was purchased for $225,000 in 1906 and presented to the nation. The woman entered the gallery and attacked the picture with a sharp knife, making six or seven bad cuts across the principal part of the painting. She was arrested.

The perpetrator of the outrage was May Richardson, who had been sentenced to several terms of imprisonment since the beginning of the woman's suffrage militant movement. It was she who was arrested at Bristol July 4 last year, for dropping a scroll of paper on the knees of King George as he was driving through the city. For this she served three months' imprisonment. She was arrested again in November on suspicion of burning a house at Hampton, but immediately started a hunger and thirst strike and was released a few weeks later in a serious condition of health.

The National Gallery was temporarily closed by the authorities after the outrage. Many of the public art collections, such as those at Hampton Court Palace and especially galleries where valuable porcelain is on exhibition, were closed a year ago on account of militant outrages and have not been opened since.

Miss Richardson after her arrest said: "I tried to destroy the picture of the most beautiful woman in mythological history as a protest against the government for destroying Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is the most beautiful character in modern history."

The police magistrate committed Miss Richardson for trial at the Sessions and refused to grant bail when she was charged later in the day at Bow Street police court with damaging the "Rockby Venus."

Hawes Harrison Turner, secretary and keeper of the National Gallery, when giving evidence expressed the opinion that the selling price of the picture had been depreciated by the outrage by as much as $50,000 to $75,000. The prisoner harangued the court, declaring that "Reginald McKenna, the home secretary, has turned the criminal code into a farce. This is the tenth time I have been brought before a magistrate this year. He cannot coerce me and cannot compel me to serve a sentence. He can only repeat the farce of releasing me."

EXCLUDED FROM WEST POINT.

War Department May Not Re-Open Case of McClure of Paris, Ky.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Unless specifically directed by President Wilson, the War Department will not reopen the case of James W. McClure of Paris, Ky., who was excluded from appointment as a cadet at the West Point Military Academy, thereby leading his father to prefer charges against Major General Thomas H. Barry, former superintendent, and Major Fred W. Slayden, commandant of cadets, of making false official statements in the matter.

Senator Paynter, who had interested himself in the case, has been informed by the War Department that the academic board reported that McClure had resigned his cadetship to escape trial, which fact had been regarded sufficient to warrant the disapproval of his application for a new appointment.

UNTERMEYER'S MOTIVES.

Those Pressing for Favorable Action on Stock Exchange Bill Questioned.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Samuel Untermeyer's motives in pressing the Senate banking committee for favorable action on the Stock Exchange regulation bill was questioned today by Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska at a hearing. Mr. Untermeyer, Senator Hitchcock said, had refused to answer questions about his connection with the sale of Kanawaha and Michigan railroad stock either for himself or for some other person. Mr. Untermeyer said he believed the matter was brought up to obscure the issues involved in the pending bill, but declared the charges that he or his clients had been involved in an improper transaction in the stock named had been inspired by the publicity department of the New York Stock Exchange.

CUMMINS GOES TO SING SING.

Former Head of Carnegie Trust to Appeal to Glynn for Pardon.

NEW YORK, March 10.—William J. Cummins, one time head of the defunct Carnegie Trust Company, who was convicted nearly three years ago of the larceny of $140,000, was taken to Sing Sing prison from the Tombs today, to serve out a sentence of not less than four years and eight months, and not more than eight years and eight months. By reason of appeals and other moves, counsel for Cummins kept him out of state prison for nearly 900 days after his conviction. It is stated that he will now appeal to Governor Glynn for a pardon, on the ground that he rendered assistance to the state in the hearings regarding the trust company.

SEVERAL STRIKERS WOUNDED.

Roman Workmen, Awed by Soldiery, Resume Work.

ROME, March 10.—Several strikers were wounded today, and one is reported to have been killed in a serious affray with the police in the vicinity of the ministry of the interior. The mounted policemen fired volleys of ball cartridges into the crowd and after the strikers had dispersed several wounded were taken inside the ministry of the interior to be bandaged.

Awed by the display of soldiery and checked by several cavalry charges that frustrated attempts at disorder, the workmen of Rome who yesterday had declared a general strike decided today to resume work.

ILLINOIS WOMEN VOTE.

Local Option Question to be Decided on at Election April 21.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 10.—Women in hundreds of villages and small cities through the state today participated for the first time in the selection of nominees for municipal offices in local primaries. In many of the towns no petitions had been filed and blank ballots, bearing only the party designation, greeted the newly enfranchised voters on their arrival at the polling places.

In more than 100 municipalities the local option question is to be voted on at the regular village election April 21, and in those places there was noticeable activity among the women, who are expected to be a deciding element in the "wet" or "dry" contest.

GERMAN ARTILLERY THE BEST.

Report That Bill Was to be Introduced for Re-Armament Erroneous.

BERLIN, March 10.—The German artillery equals the best in the world, according to an announcement made today by the German ministry of war, which declares erroneous the report circulated yesterday in Munich that a bill was about to be introduced for the re-armament of the German artillery, at a cost of $125,000,000.

KILLED BY A SNOWSLIDE.

DAWSON, Yukon Territory, March 10.—Otis Jenkins, who arrived today from the Shushanna gold field, reported that Kenneth Whitehorn and Charles Anderson, formerly of Dawson, were killed by a snowslide while hunting sheep on a mountain near Chisana City. The bodies were recovered and taken to Chisana for burial.

Who Will Be Your Executor?

ANSWER NO. 2.

Your estate may be materially impaired as a direct result of the appointment of an executor or trustee.

When an individual is appointed—	When a Trust Company is selected—
The financial responsibility is generally weaker.	The positive advantage of strong financial responsibility is secured.
It is usually provided in wills that the person nominated to serve as executor shall be excused from giving bonds.	A bond which has behind it the entire financial strength of the institution is always filed with the Probate Court at no cost to the estate.
When surety bonds are supplied, it is at the expense of the estate, and then only partial security against loss is provided.

SCORE OR SO BODIES PROBABLY IN RUINS.

Real Extent of Calamity Due to St. Louis Fire Unknown.

Cause of Conflagration and Reason for Late Discovery Still Mysterious.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 10.—The real extent of the calamity caused by the fire which destroyed the Missouri Athletic Club yesterday, it is believed, will begin to unfold itself today when firemen enter the ruins in search of the score or more bodies thought to be buried there.

What appeared a human body was seen wedged between the fire escape and wedged between the fire escape and the last remaining wall below a seventh-story window. Seven dead were taken from the building yesterday and 25 others, who are known to have been in the building at the time, have been given up as dead by their friends who escaped. It is possible that beyond this number there were several persons in the clubhouse not registered.

The total number of persons who were in the clubhouse when the fire alarm was given, and who escaped with more or less serious injuries, reached 55. Many of those who escaped, becoming dazed or hysterical through the experience, wandered about the city all day before reporting to the board of identification, which had been established at the Press Club of St. Louis. This partly was responsible for the excess number of dead given in the early estimates of the loss of life. Five of the seven bodies recovered have been identified. Two others are burned beyond recognition.

The cause of the fire and the reason for its late discovery are still mysterious. The fire chief declared that it would in all probability be several days before the ruins could be thoroughly pried into and all the bodies recovered. Until then the exact number of dead will not be known.

Joseph Wolfson of Caruthersville, Mo., who was reported last night as among the missing in the Missouri Athletic Club fire, is safe. He called up the committee of the club today.

Careful checking up of those known to be at the Missouri Athletic Club Sunday night, and those heard from since the fire, resulted in a death list of 31. This number may be slightly increased.

USED BITTER LANGUAGE.

Member of Provincial Assembly Guilty of Unlawful Assembly.

NEW WESTMINSTER, British Columbia, March 10.—After a trial lasting all day, John Place, member of the provincial assembly, was found guilty of unlawful assembly at the special Assizes here last night. According to the defense, Mr. Place advised the Nanaimo miners not to give heed to a proposal that a committee be appointed to interview him to bring the trouble to an end. The crown contended that the speaker used inflammatory language.

NEW YORK, March 10, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 73¾, American Locomotive 34, American Sugar Rfg 101⅛, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 96⅝, Baltimore & Ohio 88½, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 92⅛, Canadian Pacific 208¼, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul 98⅝, Erie 28⅛, Great Northern Preferred 126⅞, New York Central 89⅛, Northern Pacific 110¾, Reading 163¼, Republic, Iron & Steel 25½, Rock Island Pfd 7½, Southern Pacific 93⅝, Union Pacific 157⅛, United States Steel 64⅛, United States Steel pfd 109⅝, Western Union 63¾, Westinghouse Electric 74½.

Noon—Although the market exhibited weakness at various points during the morning, its general action convinced the bulls that it has been thoroughly liquidated. Despite successive bear raids on Lehigh Valley, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Sugar all of which fell sharply, buying orders came in steadily, giving the impression that the shorts were taking on stocks under cover of forced selling elsewhere. European buying in Steel and railroad shares indicated the abatement of foreign liquidation which has been a depressing influence for some time. The advance of various specialties continued. The spectacular rise of United States Express was carried further, the price touching 86 1-2 compared with 51 a fortnight ago. Bonds were steady. Call money, steady, at 1 7-8. Mercantile paper, at 4 1-2. Exchanges, $336,451,439. Balances, $17,684,600.

BOARDS TRAIN FOR LONDON.

Mrs. Pankhurst, Arrested in the Night, May Go to Holloway Jail.

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 10.—Bands of determined militant suffragettes waited at all the railway stations in Glasgow today in readiness to fight for the rescue of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. The militant leader, however, who was arrested last night under dramatic circumstances while speaking in St. Andrew's hall, was removed from the station house to a suburban railway station early in the morning, in order to avoid the attention of her supporters. Mrs. Pankhurst was carried from the cell to a waiting automobile on a stretcher, and the motor car then dashed off at high speed to a station on the main line of the railway, where she was carried on board the express train for London. It is assumed that the militant leader will be placed in Holloway jail.

Many of the policemen who assisted in Mrs. Pankhurst's arrest last night suffered severe scratches from the barbed wire, which had been stretched across the platform from which she was speaking.

AN EARLY ADJOURNMENT.

Congress Disposing of Appropriation Measures Rapidly.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The rapidity with which Congress is disposing of the annual appropriation measures was cited today by smiling members as an indication of early adjournment. The agricultural supply measure was debated in the House today and probably will be disposed of this week. The rivers and harbor and the naval bills are to follow and leave only four of the supply measures to be considered. These are the $4,000,000 diplomatic and consular bill, which is now prepared and awaiting consideration; the legislative, executive and judicial bill carrying approximately $40,000,000; the sundry civil bill, estimated at $118,000,000, and the $100,000,000 pension bill.

St. Louis Federal League Team to Leave for Monroe, La.

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—Twenty-one members of the St. Louis Federal League base ball team in charge of Mordecai Brown, their manager, will depart tonight for Monroe, La., the club's training camp. Nine players reported last night and a dozen others are due to arrive today. Brown, who had made his home at the Missouri Athletic Club left the building a few hours before the fire which destroyed it and cost so many lives. All his personal effects were burned.

GOOD MAPLE SUGAR SEASON.

Farmers Begin Tapping Bushes on Hills in Berkshire County.

TYRINGHAM, Mass., March 10.—Farmers owning sugar bushes on the south side of hills in Berkshire county began tapping the maple trees today and the first run of maple sap was reported to be unusually heavy. Considerable snow still rests in the woods, but in the warm spots the sap has started briskly and one of the best maple sugar seasons in many years is anticipated.

OPPORTUNITY OFFERED FOR CONCILIATION.

Submission of Concessions to Ulster Unionists Planned.

Recognition of Principle of Exclusion an Advance from Last Year.

LONDON, March 10.—The possibility of a settlement of the Irish home rule controversy was again today in the foreground of popular interest. The opinions of the various parties as to the effect of the concessions offered in the House of Commons yesterday by Premier Asquith differed widely. The Unionists, as a rule, expressed themselves unsatisfied with the suggested methods of voting by counties on the exclusion of Ulster, or portions of it, from the operation of the home rule bill. Nationalists on the other hand declared that the cabinet had gone to the limit toward conciliation.

The independent opinion of the country seems inclined to the feeling that the concessions really offer an opportunity for conciliation, and this feeling is strengthened by Sir Edward Carson's counter offer on behalf of the Ulster Unionists to submit the suggested concessions to an Ulster conference, providing the limitation on the exclusion of the northern counties to a period of six years be struck out.

It is pointed out here in parliamentary circles that the recognition by the cabinet and Nationalists of the principle of the exclusion of the Ulster, if they vote in favor of it, even if the exclusion be only temporary, is a great step in advance from last year's policy of "full steam ahead." This attitude of the cabinet and the Irish Nationalists, it is argued, allows for negotiations during the three weeks for which the debate on the home rule bill has been adjourned.

King George is believed to have had a hand in inducing Premier Asquith to make the proffered concessions, and it is contended that if His Majesty continues his activity in this respect the two parties may be enabled to bridge over the differences separating them.

The stumbling blocks in the way of a settlement of the Irish question are the "die hard" Unionists, who want a general election at any cost in the hope of defeating the government, and there are also the Nationalists who follow William O'Brien, who are opposed to any kind of exclusion bill granted to Ulster. It is doubtful whether John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, can carry the members of his party any farther in the way of placating the Ulster Unionists.

Lord MacDonnell, a Liberal peer, who was permanent under-secretary for Ireland from 1902 to 1908, said today that the government proposals seemed to furnish a basis for a settlement, while Lord Dunraven, Conservative Irish peer, expressed doubt whether Premier Asquith's offer would bring about a satisfactory solution.

A MILITANT OUTRAGE.

Severe Damage Inflicted on Painting at the National Gallery.

LONDON, March 10.—A militant suffragette inflicted severe damage today on the famous Velasquez picture known as the "Rockby Venus," which is hung in the National Gallery. The picture was purchased for $225,000 in 1906 and presented to the nation. The woman entered the gallery and attacked the picture with a sharp knife, making six or seven bad cuts across the principal part of the painting. She was arrested.

The perpetrator of the outrage was May Richardson, who had been sentenced to several terms of imprisonment since the beginning of the woman's suffrage militant movement. It was she who was arrested at Bristol July 4 last year, for dropping a scroll of paper on the knees of King George as he was driving through the city. For this she served three months' imprisonment. She was arrested again in November on suspicion of burning a house at Hampton, but immediately started a hunger and thirst strike and was released a few weeks later in a serious condition of health.

The National Gallery was temporarily closed by the authorities after the outrage. Many of the public art collections, such as those at Hampton Court Palace and especially galleries where valuable porcelain is on exhibition, were closed a year ago on account of militant outrages and have not been opened since.

Miss Richardson after her arrest said: "I tried to destroy the picture of the most beautiful woman in mythological history as a protest against the government for destroying Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is the most beautiful character in modern history."

The police magistrate committed Miss Richardson for trial at the Sessions and refused to grant bail when she was charged later in the day at Bow Street police court with damaging the "Rockby Venus."

Hawes Harrison Turner, secretary and keeper of the National Gallery, when giving evidence expressed the opinion that the selling price of the picture had been depreciated by the outrage by as much as $50,000 to $75,000. The prisoner harangued the court, declaring that "Reginald McKenna, the home secretary, has turned the criminal code into a farce. This is the tenth time I have been brought before a magistrate this year. He cannot coerce me and cannot compel me to serve a sentence. He can only repeat the farce of releasing me."

Who Will Be Your Executor?

ANSWER NO. 2.

Your estate may be materially impaired as a direct result of the appointment of an executor or trustee.

When an Individual is appointed—	When a Trust Company is selected—
The financial responsibility is generally weaker.	The positive advantage of strong financial responsibility is secured.
It is usually provided in wills that the person nominated to serve as executor shall be excused from giving bonds. When surety bonds are supplied, it is at the expense of the estate, and then only partial security against loss is provided.	A bond which has behind it the entire financial strength of the institution is always filed with the Probate Court at no cost to the estate.

EXCLUDED FROM WEST POINT.

War Department May Not Re-Open Case of McClure of Paris, Ky.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Unless specifically directed by President Wilson, the War Department will not reopen the case of James W. McClure of Paris, Ky., who was excluded from appointment as a cadet at the West Point Military Academy, thereby leading his father to prefer charges against Major General Thomas H. Barry, former superintendent, and Major Fred W. Slayden, commandant of cadets, of making false official statements in the matter.

Senator Paynter, who had interested himself in the case, has been informed by the War Department that the academic board reported that McClure had resigned his cadetship to escape trial, which fact had been regarded sufficient to warrant the disapproval of his application for a new appointment.

UNTERMEYER'S MOTIVES.

Those Pressing for Favorable Action on Stock Exchange Bill Questioned.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Samuel Untermeyer's motives in pressing the Senate banking committee for favorable action on the Stock Exchange regulation bill was questioned today by Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska at a hearing. Mr. Untermeyer, Senator Hitchcock said, had refused to answer questions about his connection with the sale of Kanawaha and Michigan railroad stock either for himself or for some other person. Mr. Untermeyer said he believed the matter was brought up to obscure the issues involved in the pending bill, but declared the charges that he or his clients had been involved in an improper transaction in the stock named had been inspired by the publicity department of the New York Stock Exchange.

CUMMINS GOES TO SING SING.

Former Head of Carnegie Trust to Appeal to Glynn for Pardon.

NEW YORK, March 10.—William J. Cummins, one time head of the defunct Carnegie Trust Company, who was convicted nearly three years ago of the larceny of $140,000, was taken to Sing Sing prison from the Tombs today, to serve out a sentence of not less than four years and eight months, and not more than eight years and eight months. By reason of appeals and other moves, counsel for Cummins kept him out of state prison for nearly 900 days after his conviction. It is stated that he will now appeal to Governor Glynn for a pardon, on the ground that he rendered assistance to the state in the hearings regarding the trust company.

SEVERAL STRIKERS WOUNDED.

Roman Workmen, Awed by Soldiery, Resume Work.

ROME, March 10.—Several strikers were wounded today, and one is reported to have been killed in a serious affray with the police in the vicinity of the ministry of the interior. The mounted policemen fired volleys of ball cartridges into the crowd and after the strikers had dispersed several wounded were taken inside the ministry of the interior to be bandaged.

Awed by the display of soldiery and checked by several cavalry charges that frustrated attempts at disorder, the workmen of Rome who yesterday had declared a general strike decided today to resume work.

ILLINOIS WOMEN VOTE.

Local Option Question to be Decided on at Election April 21.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 10.—Women in hundreds of villages and small cities through the state today participated for the first time in the selection of nominees for municipal offices in local primaries. In many of the towns no petitions had been filed and blank ballots, bearing only the party designation, greeted the newly enfranchised voters on their arrival at the polling places.

In more than 100 municipalities the local option question is to be voted on at the regular village election April 21, and in these places there was noticeable activity among the women, who are expected to be a deciding element in the "wet" or "dry" contest.

GERMAN ARTILLERY THE BEST.

Report That Bill Was to be Introduced for Re-Armament Erroneous.

BERLIN, March 10.—The German artillery equals the best in the world, according to an announcement made today by the German ministry of war, which declares erroneous the report circulated yesterday in Munich that a bill was about to be introduced for the re-armament of the German artillery, at a cost of $125,000,000.

KILLED BY A SNOWSLIDE.

Two Men Lose Lives While Hunting Sheep Near Chisana.

DAWSON, Yukon Territory, March 10.—Otis Jenkins, who arrived today from the Shushanna gold field, reported that Kenneth Whitehorn and Charles Andersen, formerly of Dawson, were killed by a snowslide while hunting sheep on a mountain near Chisana City. The bodies were recovered and taken to Chisana for burial.

SCORE OR SO BODIES PROBABLY IN RUINS.

Real Extent of Calamity Due to St. Louis Fire Unknown.

Cause of Conflagration and Reason for Late Discovery Still Mysterious.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 10.—The real extent of the calamity caused by the fire which destroyed the Missouri Athletic Club yesterday, it is believed, will begin to unfold itself today when firemen enter the ruins in search of the score or more bodies thought to be buried there.

What appeared a human body was seen wedged between the fire escape and wedged between the fire escape and the last remaining wall below a seventh-story window. Seven dead were taken from the building yesterday and 25 others, who are known to have been in the building at the time, have been given up as dead by their friends who escaped. It is possible that beyond this number there were several persons in the clubhouse not registered.

The total number of persons who were in the clubhouse when the fire alarm was given, and who escaped with more or less serious injuries, reached 55. Many of these who escaped, becoming dazed or hysterical through the experience, wandered about the city all day before reporting to the board of identification, which had been established at the Press Club of St. Louis. This partly was responsible for the excess number of dead given in the early estimates of the loss of life. Five of the seven bodies recovered have been identified. Two others are burned beyond recognition.

The cause of the fire and the reason for its late discovery are still mysterious. The fire chief declared that it would in all probability be several days before the ruins could be thoroughly pried into and all the bodies recovered. Until then the exact number of dead will not be known.

Joseph Wolfson of Caruthersville, Mo., who was reported last night as among the missing in the Missouri Athletic Club fire, is safe. He called up the committee of the club today.

Careful checking up of those known to be at the Missouri Athletic Club Sunday night, and those heard from since the fire, resulted in a death list of 31. This number may be slightly increased.

USED BITTER LANGUAGE.

Member of Provincial Assembly Guilty of Unlawful Assembly.

NEW WESTMINSTER, British Columbia, March 10.—After a trial lasting all day, John Place, member of the provincial assembly, was found guilty of unlawful assembly at the special Assizes here last night. According to the defense, Mr. Place advised the Nanaimo miners not to give heed to a proposal that a committee be appointed to interview him to bring the trouble to an end. The crown contended that the speaker used inflammatory language.

Noon—Although the market exhibited weakness at various points during the morning, its general action convinced the bulls that it has been thoroughly liquidated. Despite successive bear raids on Lehigh Valley, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Sugar all of which fell sharply, buying orders came in steadily, giving the impression that the shorts were taking on stocks under cover of forced selling elsewhere. European buying in Steel and railroad shares indicated the abatement of foreign liquidation which has been a depressing influence for some time. The advance of various specialties continued. The spectacular rise of United States Express was carried further, the price touching 56 1-2 compared with 54 a fortnight ago. Bonds were steady. Call money steady, at 1 7-8. Mercantile paper at 4 1-2. Exchanges, $338,451,433; balances, $17,654,600.

O'CONNELL'S SEND-OFF.

Enthusiastic Farewell Celebration for Candidate for Providence Grays.

Municipal Band and Big Crowd Escort Young Athlete from Home to the Boat.

Perhaps never before has a Newport boy gone away with so big a send-off leaving at the same time so many well wishers behind him and accordingly Ralph O Connell who is going south to try out for third base on the Providence International League base ball team will long remember the enthusiastic farewell celebration given by his friends It was estimated that more than 200 besides the Municipal band were in the parade which started at O Connell s home and went down to the boat while the crowd was equipped with all kinds of noise-making devices such as horns rattlers etc not to mention the numerous red lights along the streets

RALPH O CONNELL

The idea of hiring a band to give O Connell an appropriate send-off was a good one and this together with the big crowd and the speeches made at the dock were the features Cheer after cheer was given the Newport boy the band played all sorts of tunes the crowd shouted itself hoarse, the speakers of the evening were more or less eloquent and all hearty in their expression of admiration for Ralph and forcible in their opinion that he will make good

Several clowns were in front of the band which was followed by a number of automobiles the first containing members of the Trojan team on which O Connell won a name for himself In the motor vehicles immediately following were those of his intimate friends who wished to be in on the whole celebration

Beginning at Washington square the municipal Band together with the committee and a large number of O C nn li s well wishers paraded up Broadway to O Connell s home where the young athlete was bundled into a waiting automobile and the parade started back Amid a loud noise from strong throats and numerous horns the crowd increased in numbers every step of the way so that by the time it reached Washington square it had assumed large proportions

Eventually the parade reached the dock where all gathered around while Johnny Roach who acted as master of ceremonies began the speech making with a brief account of O Connell s history as an athlete of known ability his worthiness to try out for such a big team as the Providence Grays and finished by introducing the speaker of the evening, Alderman Joseph J Kirby

Mr Kirby explained that he was glad O Connell was going away because of his bright prospects but also [illegible] he was sure [illegible] him With a few all present admired [illegible] brief and to the point more remarks [illegible] finished and Mike [illegible] the well known manager of the Trojans took the stump

WORK IN FEBRUARY.

Charity Organization Aids Needy Families During Stormy Weather.

At the monthly meeting of the board of reference of the Charity Organization Society, Monday afternoon, the report of the stamp collectors showed that in spite of the stormy weather the collectors have been faithful to their work and the collecting has been kept up fairly well. There were five lists collected from the office by the assistant secretary when the collector could not attend to the list or could not get a substitute.

The monthly meeting of the collectors held February 9 was addressed by Mrs. Hiram Kendall of Providence, who has been president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the State Board of Charities for 14 years. She told much that was interesting and informing about the work for girls and women in our state correctionary institutions. The report of the collectors for the month is as follows:

Amount collected from the homes	$985.07
Amount collected from the schools	371.29
Interest	1.40
From sale of stamp folders	2.54
	$1360.21
Balance February 1	4828.72
	$6188.93
Checks cancelled by stamp savers	1113.60
Balance, March 1	$5075.33

The secretary, Miss Harriet E. Thomas, presented the report of the society's work for February. During that month 32 families were brought to the attention of the executive committee for some form of relief; 67 visits were made on or in behalf of needy families, 88 letters were written, and 228 visits were made to the society's rooms by applicants, stamp savers, collectors and persons for consultation. In planning for the best method of providing relief for the 32 new families, emergency relief was given immediately in cases where it seemed advisable; one case was referred to the St. Andrew's Society, two were refused aid, on the advice of the pastors of their churches; 10 families were given temporary relief, six cases were referred to the Overseers of the Poor and in nine cases the society and Overseers of the Poor acted together. Temporary work was found in six cases, two cases are being cared for partly through the Newport Hospital and the Charity Society, one case is being cared for by the King's Daughters, one partly by the Sunshine Society and partly by St. John's Church; one by Rev. Father Higney. Five families needed advice and direction only. One family was investigated for Dr. Harrington, superintendent of the state Insane Asylum, one was left in the charge of Miss Emery, and one in charge of Captain A. C. Griffith. Dr. Ladd, superintendent of the State Home and School for Feeble Minded, came to Newport to consult with the committee concerning one case. The committee also reports that several benevolent persons offered to assist the society during the severe weather and sent coal and wood to families.

The middle of the eclipse will be reached at 11.14, when only about one tenth of the disc will be illumined near the northern limb. O'CONNELL'S SEND-OFF.

Enthusiastic Farewell Celebration for Candidate for Providence Grays.

Municipal Band and Big Crowd Escort Young Athlete from Home to the Boat.

Perhaps never before has a Newport boy gone away with so big a send-off, leaving at the same time so many well wishers behind him, and accordingly Ralph O'Connell, who is going south to try out for third base on the Providence International League base ball team will long remember the enthusiastic farewell celebration given by his friends. It was estimated that more than 200 besides the Municipal band were in the parade which started at O'Connell's home and went down to the boat, while the crowd was equipped with all kinds of noise-making devices, such as horns, rattlers, etc., not to mention the numerous red lighs along the streets.

RALPH O'CONNELL.

The idea of hiring a band to give O'Connell an appropriate send-off was a good one and this together with the big crowd, and the speeches made at the dock, were the features. Cheer after cheer was given the Newport boy, the band played all sorts of tunes, the crowd shouted itself hoarse, the speakers of the evening were more or less eloquent, and all hearty in their expression of admiration for Ralph and forcible in their opinion that he will make good.

Several clowns were in front of the band, which was followed by a number of automobiles, the first containing members of the Trojan team, on which O'Connell won a name for himself. In the motor vehicles immediately following were those of his intimate friends who wished to be "in" on the whole celebration.

Beginning at Washington square the municipal Band, together with the committee and a large number of O'Connell's well wishers, paraded up Broadway to O'Connell's home, where the young athlete was bundled into a waiting automobile, and the parade started back. Amid a loud noise from strong throats and numerous horns the crowd increased in numbers every step of the way, so that by the time it reached Washington square it had assumed large proportions.

Eventually the parade reached the dock, where all gathered around while "Johnny" Roach, who acted as master of ceremonies, began the speech-making with a brief account of O'Connell's history as an athlete of known ability, his worthiness to try out for such a big team as the Providence Grays, and finished by introducing the speaker of the evening, Alderman Joseph J. Kirby.

Mr. Kirby explained that he was glad O'Connell was going away because of his bright prospects, but also sad to lose him because he was sure all present admired him. With a few more remarks, brief and to the point, Alderman Kirby finished and "Mike" Egan, the well known manager of the Trojans, took the stump.

Mr. Egan said that if Ralph made good Newport would have an "O'Con-

THE EIGHT-YEAR SCHEDULE.

Superintendent Lull's Report from the Richmond Convention.

School Committee Elects New Teachers and Does Routine Work.

The School Committee held its third monthly meeting Monday evening, with nine members present, the absentees being Chairman Barker, Miss Hunter and Dr. Darrah. Superintendent Lull reported his best idea from the Richmond convention, to change to an eight year schedule. There were some changes in teachers. Vice Chairman Peckham presided.

Superintendent Lull read his monthly report, which is as follows:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

The total enrollment for the four weeks ending February 20, 1914, was 3,787, the average number belonging 3,470, the average daily attendance 3,170.7, the per cent of attendance 91.3, the cases of tardiness 481, and the cases of dismissal 51. Gain over last month 22; gain over last February 49; gain since last September 261.

The rank of attendance and tardiness for the month follows:

Rank	Attendance	Tardiness
1	Rogers	Thayer
2	Coddington	Callender
3	Cranston	Parish
4	Calvert	Calvert
5	Mumford	Lenthal
6	Potter	Coggeshall
7	Lenthal	Coddington
8	Thayer	Clarke
9	Clarke	Potter
10	Parish	Carey
11	Callender	Mumford
12	Coggeshall	Rogers
13	Carey	Cranston

In the Townsend Industrial School 1,237 pupils were enrolled.

Evening Schools:

The average attendance to and including Friday, February 27, was: Elementary 33.7, mechanical drawing 12, freehand drawing 4.4, bookkeeping 5, stenography-typewriting 9.5, machinery 11.

Board of Health.

Beginning Monday, February 9, two cases have been reported to this office, one for scarlet fever and one for diphtheria. Of these one was in the public schools and it excluded six other pupils.

Teachers' Retirement Fund.

From Mr. Edwin S. Burdick, the executor of the will of the late Mrs. Mary A. Southwick, the Teachers' Retirement Fund has received $2,000 "on account of distribution of the personal estate, the residue to be distributed within the statutory time." In addition there are three pieces of real estate in which the fund has a one-third interest. The January dividends were $660. These with a gift of $2 make a total of $35,696.69.

Census.

The census takers have submitted the most complete and satisfactory returns that have been received in this office since 1900. The result is as follows:

	Boys	Girls	Total
Public	1724	1681	3405
Parochial	601	629	1230
Private	40	50	90
Non-Att	340	273	613
	2705	2633	5338

This shows an increase of 54 over last year.

Of the non-attending 196 were under seven years and 381 were 14 years or over. The former are not obliged by state law to attend school and the latter from 14 to 16 may not attend if they have labor certificates, and if over 16 are not obliged to have certificates or to attend.

There are still 36 to account for and the truant officer submits this result of his personal examination of these cases: Under seven years, 1; 15 years and over, 3; number attending school, 4; incapacitated by illness, 10; working under certificate, 4; recently moved from here, 2; not vaccinated, 2; private tuition, 10; total, 36.

The state will pay for those 5 to 15 years of age (both inclusive); that is, for 4,564 at probably 66 cents each, or about $3,000.

Parents' Evenings.

The fifth entertainment of this season was held in the Potter last Friday, under difficulties, for in this building
